Essential Grammars

Essential French Grammar

Essential French Grammar is a student-friendly French grammar designed to give learners a firm foundation on which to build a real understanding of both spoken and written French.

Clear explanations of grammar are supported by contemporary examples, lively cartoon drawings and a variety of exercises.

Key features of each chapter:

- each grammar point explained initially with reference to English
- parallels between English and French provided where relevant
- 'key points' box and tables that summarize grammar concepts
- real-life language examples in French, with English translations
- a variety of exercises to reinforce learning
- a contemporary primary source or literary extract to illustrate grammar in context.

A glossary of grammatical terms in French and English, useful verb tables, and a key to the exercises are also provided, making this an ideal resource for both independent and class-based learners.

Essential French Grammar is an innovative reference grammar and workbook for intermediate and advanced undergraduate students of French (CEFR levels B2 to C1, ACTFL Intermediate to Advanced).

Mike Thacker was Director of the Language Centre at the University of Surrey from 1991 to 2005 and has taught at all degree levels. He is co-author of several coursebooks for Spanish A level, A Spanish Learning Grammar and Friday Afternoon French (with Casimir d'Angelo).

Casimir d'Angelo is Director of the Language Unit in the Engineering Department of the University of Cambridge. He is co-author of Friday Afternoon French (with Mike Thacker).

Introduction

Essential French Grammar was written out of a conviction that grammar is the key to attaining a real understanding of both spoken and written French. While it is possible to communicate with native speakers at a basic phrase book level using a limited number of structures, knowledge of the grammar of the language is essential to hold a conversation of any complexity, or write a letter or an essay successfully. In our long experience of teaching and examining, grammar plays a fundamental part in the learning process of students who aspire to higher levels of competence.

Our aim in writing Essential French Grammar is to provide a clear description of French grammar, together with practice exercises, for English-speaking undergraduate students of French and for those who are studying French in preparation to go to university. University students of French will benefit from using this book, whether they are specialist linguists or non-specialists studying a module in French as part of another degree. In terms of the commonly accepted European system for assessing achievement in a language, the book corresponds approximately to levels B1 to C1 of the Common European Framework Reference for Languages (Independent User to Proficient User).

In each of the 15 chapters we explain briefly how grammar works in English and then in French. This method enables students to grasp the fact that French has different ways of creating its grammatical rules, which derive from a distinctive cultural and linguistic tradition. The structure of each chapter follows a sequence:

- each grammar point is explained initially with reference to English
- parallels between English and French are then pointed out in a contrastive way
- Key points relating the grammar in question are explained
- a description of how the grammar is formed, where appropriate, and its main uses are then explored, with translated examples
- in the final section of each chapter,
 - the grammar point is exemplified in passages that show how it works in context
 - a sequence of five exercises gives ample practice for students to test themselves.

In chapters where several different grammar areas are covered, the above sequence is followed for each point. Occasional illustrations show grammar ‘in action’.

The book also includes:

- a Glossary, provided at the beginning of the book, for those who are less familiar with grammar terms
- an Appendix describing Punctuation, accents and the French phonetic alphabet
- Verb tables
- Answers to the exercises

- an Index

In general, we have followed the conventions for explaining French grammar found in English grammars of French, pointing out some conceptual differences where appropriate (e.g. in Chapter 8, Verbs 1).

In 1990, new rules for spelling were agreed by Francophone countries, which are set out in the Rectifications orthographiques du français (1990). These rules, which we have summarized in the Appendix, affect such aspects as the hyphenation of numbers, the use of the circumflex accent and compound words. Since this reform of spelling is not prescriptive, and has not yet taken hold in France, we have chosen to follow the traditional rules.

It is often the case that incorrect usage of a given structure in the spoken language has become so widespread it is generally accepted. In cases of this kind we have pointed out that the structure is confined to speech. Similarly, we have indicated language that is employed only in formal circumstances or used in a literary or legal register. Where we feel the need to point to language that is ungrammatical, an asterisk is placed before the example.

Glossary of grammatical terms

Active and passive voice Sentences are either active or passive. In an active sentence, the subject carries out the action of the verb, e.g. Un juge l'a mis en examen (A judge investigated him). In the passive version of this example, what was the object of the active sentence, l' (him), becomes the subject of the passive verb, il (he), and the agent, juge (judge), appears after par: Il a été mis en examen par un juge (He was investigated by a judge). Verbs which take a direct object (transitive verbs) can be used in either an active or a passive way.

Adjective Adjectives are words used to describe nouns. In French, adjectives agree with nouns in gender and number, e.g. dix bouteilles vertes (ten green bottles). Vertes is a feminine plural adjective. Adjectives can either be attributive, i.e., stand next to the noun as in dix bouteilles vertes or predicative, i.e., separated from the noun they describe, e.g. Les bouteilles sont vertes (The bottles are green).

Adverb Adverbs give more information about a verb or another element in a sentence, such as an adjective or another adverb. Adverbs can tell you how, when, where and to what degree something happens or is, e.g. Elle travaille bien / tard / là / trop (She works well / late / there / too much); Il est complètement fou (He's quite mad).

Affirmative sentence An affirmative sentence is one in which we assert a fact or state agreement to something, as opposed to a negative one in which we refuse, deny, or contradict something.

Agreement Words change their form to 'be in agreement with' other words.

Verbs change according to whether the person speaking is 'I', 'you', 's/he', etc.: aller (to go) becomes je vais (I go), tu vas (you go), il / elle va (he / she goes), etc.

Determiners agree with nouns in gender and number: e.g. 'this' can be translated by three different forms according to the noun which follows: ce garçon (this boy), cet homme (this man), cette femme (this woman).

Adjectives also agree with nouns in gender and number: e.g. the adjective blanc in its masculine singular form is un vin blanc (a white wine) and in its feminine plural form des chemises blanches (white shirts).

A past participle in a compound verb agrees with a preceding direct object: Ta grand-mère? Je l'ai vue hier. (Your grandmother? I saw her yesterday).

Antecedent In a relative clause the antecedent is the preceding element to which the relative pronoun or adjective refers. In La fille que vous avez rencontrée hier est ma cousine (The girl you met yesterday is my cousin), the noun la fille is the antecedent and que the relative pronoun.

Article See Definite article, Indefinite article, Partitive article

Aspect 'Aspect' is a linguistic term which defines actions in relation to time, as perceived by the speaker. There is an opposition between those verb tenses that express actions in terms of the flow of time and those which are 'bounded' by time, i.e., do not have a sense of time passing. Je travaillais (I was working) describes the first type, J'ai travaillé (I worked) the second.

Auxiliary verb An auxiliary verb is a verb which combines with a participle or an infinitive, e.g. to form a compound tense. The two auxiliary verbs used in French are avoir, which precedes the majority of verbs, and être, which is used with 20 or so intransitive verbs, pronominal verbs and to form the passive voice: Elle a apporté les disques (She has brought the discs); Il est arrivé (He has arrived).

Cardinal number Cardinal numbers are those which refer to quantity, and are used for counting: dix (10), vingt-trois (23), huit cent quatre-vingt-douze (892), etc.

Clause A clause is part of a sentence which contains its own verb, but which does not necessarily make complete sense. There are two types of clause, ‘main’ and ‘subordinate’. A main clause has an independent meaning within the sentence; a subordinate clause cannot function independently without another clause. In Ils sont revenus parce qu’ils avaient oublié les clés de la maison (They came back because they had forgotten the house keys), the main clause Ils sont revenus can stand as the sentence on its own; the subordinate clause parce qu’ils avaient oublié les clés de la maison cannot stand independently.

Comparative Comparatives are adjectives and adverbs which emphasize a particular quality by comparing the degree to which two nouns possess that quality: La France est plus grande que la Belgique (France is bigger than Belgium); La plupart des fromages anglais sont moins forts que les français (Most English cheeses are less strong than French ones).

Complement A complement is a word or phrase that completes the meaning of a noun, verb, adjective or adverb.

Verb: Beaucoup de touristes visitent la cathédrale de Chartres. (Many tourists visit Chartres cathedral)

Noun: La voiture de mon père est en panne. (My father’s car has broken down)

Adjective: Il est jaloux de son frère. (He’s jealous of his brother)

Adverb: Il a bu trop de vin. (He’s drunk too much wine)

Compound tense See Tense

Conditional sentence A conditional sentence is a sentence which usually consists of two clauses, a subordinate clause introduced by the conjunction si (if) and a main clause: Si vous ne savez pas comment aller au centre sportif [subordinate clause] il faut demander à Charles [main clause]. (If you don’t know how to get to the sports centre, you should ask Charles.)

Conjugation A conjugation is a group of verbs. There are three such groups of regular verbs in French, which are distinguished by their infinitive endings. These endings are: (1) -er, e.g. parler (to speak), (2) -ir, e.g. finir (to finish), and (3) -re, -oir and some verbs in -ir, e.g. vendre (to sell) / concevoir (to conceive) / venir (to come).

Conjunction Conjunctions are words like et, mais and parce que, which link words, phrases or clauses, e.g. Georges et Amélie sont venus parce que tu voulais parler avec eux des vacances. (Georges and Amélie have come because you wanted to talk to them about the holidays)

- Copula A copula is a link verb, such as être and sembler, which joins the subject of a sentence to the predicate: Louis Pasteur était un fameux chimiste français (Louis Pasteur was a famous French chemist); Ça semble triste (That seems sad).
- Demonstrative We use demonstrative determiners and pronouns when we wish to point to a particular person, thing, etc.: ce, cet, cette, etc. (this, that, etc.)
- Demonstrative adjectives See Determiners
- Demonstrative pronouns See Pronouns
- Determiner Determiners are words placed before a noun to give it a context. Indefinite article: un / une / des (a, an, some); definite article: le / la / les (the); demonstrative adjective: ce / cet / cette / ces (this, that, those); possessive adjective: mon / ma / mes, etc. (my, etc.)
- Direct object See Object
- Exclamation Exclamations are words or sentences which express emotions, such as surprise, wonder, urgency, horror. J'en ai marre! (I'm fed up!); Allez!* (Come on!)
- Gender Words in French are either masculine or feminine in gender, e.g. *le tapis (carpet), *la vache (cow).
- Gerund The gerund in French has the same form as the present participle: parlant, finissant, écrivant. It is preceded by en and expresses an action which is simultaneous with that of the verb: En réfléchissant il souriait*. (While thinking he smiled)
- Imperative See Mood
- Impersonal verb Impersonal verbs are verbs whose subject has no particular identity, e.g. Il neige (It is snowing); Il est difficile de savoir quoi faire. (It is difficult to know what to do)
- Indefinite article The indefinite article (English: a / an / some) is used to indicate a person, animal, thing or idea that has not been previously mentioned e.g. un ordinateur (a computer), une voiture (a car), des pommes de terre ([some] potatoes).
- Indefinite pronoun Indefinite pronouns are words that do not refer to a specific person or thing, like quelqu'un (someone), personne (nobody, anybody).
- Indicative See Mood
- Indirect object See Object
- Infinitive The infinitive is the form of the verb given in dictionaries and which is not inflected. In English the infinitive consists of the word 'to' plus the verb, e.g. 'to grow'. French infinitives end in either -er, -ir, -re or -oir, e.g. regarder (to look at), choisir (to choose), écrire (to write), apercevoir (to perceive, to notice).
- Infix An infix is an element inserted into a verb, e.g. -iss- inserted into finir (to finish), to make the present participle, finissant.
- Interrogative pronoun Interrogative pronouns are words used to introduce questions, like qui? (who?), combien? (how much / many?) and pourquoi? (why?).
- Intransitive verb See Transitive and intransitive verbs

Inversion Inversion takes place when the normal order of words is inverted, as in questions: As-tu vu le film le plus récent de Klapisch? (Have you seen the latest film by Klapisch?)

Irregular verb See Regular and irregular verb

Main clause See Clause

Modal verb Modal verbs are semi-auxiliary verbs, like pouvoir (can, to be able to) and devoir (must, to have to), which are followed by the infinitive. Modal verbs communicate a particular mood or intention to the verb which follows. Je ne peux pas venir (I can't come); Je ne dois pas venir (I mustn't come).

Mood The following three moods of the verb are used to express differing ideas and emotions. These are:

Indicative. This mood is used for statements of fact and certainty: Il boit du café tous les matins (He drinks coffee every morning).

Imperative. This mood is used for commands. Commands are made in both the positive and the negative: Regarde! (Look!); Ne regarde pas en bas! (Don't look down!)

Subjunctive. This mood is for uncertainty, unreality, necessity, wishes and hopes: J'aimerais qu'ils viennent nous voir demain. (I would like them to come and see us tomorrow)

Negative sentence A negative sentence is one in which we refuse, deny, contradict or say 'no', e.g. Nous n'allons jamais au théâtre (We never go to the theatre).

Noun A noun is the name that we give to a person, animal, thing or idea. There are two types of noun: common, e.g. passager (passenger), renard (fox), chambre (room), philosophie (philosophy) and proper, which refer to particular persons, places, or objects, e.g. Depardieu, Les Alpes, Marseille, Crédit Agricole.

Number Number refers to words being singular or plural, e.g. le chien (dog), les chiens (dogs), la rue (street), les rues (streets).

Object A direct object is a word which receives the action of the verb directly, e.g. le repas in Elle a préparé le repas (She prepared the meal). An indirect object is one which receives the action of the verb indirectly, e.g. au policier in J'ai donné mon passeport au policier (I gave my passport to the policeman).

Ordinal number Ordinal numbers are used to arrange things in order: premier (first), deuxième (second), etc.

Participle See Past participle, Present participle

Partitive article The partitive article, du, de l', de la, des, is a determiner expressing the idea of 'some' with mass nouns and abstract nouns: du pain ([some] bread), de la beauté ([some] beauty).

Passive voice See Active and passive voice

Past participle The past participle is the form of the verb ending, for regular verbs, in -é (-er verbs) -i (-ir verbs) or -u (-re verbs): parler (to speak) → parlé (spoken); finir (to finish) → fini (finished); vendre (to sell) → vendu (sold). It has two main functions: as an adjective, e.g. la langue parlée (the spoken language) and as part of a verb, as in the compound past tense, e.g. J'ai vendu mon appartement (I've sold my flat).

Person Verb endings are always related to a subject, which can be in the first, second or third person, singular or plural:

je / j' (I) first person singular tu (you) familiar second person singular

il, elle (he, she, it) third person singular nous (we) first person plural vous (you) formal second person plural and polite second person singular

ils, elles (they) third person plural

Personal pronoun See Pronoun

Possessive Possessive determiners and pronouns tell us who is the possessor of something or show a relationship between different people, or people and things / ideas.

Possessive determiners See Determiner

Possessive pronouns See Pronoun

Preposition A preposition links one part of a sentence (e.g. a noun) with the rest of the sentence, e.g. près de in Le musée est près de la cathédrale. (The museum is near the cathedral). By changing the preposition we change the meaning of the sentence, e.g. by replacing près de by loin de (far from), dans (in) or en face de (opposite) in the example.

Present participle The present participle is the form of the verb ending in -ant; regardant (looking at), disant (saying), écrivant (writing).

Pronominal verb These are verbs like se laver, that are accompanied by a reflexive pronoun like me, te and se, etc. See Pronoun. The verb is only reflexive if the subject is the same as the object, e.g. Je me suis lavé très vite (I washed [myself] / got washed quickly).

Pronoun Pronouns stand in the place of nouns whenever it is unnecessary to refer to the noun. Personal pronouns appear in four main places in a sentence:

as the subject, je (I); as the direct object, me (me); as the indirect object, lui (to him / her / it); after a preposition, pour moi (for me).

Other types of pronouns are:

Demonstrative: celui, celle, etc. (the one). See Demonstrative

Interrogative: qui? (who?), quoi? (what?), etc. See Interrogative pronoun

Possessive: le mien (mine), le tien (yours), etc. See Possessive

Reflexive: me (myself), te (yourself), se (himself, herself, itself, oneself, themselves), etc. See Pronominal verb Relative: qui (who, which, that), que (who[m]), which, that, what), où (where), etc. See Relative clause

Quantifier Quantifiers are determiners that are placed before a noun to indicate amount or quantity: assez de (enough), beaucoup de (much, many), peu de (few).

Question words See Interrogative pronoun

Radical The radical of a verb is the part of the verb that does not normally change; the variable part of the verb is the ending, which changes with person, tense and mood. In parler (to speak), parl- is the radical and -er the ending; in choisir (to choose), chois- is the radical and -ir the ending. The radical carries the meaning of the verb.

Reciprocal sentence A reciprocal sentence is one in which the subjects of the verb are doing something to one another: Ils se félicitent (They congratulate each other).

Regular and irregular verb Regular verbs, e.g. parler (to speak), finir (to finish), vendre (to sell), conform to predictable models in the formation of the different tenses. If you know that a verb is regular you can work out from the model the form that you need. Irregular verbs do not always conform to a predictable model for their formation and so it is important to learn their forms. Many common verbs, such as aller (to go), venir (to come), savoir (to know) are irregular. Tables of irregular verbs are on pp. 399–417.

Relative clause Relative clauses are subordinate clauses introduced by relative pronouns like qui (who, which, that). They refer back to a previous element in the sentence, called the antecedent, and they link two clauses together, e.g. Le garçon qui m'a accompagné au match s'appelle Pierre. (The boy who / that went with me to the match is called Pierre). The antecedent is Le garçon.

Semi-auxiliary verb Semi-auxiliary verbs such as aller (to go), devoir (to have to), pouvoir (to be able to), venir (to come) lose their full meaning when followed by another verb in the infinitive. They express nuances of tense and mood: Le train va partir. (The train is about to depart); Je ne peux pas chanter (I can't sing).

Sentence A sentence is a group of words arranged so as to make a comprehensible meaning. The order of words in a sentence varies from one language to another.

Sentences can be:

Simple, i.e., consist of a single clause with a subject and a predicate, e.g. Il a bu de l'eau (He drank some water), which may be modified by additional elements such as adverbs and prepositional phrases: Après la course il a bu de l'eau à grands traits (After the race he drank some water thirstily).

Compound, i.e., consist of two or more clauses: a main clause and one or more subordinate clauses. Typically, clauses are joined by conjunctions like parce que: Il a bu de l'eau [main clause], parce qu'il avait soif [subordinate clause] (He drank some water because he was thirsty). Relative pronouns are frequently used to join two clauses: Les gens qui habitaient la vieille maison ne sortaient guère (The people who lived in the old house scarcely went out).

The most important word in a sentence is normally the verb. Other components are nouns, determiners, adjectives, adverbs, pronouns and prepositions. Typical complements of the verb may be a direct object, an indirect object or a prepositional phrase.

Sentences may be affirmative or negative. They can take the form of questions and commands: Qu'est-ce que tu fais là? Sors! (What are you doing here? Get out!)

Subject The subject is the word or group of words which determines the verb ending, e.g. in Les gosses jouaient dans la rue (The kids were playing in the street), the subject Les gosses is plural so the verb is in the plural. In active sentences the subject usually carries out the action of the verb: Gérard a construit le mur (Gérard built the wall). In passive sentences the subject receives the action of the verb: Le mur a été construit par Gérard (The wall was built by Gérard).

Subjunctive mood See Mood

Subordinate clause See Clause

Superlative The superlative is an adjective or adverb used when we are referring to a quality in its greatest possible degree, e.g. la femme la plus âgée du monde (the oldest woman in the world).

Tense Tense refers to the time when an action took place, whether present, future or past. As in English, tenses in French can be simple, i.e., consist of one word, e.g. Je sais (I know) or compound, i.e., consist of more than one word, e.g. Je suis venu (I have come).

the simple tenses are: Present, Future, Conditional, Simple past and Imperfect, e.g. the Present: Je sais (I know); the Imperfect: Je savais (I knew).

Compound tenses consist of an auxiliary verb, either avoir or être plus a participle e.g. the Compound past: Elle a commencé son travail (She's started her job); the Pluperfect: Maurice était arrivé (Maurice had arrived).

Transitive and intransitive verbs A verb is called transitive when it has a direct object, as does the verb voir in Tu vois cette peinture? (Do you see that painting?). An intransitive verb is one that does not have a direct object, as in Il dort. (He's sleeping)

Nouns are words that we use to label living beings, things, feelings, ideas or actions:

Charles, enfant, chien, livre, poubelle, amour, économie, construction

KEY POINTS

- All nouns in French, without exception, are either masculine or feminine in gender:

lion (m), lionne (f), bâtiment (m), maison (f)

In some cases nouns may be of either gender:

un / une élève, un / une enfant, un / une artiste

- Nouns are either singular or plural; the plural is usually indicated by a change in the ending of the word:

lion (sing.) → lions (pl.)

lionne (sing.) → lionnes (pl.)

- Nouns decide the gender and number of any determiners that precede them, such as mon, les, la:

Mon frère aîné a peint les murs de la cuisine.

My older brother painted the kitchen walls.

- Nouns determine whether a following verb is singular or plural:

*Mon frère aîné a peint les murs de la cuisine;
mes sœurs cadettes ont peint le plafond.*

My older brother painted the kitchen walls;
my younger sisters painted the ceiling.

- When a noun is accompanied by determiners and adjectives a noun phrase is formed:

le petit cheval blanc

the little white horse

- All nouns are either proper nouns or common nouns

Nouns can be categorized in different types. These are:

- 1 Concrete and abstract nouns
- 2 'Count' and 'mass' nouns
- 3 Collective nouns
- 4 Simple nouns and compound nouns

Proper nouns and common nouns

Proper nouns

Proper nouns designate things or beings that are unique, such as a specific person, country, town or place. They always begin with a capital letter, as in English: Marie-France, Louis XIV, Marseille, l'Angleterre, Eurodisney.

Some proper nouns are preceded by the definite article:

la Bretagne	Brittany
l'Amérique	America
le Mont-Blanc	Mont Blanc
la Nouvelle-Zélande	New Zealand
la Seine	the Seine
la Terre	the Earth

Common nouns

All other nouns are common nouns: they designate things or beings that are not unique. They are usually preceded by a determiner:

le lion; chaque lion; tous les lions; une élève; cette élève

Note

Some proper nouns can become common nouns, in which case they may be preceded by the indefinite article:

- 1 un bottin is a telephone directory that derives from the name of its founder, Sébastien Bottin.
- 2 un camembert is a cheese that comes from the village of Camembert, in Normandy.
- 3 un lycée is named after the Lycée (Lyceum) in Ancient Greece, where Aristotle taught.

and vice versa, some common nouns can become proper nouns:

- 1 Le Débarquement, from the word for 'disembarkation', refers to the Normandy landings in 1944.
- 2 La Libération, referring to the Liberation of Paris in 1944, derives from the common noun meaning 'freeing, release'.
- 3 La Révolution française is a particular revolution that began in 1789.

1.1 Types of nouns

While all nouns are either common or proper, various types of noun can be distinguished. The main ones are:

1.1.1 Concrete nouns and abstract nouns

Concrete nouns are nouns that have physical existence (i.e., you can see or touch them).

Abstract nouns are nouns that do not have a physical existence (i.e., you cannot see or touch them).

Concrete nouns		Abstract nouns
livre	book	bonheur	happiness
maison	house	connaissances	knowledge
ordinateur	computer	joie	joy
vache	cow	tristesse	sadness

In general, all common nouns in French, including abstract nouns, are accompanied by the definite article.

Tout le monde cherche le bonheur.

Everyone looks for happiness.

En vieillissant, la mémoire diminue.

Memory deteriorates as we grow older.

But when the abstract noun has a complement, a definite article is also used in English:

Le design des meubles suit les modes.

The design of furniture follows fashion.

1.1.2 'Count' nouns and 'mass' nouns

In the following sentences:

Virginie avait plus de pommes que Jean-Charles.

Virginie had more apples than Jean-Charles.

Virginie avait plus de tact que Jean-Charles.

Virginie had more tact than Jean-Charles.

The noun pommes can be counted and is in the plural. This type of noun is called 'countable' or 'count' and can be used either in the singular or the plural.

The noun 'tact', on the other hand, designates an entity that cannot be counted (you cannot have *two 'tacts'), and is in the singular. This type of noun is called 'non-countable' or 'mass', and does not usually have a plural form.

Mass nouns frequently designate substances: bois (wood), café (coffee), lait (milk), sel (salt). These nouns may be used in the plural but in this case their meaning changes: trois cafés = three cups of coffee, or three different types of coffee.

Mass nouns cannot be preceded by the indefinite article or a number. They are preceded by other determiners such as the partitive article (see 2.5) du / de la, des, and expressions like un peu de and plus / moins de. You can say:

J'ai ajouté du sel / plus de sel / deux pincées de sel dans la soupe.	I've added some / more / two pinches of salt to the soup.
--	---

but NOT

*J'ai ajouté deux sels dans la soupe.	*I've added two salts to the soup.
--	------------------------------------

I.1.3 Collective nouns

Collective nouns refer to groups of people, animals or things:

le bétail	cattle
l'équipe	team
le mobilier	furniture
la police	the police
une douzaine	a dozen
la majorité	the majority
la plupart	most

These nouns are followed by a verb in the singular, unlike in English where they are often followed by the plural.

La police était sur les lieux, elle a tout vu.	The police were on the spot; they saw it all.
Le bétail ne transmet la fièvre aphtheuse que pendant une brève durée.	Cattle only transmit foot and mouth disease for a short time.

Note

When a collective noun is followed by a complement in the plural it may be followed by the singular or the plural, depending on the focus of the speaker.

Un groupe de chômeurs plutôt réduit s'est présenté.	A rather small group of unemployed workers appeared.

Here the verb is in the singular. For the speaker, what matters is the idea of the group as a whole.

Un groupe de chômeurs bien indemnisés sont entrés dans la pièce.	A group of well-compensated unemployed workers entered the room.
---	--

Here the verb is in the plural. For the speaker it is the workers as individuals that matter and not the group.

The meaning or the intention of the speaker is therefore the prime factor in determining whether a singular or a plural verb is used. If the action is collective, a singular verb is used; if the speaker wants to focus on the action carried out by the members of the group, the plural is used.

1.1.4 Simple nouns and compound nouns

Nouns are either simple or compound:

Simple nouns consist of one word: arbre (tree), agriculteur (farmer), engrais (fertiliser)

Compound nouns may be written as:

- one word

gentilhomme (= gentil + homme) (archaic) gentleman

passeport (= passe + port)

passport

- two words that are juxtaposed

État membre

Member state

cas limite

borderline case

- two words separated by a hyphen

sourd-muet

deaf mute

après-midi afternoon

- two words linked by a preposition, which may be hyphenated pomme de terre potato

brosse à dents toothbrush

arc-en-ciel

rainbow

tête-à-tête

tête-à-tête

1.1.5 Gens

- The word gens is a mass noun which is found only in the plural form. You cannot say trois gens* or quelques gens*; in these cases personnes has to be used instead: trois personnes, quelques personnes.

Gens has to be used when referring to people collectively:

Aujourd'hui les gens ne croient plus à rien.

People don't believe in anything these days.

- Gens may be preceded by beaucoup / peu de, tous les ..., tant de, la majorité des ... and certaines ...

Il y avait tant de gens qu'on ne pouvait pas respirer.

There were so many people that you couldn't breathe.

Peu de gens visitent le monument.

Few people visit the monument.

I.1.6 Acronyms and abbreviations

Acronyms

There are two kinds of acronyms:

- words consisting of the first letter of each of several words. These acronyms (known as acronymes or sigles in French) are written in capital letters, each one followed by a full stop. The letters are pronounced separately.

H.L.M. (habitation à loyer modéré)	(council housing estate)
S.N.C.F. (Société nationale des chemins de fer français)	(French railway company)

- Words that are pronounced like ordinary words. These acronyms do not have full stops.

OTAN or Otan (Organisation du traité de l'Atlantique Nord)	NATO
Ovni (objet volant non identifié)	UFO
Sida (syndrome d'immunodéficience acquise)	Aids (or AIDS)

Abbreviations

An abbreviation is the shortened part of a word: M^{me} = Madame

The following rules apply:

If the abbreviation does not include the final letter of the word, it finishes with a full stop:

Réf. = référence
M. = Monsieur
hab. = habitant
dép. = département
env. = environ
etc. = et cetera
adj. = adjectif
fém. = féminin
masc. = masculin

If the abbreviation includes the last letter of the word, there is no full stop:

Dr = Docteur en médecine, bd = boulevard ave = avenue
n° = numéro

Abbreviations relating to measurements do not end in a full stop, even if they do not include the final letter:

min = minute(s)
V = volt(s) kg = kilogramme(s) km / h = kilomètre(s) par heure
A = ampère(s)

1.1.7 Shortened words

As in English, some long words are commonly used in a shortened form because of their frequency. There are two ways of shortening a word:

- the end of the word is cut off:

vélo (vélocipède)	bike
photo (photographie)	photo
métro (métropolitain)	metro, underground
auto (automobile)	car
ado (adolescent)	adolescent (informal)

- the beginning of the word is cut off:

car (autocar)	coach
bus (omnibus)	bus
chandail (This word has its origin in a special jumper worn by a marchand d'ail)	sweater

1.2 Gender

It is not always possible to predict the gender of a given noun and so students should get into the habit of learning the noun together with its article: for example, un timbre (a postage stamp) and une forêt (a forest), rather than timbre and forêt. Helpful guidelines exist for predicting the gender of groups of nouns, as explained in this section, but there are often exceptions to the rule.

Nouns may be classified in two broad groups: those referring to the gender of animate beings, and those referring to inanimate objects.

1.2.1 Gender of animate beings

- Generally nouns that refer to human beings are masculine or feminine according to their sex:

un homme	man
un fils	son
le père	father
une femme	woman
une fille	girl, daughter
la mère	mother

- Likewise the gender of some nouns that refer to animals is predictable:

un étalon	stallion
une jument	mare

but most animals are either masculine or feminine without reference to their sex: for example, une souris (mouse) and une baleine (whale) have no separate masculine form; un chimpanzé (chimpanzee), un crocodile (crocodile) have no separate feminine form. If you want to refer to the other sex you have to say une souris mâle, un chimpanzé femelle.

- As a rule the names of species of animals are masculine:

un mammifère	mammal
un poisson	fish
un oiseau	bird
un dinosaure	dinosaur
l'homme	man

- The young of animals are also usually masculine:

un chien	dog	une chienne	bitch	un chiot	puppy
un chat	cat	une chatte	female cat	un chaton	kitten
		une carpe	carp	un carpeau	young carp

but in some cases there are separate forms for masculine and feminine young:

un aigle	eagle	un aiglon	eaglet	une aiglonne	eaglet
un cheval	horse	un poulain	foal	une poulliche	filly
une vache	cow	un veau	calf	une génisse	heifer

- A few nouns are of either masculine or feminine gender only, but may refer to men or women.

une personne	person
un témoin	witness
une star	star (in the sense of a pop star)
une victime	victim

Paul était un témoin exceptionnel.

Paul was an exceptional witness.

Alain Souchon est une star encore appréciée en France aujourd'hui.

Alain Souchon is a star still liked in France today.

- Some nouns can be either masculine or feminine depending on whether they refer to the male or female sex.

un enfant, une enfant	child
un élève, une élève	pupil
un collègue, une collègue	colleague
un secrétaire, une secrétaire	secretary un fonctionnaire, une fonctionnaire un journaliste, une journaliste civil servant

 journalist

1.2.2 Gender of inanimate nouns

The gender of inanimate nouns is arbitrary:

un toit	roof	but	une toiture	roofing
le théâtre	theatre	but	la poésie	poetry
le cinéma	cinema	but	la littérature	literature
le pied	foot	but	la main	hand
le bras	arm	but	la jambe	leg
le genou	knee	but	la cheville	ankle

It is possible however to detect a certain logic in some cases: with objects that are related conceptually the bigger one is masculine, the smaller feminine.

un camion	lorry	une voiture	car
un bateau	boat, ship	une barque	small boat
un portail	gate	une porte	door

But

un vélo	bike	une bicyclette	bicycle	une moto(cyclette)	motorbike
----------------	------	-----------------------	---------	---------------------------	-----------

1.2.3 Gender of products and means of transport

A useful way of remembering the gender of a product or a means of transport which derives from a noun is that it takes the gender of the 'group' noun it is identified with.

Product/means of transport		Origin
Wines
un bordeaux	un vin (wine)	Bordeaux	a city
un bourgogne	un vin	la Bourgogne	a region
un champagne	un vin	la Champagne	a region
Cheeses
un camembert	un fromage (cheese)	Camembert	a village in Normandy
un brie	un fromage	la Brie	a region
un chèvre	un fromage	une chèvre	a she-goat

Product/means of transport		Origin
un hollande	un fromage	la Hollande	a country
Means of transport
une Renault	une voiture (car)	Renault	a car manufacturer
un Renault	un camion / un autobus (lorry / bus)	Renault	a car manufacturer
le Concorde	un avion (aeroplane)	la concorde	an abstract concept
le Titanic	un bateau (boat)	les Titans	Greek mythology
Other terms
un canon	un appareil photos (camera)	Canon	a company
un MacIntosh	un ordinateur (computer)	une MacIntosh	a type of apple
une kanterbräu	une bière (beer)	Kanterbräu	a brasserie near Paris
un chine	un papier de luxe (paper)	la Chine	a country

1.2.4 Recognition of masculine gender by the endings of words

Nouns ending in the following letters are masculine:

Masculine endings	Main exceptions
-ail, -eil, -ueil, -l, -al : travail work portail gate soleil sun réveil waking accueil welcome cheval horse journal newspaper appel call sol ground

Masculine endings	Main exceptions
-ment : argument argument développement development ciment cement
-eau bureau desk, office château castle	eau water peau skin
-oi : émoi commotion roi king emploi job	foi faith loi law paroi partition
-oir : comptoir counter désespoir despair miroir mirror rasoir razor soir evening
-on : salon sitting-room saucisson sausage cornichon gherkin rayon ray, shelf sermon sermon soupçon suspicion	leçon lesson façon way prison prison
-t : sabot clog habitat habitat chocolat chocolate poulet chicken	forêt forest nuit night dent tooth part share plupart most

1.2.5 Masculine gender according to the meaning of the noun

- Days of the week, months and seasons

le lundi	Monday
le mardi	Tuesday
avril*	April
juillet*	July
le printemps	spring
un hiver	a / one winter

* months are only used with the definite article when there is a complement:

Le janvier de l'année dernière était plus doux. January last year was milder.

- Metals

le fer	iron
le plomb	lead
l'or	gold
le zinc	zinc

- Trees and shrubs

un pommier	apple tree

1.2.7 Feminine gender according to the meaning of the noun (see also 1.2.3)

Sciences, school and university subjects, arts, areas of knowledge

la géographie	geography
la chimie	chemistry
la physique	physics
la psychologie	psychology
l'informatique	computer science
la peinture	painting
l'architecture	architecture

1.2.8 Feminine nouns which are derived from masculine ones

- The usual way of forming feminine nouns is by adding -e to the masculine:

un Anglais	Englishman	une Anglaise	Englishwoman
un savant	wise man	une savante	wise woman
un étudiant	male student	une étudiante	female student
un voisin	male neighbour	une voisine	female neighbour

- Masculine nouns that end in -e have the same form in the feminine:

un camarade	(male) friend	une camarade	(female) friend
un élève	(male) pupil	une élève	(female) pupil
un secrétaire	(male) secretary	une secrétaire	(female) secretary

Exceptions

A number of masculine nouns ending in -e have their feminine in -esse:

un maître	master	une maîtresse	mistress
un tigre	tiger	une tigresse	tigress
un prince	prince	une princesse	princess
un comte	count	une comtesse	countess
un âne	ass	une ânesse	she-ass

- Masculine nouns ending in -er and -ier have their feminine in -ère and -ière:

le boulanger	(male) baker	la boulangère	(female) baker
le boutiquier	(male) shopkeeper	la boutiquière	(female) shopkeeper

- Masculine nouns ending in -eur have their feminine in -euse:

un vendeur – une vendeuse	salesman / -woman
un tricheur – une tricheuse	cheat

- Masculine nouns ending in -teur have their feminine in -trice or -teuse:

un spectateur – une spectatrice	spectator
un rédacteur – une rédactrice	editor
un directeur – une directrice	director
un admirateur – une admiratrice	admirer
un collaborateur – une collaboratrice	collaborator
un aviateur – une aviatrice	aviator
un tuteur – une tutrice	tutor
un chanteur – une chanteuse	singer
un acheteur – une acheteuse	buyer
un conteur – une conteuse	storyteller

1.2.10 Animate nouns which have separate forms for the male and the female

le père – la mère	father – mother
le fils – la fille	son – daughter
le parrain – la marraine	godfather – godmother
le mari – la femme	husband – wife
l'homme – la femme	man – woman
l'étalon – la jument	stallion – mare
le taureau – la vache	bull – cow
le frère – la sœur	brother – sister
l'oncle – la tante	uncle – aunt
un monsieur – une dame	gentleman – lady
un coq – une poule	cock – hen
un bélier – une brebis	ram – ewe
un neveu – une nièce	nephew – niece
un copain – une copine	(boy)friend – (girl)friend
un duc – une duchesse	duke – duchess
un roi – une reine	king – queen

1.2.11 The names of professions

Traditionally, most professions in France have not had feminine forms but recent changes in social attitudes have led to new feminine forms being created. These forms are gradually becoming accepted, despite some disagreement among linguists.

Note

la ministre (minister), as an alternative to Madame le Ministre

la juge (judge), as an alternative to Madame le Juge un médecin (doctor). For a woman doctor, une femme médecin or un médecin is used (médecine refers to the science of medicine)

un écrivain (writer); une écrivaine is in common use un auteur (author); une auteure is used in Quebec only

In Quebec, by contrast with France, the use of feminine titles is very widespread, accepted and often compulsory. There are uses that appear only rarely in France, such as la docteure (woman doctor), even though the feminine of docteur, doctoresse, already exists, la médecin, la gouverneure (woman governor), la ministre (female minister), la première ministre (woman prime minister), la mairesse (or la maire) (mayoress), etc.

1.2.12 Nouns which change their meaning according to their gender

Masculine	Feminine
un aigle eagle	une aigle eagle (military insignia, e.g. les aigles romaines Roman eagles)
un crêpe crepe	une crêpe pancake
un geste gesture	la geste gest(e) (epic exploits, as in chanson de geste)
un critique critic	une critique criticism
un gîte shelter, self-catering cottage	la gîte bed (nautical term)
un greffe Office of Clerk of Court	une greffe graft, transplant
un livre book	une livre pound in money and weight (approx. ½ kilo)
un manche handle	une manche sleeve; La Manche English Channel
un manœuvre unskilled worker	une manœuvre manœuvre
un mémoire dissertation, memo	la mémoire memory
un mode mode	une mode fashion
un moule mould	une moule mussel
un mousse ship's apprentice	une mousse moss, foam
un page page boy	une page page (of book)
un parallèle parallel (Geog., e.g. of latitude)	une parallèle a parallel line
un pendule pendulum	une pendule clock
le physique physical appearance	la physique physics
un poste position	la poste post office
un solde credit /debit balance	une solde pay
le pourpre crimson	la pourpre purple
un tour turn, round, revolution (le Tour de France – annual cycle race)	une tour tower e.g. la Tour Eiffel
un vase vase	la vase sludge
un voile veil	une voile sail

Notes

un hymne (hymn) is masculine when it designates a song glorifying a hero or a people, and either masculine or feminine when it designates a religious chant / song.

Pâque (Passover) without -s, designating the Jewish festival, is feminine: la Pâque juive.

Pâques (Easter) with -s, designating the Christian festival, is masculine singular but it is always feminine when plural.

Quand Pâques sera venu ...

When Easter comes...

Joyeuses Pâques!

Happy Easter!

personne (person) is feminine when it designates an individual: C'est une personne intelligente. (S/he's an intelligent person), and masculine when it is an indefinite pronoun meaning 'no one':

Personne n'est venu.

No one has come.

1.2.13 Nouns of variable gender: amour, délice and orgue

These words are masculine in the singular and feminine in the plural:

le parfait amour

perfect love

les premières amours

first love

un vrai délice

a real delight

les vraies délices

(literary) true delight(s) un petit orgue

a small organ

les grandes orgues

the great organ

1.2.14 Plural of gens

Adjectives following the noun gens (people) are masculine plural:

des gens intelligents

intelligent people

Adjectives preceding the noun are feminine plural:

toutes ces vieilles gens

all these old people

Note

When the adjective has the same form in the masculine and the feminine (e.g. brave), the adjective is in the masculine:

tous ces braves gens

all these good people

1.2.15 Countries, regions, towns

● Countries and regions

The names of countries and provinces which do not end in -ie or -e are masculine:

L'Iran, le Vietnam, le Japon, le Sri Lanka, le Sénégal, le Congo, le Vénézuéla, le Canada, le Québec

The names of countries and provinces which end in -ie or -e are feminine. They are the majority:

L'Allemagne, la Suisse, la Turquie, la Colombie, la Chine

Exceptions

le Cambodge, le Mexique, le Zaïre, le Maine, le Mozambique

● Towns

The proper names of towns are in principle masculine, but this is far from being a general rule. Sometimes the same town even has two genders.

Marseille est beau.

Marseilles is beautiful.

la Rome antique

Ancient Rome

le Rome des années 70

Rome of the 70s

The last syllable of the name can sometimes help to identify gender. If the last vowel of the word is silent [ə], as in the English word 'college', the town will usually be feminine.

la Florence des Médicis

the Florence of the Medicis

Bruxelles, ma belle

my beautiful Brussels (song)

Salamanque est une vieille ville espagnole.

Salamanca is an old Spanish town.

Exception

le vieux Londres

old London

If the last syllable of the name is 'sounded', the town is usually masculine.

Alger est parfumé le soir et Paris est mystérieux la nuit.

Algiers is scented in the evening and Paris is mysterious by night.

Towns which already have an article as part of their names keep the gender of the article:

Roche-la-Molière, La Ciotat, Le Caire, Le Puy-en-Velay, La Haye, La Rochelle, Le Mans

The gender of towns with adjectives or common nouns as part of their name is more easily identifiable:

Louvain-la-Neuve, Vieux-Condé, La Grande Motte, Port-Leucate, Port Bou, La Nouvelle-Orléans

Towns which are, or include, the names of saints have the gender of the saint in question:

Saint Etienne, Saintes-Maries-de-la-Mer, Sainte Ségolène, Saint Joseph

However, in literary language, you often find that names of towns are feminine. Le Bon usage (Grévisse, Duculot, Paris 1980) gives numerous examples (p. 267): Strasbourg blessée (wounded Strasbourg) (Fr. Ambrière, Les Grandes vacances, p. 376), whether they end with a silent or a voiced syllable.

There is a good deal of uncertainty in this area. The best way to get round the difficulty of gender is to say la ville de Madrid, la ville de Marseille (the town of ...) etc.

1.2.16 Compound nouns

In general, compound nouns are masculine.

There are rules which help to identify the gender of a compound noun.

- If the compound noun is composed of two nouns it takes the gender of the first noun:

un chou-fleur une station-service un timbre-poste une pause-café un appui-tête un soutien-gorge un portrait-robot
un drap-housse

cauliflower petrol station postage stamp coffee break head-rest bra identikit picture fitted sheet

- If the compound noun is composed of two feminine nouns it is usually feminine:

une porte-fenêtre
une moissonneuse-batteuse

French window
 combine harvester

- If the first component is a verb the noun is usually masculine:

un chasse-neige
un brise-glace
un allume-cigare un coupe-vent un essuie-tout un garde-boue un croque-madame snowplough icebreaker cigar lighter windbreak paper towel mudguard

 ham and cheese sandwich with a fried egg

un tire-bouchon

corkscrew

un coupe-faim

appetite suppressant

un rendez-vous

appointment, date

But

une garde-robe

wardrobe (masculine in Canadian French)

- If the first component is an adverb, an adjective or a preposition, the compound noun usually takes the gender of the second component:

un avant-bras

forearm

une arrière-garde

rearguard

un sous-sol basement

une sous-tasse

saucer

un haut-parleur

loudspeaker

un beau-père

father-in-law

une grand-tante great-aunt une plate-bande

flower bed

un avant-poste

outpost une demi-finale

semi-final

un demi-dieu

demigod

But

un (four) micro-onde

microwave (oven)

un en-tête heading

un après-guerre

post-war years

un rouge-gorge

robin

un or une après-midi (masculine or feminine)

an afternoon

- If the first component is mi-, the noun is usually feminine:

la mi-décembre

mid-December

une mi-temps

half-time (sport)

But

un mi-temps

part-time (at work)

- If the compound noun is composed of foreign words (English, German, etc.), the word is usually masculine:

le hand-ball (or le handball)

handball

un attaché-case attaché case

un week-end

weekend

But

in the case of a man or a woman, the gender of his / her sex prevails:

une cover-girl; une pin-up; un cow-boy; un businessman

- If the compound noun is composed of two verbs or a phrase, its gender is masculine:

un va-et-vient
un laissez-passer
un sot-l'y-laisse

two-way switch; comings and goings pass oyster (poultry)

1.3 Number

- The plural of most nouns is formed as in English, by adding 's' to the singular:

un jour – des jours une semaine – des semaines day(s)

 week(s)

Note

French differs from English in that the final 's' is not pronounced; singular and plural sound the same.

- The plural applies when the noun denotes two or more things:

deux mètres two metres

But

1,9 mètre 1.9 metres

1.3.1 Nouns ending in -s, -z and -x

These nouns are the same in the singular and the plural:

un bus	des bus	bus(es)
une noix	des noix	nut(s)
un nez	des nez	nose(s)

1.3.2 Nouns ending in -au, -eau, -eu, -œu

These nouns add -x to form their plural:

un anneau	des anneaux	ring(s)
un jeu	des jeux	game(s)
un tuyau	des tuyaux	pipe(s)
un vœu	des vœux	vow(s)

Exceptions

un bleu	des bleus	blue colour(s); bruise(s)
un émeu	des émeus	emu(s)
un landau	des landaus	pram(s)
un pneu	des pneus	tyre(s)

Note: Les Bleus also is the popular name given to French national teams in a number of sports, especially football and rugby.

I.3.3 Nouns ending in -ou

In general these nouns form their plural with -s:

un clou	des clous	nail(s)
un coucou	des coucous	cuckoo(s)

Exceptions

The following seven nouns form their plural in -oux:

un bijou	des bijoux	jewel(s)
un caillou	des cailloux	stone(s)
un chou	des choux	cabbage(s)
un genou	des genoux	knee(s)
un hibou	des hiboux	owl(s)
un joujou	des joujoux	toy(s)
un pou	des poux	louse / lice

I.3.4 Nouns ending in -al

These nouns form their plural -aux:

un journal	des journaux	newspaper(s)
un cheval	des chevaux	horse(s)
un terminal d'ordinateur	des terminaux d'ordinateur	computer terminal(s)

Exceptions

The following nouns ending in -al form their plural in -s:

un bal	des bals	dance(s), ball(s)
un cal	des cals	callus(es)
un carnaval	des carnavals	carnival(s)
un cérémonial	des cérémonials	ceremonial(s)
un chacal	des chacals	jackal(s)
un étal	des étals	(market) stall(s)
un festival	des festivals	festival(s)
un récital	des récitals	recital(s)
un régál	des régals	delight(s)

Note

un idéal	des idéaux or des idéals	ideal(s)
-----------------	---------------------------------	----------

I.3.5 Nouns ending -ail

Most of these nouns form their plural in -ails:

un chandail	des chandails	sweater(s)
un détail	des détails	detail(s)
un épouvantail	des épouvantails	scarecrow(s)

Exceptions

A number of nouns ending in -ail form their plural in -aux. The seven most common of these nouns are:

un bail	des baux	lease(s)
un corail	des coraux	coral(s)
un émail	des émaux	enamel(s)
un soupirail	des soupiraux	(cellar) window(s)
un travail	des travaux	work(s)
un vantail	des vantaux	(cupboard) door(s)
un vitrail	des vitraux	stained-glass window(s)

Notes

le bétail (livestock) is a mass noun and so has no plural form.

l'ail (garlic) has two plural forms: aulx and ails (when referring to the botanic family)

1.3.6 Nouns with two plural forms: ciel, œil, aïeul

- un ciel des ciels / des cieux sky(ies), heaven(s)

Des ciels is the ‘true’ plural form. It is used especially for pictorial representation of the sky or for climate:

Les ciels de Van Gogh ont des couleurs plus vives que ceux de Monet. Van Gogh’s skies have brighter colours than Monet’s.

Des ciels chargés de nuages menaçants. Skies full of threatening clouds.

Des cieux is literary or religious. Its meaning is synonymous with the singular form.

Laissez venir à moi les petits enfants car le Royaume des cieux est à ceux qui leur ressemblent. Let the little children come to me because the kingdom of heaven belongs to such as these.

- un aïeul des aïeuls grandfather / grandparent(s)

Notes

Bisaïeulle (great-grandfather/mother) and trisaïeulle (great-great-grandfather/mother) form their plural by adding ‘s’: bisaïeuls, trisaïeuls.

Aïeux means ‘ancestors’ and has no singular form in this meaning.

Un de ses aïeux était viking. One of her ancestors was a Viking.

- un œil

The plural of un œil (eye) is des yeux.

Il a les yeux bleus. He has blue eyes.

The plural des œils exists but only in compound nouns: des œils-de-bœuf (bull’s eyes).

1.3.7 Abbreviations, acronyms and symbols

- Abbreviations do not take 's' in the plural except in a few cases:

un village de 1000 hab. (habitants)	a village of 1000 inhabitants
un livre de 250 p. (250 pages)	a book of 250 pages

Exceptions

Mmes (mesdames)	plural of 'madam', 'Mrs'
n^{os} (numéros)	plural of 'number'
Drs (docteurs)	doctors
éts (établissements)	establishments

- If the abbreviation consists only of the first letter, that letter can be doubled to form the plural:

MM. (messieurs)	plural of 'monsieur', 'Mr'
pp. (pages)	plural of 'pages'

- Ordinal numbers:

1^{ers} = premiers	first
2^{es} = deuxièmes, second(e)s	second
3^{es} = troisièmes	third

- abbreviations of symbols do not have a plural form:

des km	plural of 'kilometre'
un immeuble de 30m	a 30-metre high building

- Acronyms in capital letters do not have a plural form, but if they are written like a normal noun they do form a plural:

Les A.N.P.E. ont été remplacées par les agences Pôle emploi. The ANPE have been replaced by the Pôle emploi agencies (job centres).

Il y a des lasers de différentes couleurs. There are lasers of different colours.

- Nouns which are shortened words form a plural:

des kilos de riz (kilogrammes)	kilos of rice
des dactylos (dactylographes)	typists
des autos (automobiles)	cars

1.3.8 Nouns not normally used in the plural

- Names of disciplines and branches of knowledge in science or the arts:

la politique	politics
l'économie	economics
l'informatique	information science

la physique	physics
la littérature	literature
la sculpture	sculpture

Note

These nouns may be used in the plural when qualified in some way:

les littératures africaines	African literatures
les sculptures de Rodin	Rodin's sculptures

Exceptions

les mathématiques	mathematics
les sciences humaines	human sciences
les sciences naturelles	natural sciences
les beaux-arts	fine arts

● Names of sports

le basket	basketball
le foot	football
le volley	volleyball

1.3.9 Nouns and expressions which have no singular form

● Common nouns:

des arrhes (f)	deposit
des chips (m)	crisps
des environs (m)	surroundings
des fiançailles (f)	engagement
des funérailles (f)	funeral
des gens (m or f)	people
des gravats (m)	rubble
des honoraires (m)	fees
des mœurs (f)	customs
des préparatifs (m)	preparations
des ténèbres (f)	darkness

Expressions:

les pertes et profits	profit and loss
les dommages et intérêts	damages (law)
les Jeux olympiques	the Olympics

1.3.10 Nouns which have a singular form but are used more often in the plural

les applaudissements (m)	applause
les félicitations (f)	congratulations
les pourparlers (m)	negotiations
les représailles (f)	reprisals
les déchets (m)	refuse
les déboires (m)	problems
les broussailles (f)	brush

- The names of classifications of plants and animals:

les liliacées (f)	liliaceous plants
les mammifères (m)	mammals
les équidés (m)	the horse family

- A number of geographical names:

les Antilles	the West Indies
les Alpes	the Alps

1.3.11 Nouns which can have a different meaning in the plural

un ciseau	chisel	des ciseaux	scissors
une lettre	letter	les lettres	humanities, letters
une lunette	toilet seat	des lunettes	glasses
une vacance	vacancy	des vacances	holidays

1.3.12 Words used in both the singular and the plural

- Nouns like jumelles (f) (binoculars), guillemets (m) (inverted commas) indicating things composed of two similar parts, are generally used in the plural, but can be singular when the two parts are considered as a whole.
- Nouns related to clothing which covers the legs are singular but are often used in their plural form in the spoken language: des shorts (m), des jeans (m).
- Nouns designating objects consisting of a number of components are often in the plural, e.g. escaliers (m) (staircase).
- Nouns relating to toilets are generally in the plural (but in the singular in Belgium): (les) W-C (m), toilettes (f) (toilets).

1.3.13 The plural of compound nouns

In compound nouns only the noun and adjective components have a plural form; verbs, adverbs and prepositions which form part of compound nouns are invariable (see new spelling rules, Appendix, pp. 388–9).

1.3.14 Noun + noun or adjective + noun

In these two combinations it is usual for both components to become plural:

un bloc-moteur	des blocs-moteurs	engine block(s)
un chou-fleur	des choux-fleurs	cauliflower(s)
un grand-parent	des grands-parents	grandparent(s)
un rond-point	des ronds-points	roundabout(s)
un tiroir-caisse	des tiroirs-caisses	cash drawer(s)

But

un pur-sang	des purs-sangs or des pur-sang	thoroughbred(s)
--------------------	--	-----------------

Sometimes the components vary, according to the meaning:

- If the two components create a noun which has a different identity both components become plural:

une porte-fenêtre, des portes-fenêtres French window(s) (doors which are at the same time windows)

- If the second component modifies the meaning of the first one, only the first noun becomes plural:

une année-lumière, des années-lumière light year(s) (the distance travelled by light in a year)

un timbre-poste, des timbres-poste postage stamp(s) (stamps used by the postal service)

Note

The adjectives grand and franc are invariable in the feminine singular: un grand-père (grandfather), une grand-mère (grandmother), des grands-pères (grandfathers); des grands-mères (grandmothers).

1.3.15 Noun + adjective, adjective + adjective

In general, both elements become plural:

un coffre-fort	des coffres-forts	safe(s)
un sourd-muet	des sourds-muets	deaf-mute(s)

Exception

un terre-plein	des terre-pleins	terreplein(s), platform(s)
-----------------------	-------------------------	----------------------------

1.3.16 Noun + preposition + noun

- When the second noun modifies the first one, only the first noun becomes plural:

un arc-en-ciel	des arcs-en-ciel	rainbow(s)
un chef-d'œuvre	des chefs-d'œuvre	masterpiece(s)

- When the second noun does not modify the first one, the two nouns are invariable:

un tête-à-tête	des tête-à-tête	tête-à-tête(s)
-----------------------	------------------------	----------------

- Where the compound noun is not connected by a hyphen or hyphens, in general only the first noun becomes plural:

un chemin de fer	des chemins de fer	railway(s)
une pomme de terre	des pommes de terre	potato(es)

but the second noun is sometimes found in the plural:

un jaune d'œuf	des jaunes d'œufs	egg yolk(s)
-----------------------	--------------------------	-------------

1.3.17 Compound nouns with the adjectives or adverbs demi and nu

When placed before a noun or adjective, demi and nu are connected by a hyphen and are invariable:

une demi-finale	des demi-finales	semi-final(s)
une demi-heure	des demi-heures	half hour(s)
un nu-pieds	des nu-pieds	flip-flop(s)

1.3.18 Verb + noun

The verb is invariable but the noun becomes plural:

un couvre-lit	des couvre-lits	bedspread(s)
un essuie-glace	des essuie-glaces	windscreen-wiper(s)
un tire-bouchon	des tire-bouchons	corkscrew(s)

Note

If the noun is preceded by an article or begins with a capital letter it does not become plural:

un prie-Dieu	des prie-Dieu	prie-dieu(s)
un trompe-l'œil	des trompe-l'œil	trompe-l'œil(s)

1.3.19 Verb + verb

The two components are invariable:

un laissez-passer	des laissez-passer	pass(es)
un savoir-faire	des savoir-faire	know-how(s)
un va-et-vient	des va-et-vient	two-way switch(es)

1.3.20 Invariable word + noun

Only the noun becomes plural:

une arrière-boutique	des arrière-boutiques	back-shop(s)
une avant-garde	des avant-gardes	vanguard(s)
une en-tête	des en-têtes	letter-head(s) (on notepaper)
un non-lieu	des non-lieux	dismissal(s)

1.3.21 Various

- Foreign borrowings normally follow the rules for French words. These rules have not been fully assimilated and so there is some variation (see Appendix notes on Nouvelles règles orthographiques pp. 388–90).

un post-scriptum	des post-scriptum	post-script(s)
un orang-outang	des oranges-outangs	orang-utang(s)
un minimum	des minimums or -a	minimum(a)
un sandwich	des sandwiches or -es	sandwich(es)

- The truncated first component of a compound word does not become plural:

un Anglo-saxon	des Anglo-saxons	Anglo-Saxon(s)
un Gallo-romain	des Gallo-romains	Gallo-Roman(s)
une tragi-comédie	des tragi-comédies	tragicomedy(ies)

Gender

Masculine	Feminine
un raton un rayon un monsieur un sculpteur un lit un fils un frère un gâteau un fauteuil un buffet un tiroir un homme un valet un orphelin un garçon un soleil un paysage un taureau un veau	une maison une douzaine une légion une contribution une chaise une écurie une fille une sûreté une expédition une semaine une bonté des amours une sœur une dimension une position une partie

1 Masculine nouns

Human beings are masculine or feminine according to their sex [1.2.1]: un monsieur, un fils, un frère, un garçon, un homme, un valet, un orphelin

The young of animals are usually masculine [1.2.1]: un raton, un veau

The gender of some animals is predictable [1.2.1]: un taureau nouns ending in -on are masculine [1.2.4]: un rayon nouns ending in -eur are masculine [1.2.4]: un sculpteur nouns ending in -euil and -eil are masculine [1.2.4]: un fauteuil, un soleil

nouns ending in -oir are masculine [1.2.4]: un tiroir

nouns ending in -age are masculine [1.2.4]: un paysage

2 Feminine nouns

Human beings are masculine or feminine according to their sex [1.2.1]: une fille, une sœur nouns ending in -ison are feminine [1.2.6]: une maison

nouns ending in -ine are feminine [1.2.6]: une dizaine, une semaine nouns ending in -(t)ion are feminine [1.2.6]: une légion, une dimension, une contribution, une expédition, une position nouns ending in -ie are feminine [1.2.6]: une écurie, une partie

nouns ending in -é are feminine [1.2.6]: une sûreté, une bonté nouns ending in -ise are feminine [1.2.6]: une chaise amour is feminine in the plural: deux belles amours, but masculine in the singular [1.2.13].

3 Plurals of nouns

The plural of most nouns is formed by adding s to the singular [1.3].	une maison → des maisons une ruine → des ruines
Nouns ending in -s , -z and -x are the same in the singular and the plural [1.3.1].	un amoureux → des amoureux un fils → des fils un mois → des mois
Nouns ending in -au , -eau , -eu , -œu add -x to form their plural [1.3.2].	un gâteau → des gâteaux un taureau → des taureaux
Nouns ending in -al form their plural -aux [1.3.4].	un cheval → des chevaux
In compound nouns which combine noun + noun it is usual for both components to become plural [1.3.14].	un(e) aide-comptable → des aides-comptables
In the combination noun + preposition + noun, when the second noun modifies the first one, only the first noun becomes plural [1.3.16].	un face-à-main → des faces-à-main

DETERMINERS

A determiner is a useful term to cover all those words which give a context to a noun. In English, these are words like the, a, this, my, some. Determiners are placed before the noun.

- The word ‘the’ in ‘The ring has been stolen’, refers to a specific ring that is known to you.
- The word ‘a’ in ‘I’m going to buy you a ring’, refers to a ring which is unspecific, not ‘known’ to you.
- The words ‘this’ and ‘that’ in ‘I want this ring, not that one’, refer to objects that you are pointing to.
- The word ‘his’ in ‘His ring was expensive’, tells you who possesses the ring.
- In this chapter the determiners covered are:
 - the definite articles: le, la, l’, les
 - the indefinite articles: un, une, des
 - the partitive article: du, de l’, de la, des
 - the demonstrative adjectives: ce, cet, cette, ces
 - the possessive adjectives: mon, ma, mes; ton, ta, tes, etc.

2.1 The three types of article

There are three types of determiner called ‘article’: definite, indefinite and partitive, as in the following table:

Definite article	Indefinite article	Partitive article
The noun referred to is known to the speaker.	The noun referred to exists but is not known to the speaker.	The noun referred to is abstract (e.g. l'amour [love], la peur [fear]) or concrete (e.g. eau [water] and pain [bread]). The latter type of noun is referred to as a ‘non-countable’ or ‘mass’ noun*. This type is hardly ever used in the plural. The noun referred to exists but is not known to the speaker.
Range le verre dans le buffet, s'il te plaît! Put the glass in the sideboard, please!	Vous avez une belle robe aujourd'hui. You have a beautiful dress on today.	Rajoute de la crème et du poivre dans ta sauce! Add some cream and (some) pepper to your sauce!

*For an explanation of count and mass nouns, see 1.1.3.

Note

In French the same word is often used for the count noun referring to an animal as for the mass noun for the meat derived from it, whereas English employs a different word to express the mass noun:

le veau	the calf	un veau	a calf	du veau	veal
le bœuf	the bullock	un bœuf	a bullock	du bœuf	beef

2.2 Forms of the articles

The articles in French change their form according to the noun that follows. They take either the singular or plural form, and the masculine or feminine form.

The different forms of the article are:

		Singular		Plural
		Masculine	Feminine	Masculine and feminine forms
Definite article		le (l' before a vowel or silent h)	la (l' before a vowel or silent h)	les
Contracted forms of the definite article	With à	au		aux
	With de	du		des
Indefinite article		un	une	des
Partitive article		du (de l' before a vowel or silent h)	de la (de l' before a vowel or silent h)	des

2.3 The definite article

The definite article is used with a noun that has been specified, i.e., has been mentioned before, or is evident from the context.

KEY POINTS

- The masculine singular article le contracts to:
 - au when preceded by the preposition à [à + le = au]
 - du when preceded by the preposition de [de + le = du]
- The masculine plural article les contracts to:
 - aux when preceded by à [à + les = aux]
 - des when preceded by de [de + les = des]

Aux premières heures du matin le bus des migrants sortit du bateau.

In the early hours of the morning the migrants' bus emerged from the boat.

Nous voyageons aux Antilles.

We are travelling to the West Indies.

Nous revenons du Puy.

We are returning from le Puy.

- Although the definite article is, for the most part, used in a similar way in French as in English, there are instances where French uses it and English does not. The most important of these uses is with nouns considered in a general sense, to refer to a class of things or an abstract idea.

En France les ingénieurs sont mieux appréciés qu'en Angleterre.

In France engineers are better valued than in England.

Moi je préfère le café au thé.

I prefer coffee to tea.

L'homme est le plus évolué des mammifères.

Man is the most evolved of the mammals.

C'est de la folie!

It's madness.

2.3.1 Elision of le and la

- le and la are shortened to l' before a word beginning with a vowel or silent h

singular	plural
l'avion (m)	les avions	the aeroplane(s)
l'attitude (f)	les attitudes	(the) attitude(s)
l'hiver (m)	les hivers	the winter(s)
l'honneur (m)	les honneurs	honour(s)

- A number of words begin with aspirate h, for which le or la has to be used in the singular, and not l'.

le hibou	the owl
la haie	the hedge
la haine	hate

L'homme [silent h] en question avait l'habitude [silent h] de tailler la haie [aspirate h] de son jardin vers le début de l'été. The man in question was in the habit of cutting his garden hedge when summer was about to begin.

2.3.2 Uses of the definite article

- In most statements where the noun referred to is known to the speaker the definite article is used in a similar way to English.

Avez-vous ouvert la porte?	Have you opened the door?
Le train de 21.30 va arriver dans 10 minutes.	The 21.30 train will arrive in 10 minutes.
La Révolution française	The French Revolution

As well as with nouns considered in a general sense and with abstract ideas, French uses the definite article where English normally does not:

- with the names of countries and geographical features:

La France, est-elle aussi grande que la Turquie? Is France as big as Turkey?

- with the names of languages:

On dit que le chinois est plus difficile que le japonais. They say that Chinese is more difficult than Japanese.

- with the seasons:

L'hiver sera plus froid que l'année dernière. Winter will be colder than last year.

But when l'hiver, l'automne and l'été are preceded by en the article is omitted:

En été, nous allons toujours en Catalogne. We always go to Catalonia in summer.

- with titles:

Monsieur le Président

Mr Chairman

Madame le (or la) Maire

Madam Mayor

Monsieur le Ministre

Minister

- in superlatives, where the adjective comes after the noun, the article is repeated:

L'enfant le plus doué de la classe.

The brightest child in the class.

- with parts of the body and clothing, where English uses the possessive adjective:

Il se promène les mains dans les poches et la chemise ouverte.

He's walking with his hands in his pockets and his shirt open.

2.4 The indefinite article

The indefinite article un (masculine), une (feminine) and des (plural) is used for a noun that has not been specified, or not individualised enough to warrant the definite article.

KEY POINTS

The use of the indefinite article un(e) is similar to English in the singular but the plural des (some) is used where English commonly omits it. The sentence 'He's looking at samples' in French must contain the indefinite article: « Il regarde des échantillons ».

Il a posé des questions pertinentes.

He asked relevant questions.

Je lui ai donné des chocolats.

I gave her chocolates.

Il est revenu avec des amis de son frère.

He came back with (some) friends of his brother.

2.4.1 Uses of the indefinite article

- The indefinite article is used for things that are unspecified, in a similar way to English.

Elle aimerait bien acheter une voiture plus puissante.

She would like to buy a more powerful car.

Il a vu un livre intéressant qu'il aimerait bien lui offrir.

He saw an interesting book that he would like to give her.

Note

It is important not to confuse un and une, the indefinite article (a, an in English), with un and une meaning the number one in English.

- When coming after a negative, un, une and des become de (or d' before a vowel or silent h), except after the verb être.

Il avait une fièvre forte hier. Aujourd'hui il n'a pas de fièvre; il peut sortir.

He had a high temperature yesterday. Today he hasn't got a temperature; he can go out.

But

Ce ne sont pas des fraises que tu as vues mais des framboises.

Those aren't strawberries that you saw but raspberries.

- The plural indefinite article des becomes de (or d' before a vowel or silent h) before a plural noun preceded by an adjective. Compare:

Il a des affiches énormes sur son mur.

He has enormous posters on his wall.

Il a d'énormes affiches sur son mur.

- des becomes d' before autres:

Elle a bien d'autres chats à fouetter.

She has other fish to fry. [lit. 'cats to whip']

- Be careful not to confuse:

- Il n'y a pas de chaises dans ce salon.

There are no chairs in this sitting-room.

with

- Il n'y a pas une chaise dans son salon.

There isn't a chair in his sitting room.

- des, the indefinite article, with des, the contracted definite article [de + les].

The two uses can easily be distinguished, by replacing des by un(e). If it is possible to make this replacement des will be the indefinite article; if not, it will be the contracted definite article.

Il a ajouté des olives dans la sauce (il a ajouté une olive).

He has added (some) olives to the sauce (He has added one olive).

Therefore des = the indefinite article.

La cueillette des olives a lieu en automne.

Olive-picking takes place in the autumn.

*« La cueillette une olive » is not possible; this is the preposition de + the definite article les (de + les = des, the contracted definite article).

2.5 The partitive article

KEY POINTS

- The partitive article expresses the idea of ‘some’ in English with mass nouns such as sucré (sugar), pain (bread) or abstract nouns, such as tristesse (sadness), colère (anger), peur (fear), joie (joy). English often does not have a determiner with these nouns.

Donne-moi du lait!

Give me (some) milk!

On peut lire de la tristesse sur son visage.

You can see sadness in his face.

- After a negative form such as ne... pas, ne... plus, ne... jamais, de is used without a following article, whether singular or plural. In English this idea is expressed by ‘any’, ‘no’ or ‘a’:

Il n’a pas bu d’alcool.

He’s had [lit. ‘drunk’] no alcohol.

Je n’ai plus de papier.

I haven’t got any more paper.

Il n’a jamais d’idées.

He never has any ideas.

But

after être this rule does not apply:

Ce n’est pas de la viande.

It’s not meat.

2.5.1 Uses of the partitive article

The partitive article is used before:

- a mass noun:

Elle boit du champagne.

She’s drinking (some) champagne.

Après 3 jours, il ne leur restait que du pain et de l’eau.

After 3 days they had only bread and water left.

- an abstract noun:

Ils ont de la chance de s’en sortir à si bon compte.

They are lucky [lit. ‘have some luck’] to get off so lightly.

- materials:

Pour faire du feu, il faut du bois et du papier.

To make fire, you need wood and paper.

Notes

- Since the partitive article is used with mass nouns, it is scarcely ever used in the plural. However, certain words such as cendres (ash), ténèbres (darkness), vivres (food) and rillettes (potted meat) are always used in the plural, and so the plural partitive article is used with them: des vivres, des rillettes, etc.

Ils ont pris du bois et des vivres avec eux. They took some wood and food with them.

- Be careful not to confuse:
 - the partitive article, de, with the preposition de before the singular definite article:

Elle a bu de l'eau. She drank some water. (de l' = partitive article)

Elle vient de sortir de l'eau. She's just come out of the water. (preposition de + the definite article l')

- the partitive article, du, with the contracted form du (de + le) of the masculine definite article:

Nous buvons du lait. We are drinking (some) milk. (partitive article)

Il nous a parlé du Brésil. He spoke about Brazil. (preposition de + le)

2.6 Omission of the article

The article is normally omitted:

- before the names of people and towns, unless they are qualified:

De Gaulle est enterré à Colombey.

De Gaulle is buried at Colombey.

À Lyon il a visité le Parc de la Tête d'Or et le vieux Lyon.

In Lyons he visited the Parc de la Tête d'Or and old Lyons.

but

Some proper nouns are preceded by the article: Le Puy, Le Havre, La Haye (the Hague).

- After the prepositions en or de with feminine continents, countries or regions:

en Asie

in Asia

en Bourgogne

in Burgundy

Il est passé de France en Espagne par le cirque de Gavarnie.

He went from France to Spain via the Cirque de Gavarnie.

- before a noun in apposition:

Sa mère, artiste de talent, voyage beaucoup.

His mother, a talented artist, travels a lot.

- before nouns used in a rhetorical address:

Françaises, Français, il est temps de voter pour le bon parti! Men and women of France, it is time to vote for the right party!

- before nouns following être unless the noun is modified by an adjective or a phrase:

Sa mère est avocate et son père ingénieur. His mother is a lawyer and his father an engineer.

but

Sa mère est une avocate brillante. His mother is a brilliant lawyer.

- before days of the week and months:

Rendez-vous mardi à midi. Let's meet (on) Tuesday at midday.

but when modified by a date, adjective or phrase it may be preceded by an article:

Le samedi 20 novembre. On Saturday 20 November.
Il est venu le juillet où il a fait si chaud! He came that very hot July!

- in certain noun constructions:

Un château de cartes A house of cards
Un esprit de synthèse A spirit of synthesis

- in certain verb constructions, phrases, set expressions and proverbs:

avoir faim to be hungry faire faillite to go bankrupt tirer satisfaction to draw satisfaction perdre patience to lose patience
Chat échaudé craint l'eau froide. Once bitten, twice shy.

2.7 Demonstrative determiners

We use demonstrative determiners, 'this, these' and 'that, those' when we wish to point to a particular thing, person or concept:

This shoe fits me better than that one.

Unlike in English, the simple form of the demonstrative in French makes no distinction between objects that are near us ('this') and objects that are further away ('that').

Demonstrative determiners agree with the noun in number and gender.

2.7.1 Forms

	Masculine	Feminine
Singular	ce cet	cette
Plural	ces

KEY POINTS

- In the masculine singular ce is used before a word beginning with a consonant or aspirate h:

ce désavantage

this / that disadvantage

ce handicap

this / that handicap

- The form cet is used before a word beginning with a vowel or silent h:

J'ai vu cet homme sortir de cet hôtel.

I saw that man come out of this / that hotel.

- In the feminine singular there is one form, cette.

Tiens! Écoute cette chanson!

Hey! Listen to this / that song!

- In the plural there is one form for the masculine and feminine.

Range ces verres et ces tasses dans cette armoire.

Put these / those glasses and cups away in that cupboard.

2.7.2 Emphatic forms

- To distinguish between objects that are near to the speaker and objects that are further away, the suffixes -ci or -là may be added to the noun:

Ces temps-ci, il me semble qu'il fait plus chaud. These days it seems to me to be hotter.

En ce temps-là, nous n'avions pas de téléphones portables.

In those days we didn't have mobile phones.

- When used in the same sentence, however, these emphatic forms don't really indicate proximity to, or distance from, the speaker, but are a means of contrasting two objects:

Je mets cette cravate-ci ou cette cravate-là ce soir? Should I wear this tie or that one tonight?

- In contemporary spoken language, the particle -la is used more and more often, and frequently replaces -ci, which is considered to be rather more formal:

Je crois que je préfère cette version-là; l'autre est trop rapide.

I think I prefer this version; the other one is too fast.

2.8 Possessive determiners

Possessive determiners indicate possession or show a relationship between the speaker and a thing, person or idea. In English, the possessive determiner agrees with the possessor: It's our house. She's my favourite singer. It's their idea.

2.8.1 Forms

		Masculine singular	Feminine singular	Plural
One 'possessor'	1st pers. sing.	mon	ma (mon before a vowel or silent h)	mes
	2nd pers. sing.	ton	ta (ton before a vowel or silent h)	tes
	3rd pers. sing.	son	sa (son before a vowel or silent h)	ses
Several 'possessors'	1st pers. plur.	notre		nos
	2nd pers. plur.	votre		vos
	3rd pers. plur.	leur		leurs

KEY POINTS

- Unlike in English, possessive determiners in French agree with the thing which is possessed. The possessive determiner chosen depends on whether the thing possessed is masculine or feminine, singular or plural.

Il aime ses élèves. [possessor 3rd person singular; thing possessed plural] He loves his pupils.

Ils aiment leur professeur. [possessor 3rd person plural; thing possessed singular] They love their teacher.

J'ai trouvé son article et sa photo sur internet. I found his article and his photo on the internet.

Ma trousse de maquillage; notre trousse de secours.* My make-up kit; our first-aid kit.

- The possessive determiners ma, ta, sa are replaced by mon, ton, son immediately before a feminine noun beginning with a vowel or silent h.

Ton idée est bonne – ta première idée était meilleure.* Your idea is a good one; your first idea was better.

Le sport contribue à mon hygiène mentale. Sport contributes to my mental health.

Son hélice a trois pales – sa seconde hélice est tombée en panne.* His propeller has three blades; his second propeller has broken.

Notes

- Take care not to confuse the possessive determiners leur and leurs with the invariable personal pronoun leur (the plural of lui). To distinguish between them, you can replace the possessive determiner leur by another possessive, such as ses, and the personal pronoun leur by another personal pronoun, such as lui (see 3.2).

Ne leur (lui) dites pas où sont leurs (ses) bonbons.

Don't tell them (him / her) where their (his / her) sweets are.

- The possessive determiner is replaced by the definite article with parts of the body and clothing, provided there is no ambiguity (see 2.3.2).

Il se promène toujours un couteau à la ceinture, les mains dans les poches et la tête haute.

He always walks with a knife in his belt, his hands in his pockets and his head held high.

- To emphasize possession the adjective propre may be added, in the same way as 'own' in English.

Il a été trahi par son propre fils.

He was betrayed by his own son.

Les Cornichons

On est parti, samedi, dans une grosse voiture,
Faire tous ensemble un grand piquenique dans la nature,
En emportant des paniers, des bouteilles, des paquets,
Et la radio!

Des cornichons
De la moutarde
Du pain, du beurre
Des p'tits oignons
Des confitures
Et des œufs durs
Des cornichons

Du corned-beef
Et des biscottes
Des macarons
Un tire-bouchons
Des petits-beurre
Et de la bière
Des cornichons.

On n'avait rien oublié, c'est maman qui a tout fait.
Elle avait travaillé trois jours sans s'arrêter
Pour préparer les paniers, les bouteilles, les paquets
Et la radio!

Le poulet froid
La mayonnaise
Le chocolat
Les champignons
Les ouvre-boîtes
Et les tomates
Les cornichons.

Mais quand on est arrivé, on a trouvé la pluie
C'qu'on avait oublié, c'était les parapluies
On a ramené les paniers, les bouteilles,
les paquets
Et la radio!

On est rentré
Manger à la maison
Le fromage et les boîtes
Les confitures et les cornichons
La moutarde et le beurre
La mayonnaise et les cornichons
Le poulet, les biscottes
Les œufs durs et puis les cornichons.

Ces nouvelles technologies qui passionnent notre jeunesse!

Avec leurs laboratoires ultra modernes et leur savoir-faire commun, les sociétés « Disque Optique » et « Digi-Disc » ont battu tous leurs rivaux dans ce domaine si convoité du disque optique numérique.

Grâce à sa gamme de supports variée, « Disque Optique » est devenue numéro un mondial du DV PAL et ses 25 images par seconde et du DVD de studio professionnel. Quant à « Digi-Disc » et ses logiciels de création de DVD Blu-ray 3D, elle vient de réussir un beau coup marketing. En effet, cet après-midi, cette très jeune société annonçait une véritable révolution dans la technologie du disque optique et ce soir, le cours de son action grimpait en flèche.

Pourtant, ce logiciel n'est pas parfait. On lui reproche notamment son grand nombre d'automatismes. Dans son discours face aux médias, le PDG justifiait ainsi son produit: « Notre logiciel est adapté à vos attentes et celles de tous nos clients en général. Il est à la fois très performant et très facile d'utilisation. »

« Nous ne critiquons pas ses performances, répliquaient les journalistes, mais plutôt cette frustration de liberté imposée par ces trop nombreux automatismes. »

Les deux sociétés ont finalement promis de transmettre ces critiques à leur bureau de recherche et développement.

PRONOUNS

Pronouns stand in the place of nouns. For example, in a conversation, you might give a friend's name first in order to identify him, and then use pronouns to replace nouns subsequently:

Matt flew to France yesterday. He went with Jim; they took two suitcases with them.

We all use pronouns as a kind of shorthand to avoid clumsy or needless repetition. A pronoun does not tell you anything more about the noun it is replacing; it simply acts as a neat and shorter substitute.

Pronouns may appear in four main places in a sentence:

- as the subject (English 'I', 'he')
- as the direct object (English 'me', 'them')
- as the indirect object (English 'you', 'us', preceded by a preposition like 'to')
- after a preposition (English 'after you', 'above it')

The following types of pronoun are covered in this chapter:

personal pronouns, the equivalent of 'I', 'you', 'to him', etc. They can be subject, direct object, indirect object, or appear after prepositions.

demonstrative pronouns, the equivalent of 'this one', 'that one', 'these ones', 'those ones'.

possessive pronouns, the equivalent of 'mine', 'yours', etc.

indefinite pronouns, the equivalent of 'someone', 'whoever', 'several', etc.

The following pronouns are covered elsewhere: negative (Chapter 7), relative (Chapter 14) and interrogative (Chapter 15).

Subject, direct object and indirect object pronouns

In French the personal pronouns refer to both people and things. The pronouns y and en, which have no exact equivalent in English, are widely used.

	Subject		Direct object		Indirect object
First person singular	je / j'	I	me / m'	me	me / m'	to me
Second person singular	tu	you	te / t'	you	te / t'	to you
Third person singular	il elle on	he, it she, it one, we, they	le/l' la/l'	him, it her, it	lui	to him, to her, to it
First person plural	nous	we	nous	us	nous	to us
Second person plural	vous	you	vous	you	vous	to you
Third person plural	ils elles	they they	les	them	leur	to them

Table 1 Subject, object and indirect object pronouns

y and en

- the pronoun y is the rough equivalent of ‘there’ and stands for phrases of location, beginning with à, en, dans, sur, etc.

Il est à la piscine. Il y va toutes les deux semaines.

He’s at the pool. He goes there every fortnight.

- the pronoun en stands for phrases beginning with de.

J’en reviens à l’instant.

I’ve just come from there.

Note

The subject pronoun je, and the object pronouns me, te, le / la elide to j’, m’, t’ and l’ when a vowel follows:

Il m’a demandé de venir mais j’ai dit non.

He asked me to come but I refused.

Je l’ai vu dans la rue.

I saw him / her in the street.

Tu t’en vas ?

Are you going?

3.1 Subject pronouns

KEY POINTS

- A subject pronoun stands for the person, thing or idea which is the subject of the sentence:

J’arrive.

I’m coming.

Ils font du bruit.

They are making a noise.

Nous sommes fatigués.

We’re tired.

- Subject pronouns agree in number and gender with the person(s) they stand for:

Michel est honnête. Il ne ment jamais.

Michel is honest. He never lies.

Rose est une bonne actrice dans ce film, et en plus elle est belle.

Rose is a good actor in that film; furthermore, she is beautiful.

- They are placed before the verb except where there is inversion, as when asking questions:

Pourquoi riez-vous ?

Why are you laughing?

Ont-elles payé leur loyer ?

Have they paid their rent?

- il / elle / ils / elles refer to persons, animals and things:

Le chien a l’air d’être malade. Il manque d’énergie.

The dog seems ill. He has no energy.

La ville est trop bruyante; elle est sale aussi.

The town is too noisy; it’s dirty too.

Ce sont des vélos volés; ils ont été récupérés par la police.

They are stolen bikes; they’ve been recovered by the police.

- on refers to ‘someone’, ‘people’, ‘they’, ‘you’ ‘we’, ‘one’ depending on the context:

On ne sait jamais.

One never knows / You never know.

On habite à deux pas de l’arrêt de bus.

We live a few steps away from the bus stop.

3.1.1 tu and vous

- tu and vous are both used to address a person as ‘you’. In order to choose the correct one to use in a given situation some understanding of French social relationships is necessary.
 - tu is used when the relationship between you and the person addressed is a close one. It is mostly used for friends and family, but not exclusively: young people tend to address each other as tu (tutoyer), whether they are close friends or not; adults use tu to address young children.
 - vous is used to address (a) a single person formally, e.g. a stranger, a work colleague (vouvoyer), and (b) more than one person, regardless of whether they are close to you or not.

Patrick, tu exagères! Tu as vu? Tu as une demi-heure de retard!

Patrick, this is too much! Can’t you see that you’re half an hour late?

Monsieur le député, irez-vous à Paris en taxi?

[addressing an MP] Are you going to Paris by taxi, sir?

3.1.2 ils and elles

ils refers to either masculine plural nouns or mixed masculine and feminine nouns; elles refers to feminine plural nouns only.

Je n’aime pas les araignées; elles me font peur!
La bière et le vin? Ils ne sont pas produits dans les mêmes régions.

I don’t like spiders; they frighten me!
 Beer and wine? They are not produced in the same regions.

3.1.3 on

The use of on is much more widespread than ‘one’ in English.

On is used:

- as the equivalent of ‘people’, ‘someone’, ‘they’, ‘you’, ‘one’:

On dit que les Français conduisent vite.

They say the French drive fast.

On m’a dit qu’en Angleterre on buvait du bon thé.

Someone told me that in England people drank good tea.

- as a replacement for nous in speech. In this case a qualifying adjective is in the plural:

On vient de faire 80 km à vélo, on est vannés. We've just cycled 80 kilometres and we're knackered.

On a finalement décidé de prendre le train. We finally decided to take the train.

- to express a passive idea:

On a refait le pont entièrement l'année dernière. The bridge was entirely rebuilt last year.

Je suis perdu! On a changé le nom des rues dans ce quartier. I'm lost! All the street names in this area have been changed.

Note

In written French, on is sometimes replaced by l'on, especially after et, ou, où, pourquoi, qui, quoi, si:

En Écosse, où que l'on aille le paysage est splendide. Wherever you go in Scotland the landscape is magnificent.

Si l'on comprend bien, ... If one understands it correctly, ...

3.1.4 Subject–verb inversion

In French, the normal order of words is subject (noun or pronoun) + verb:

Elles voyagent. They're travelling.

In certain circumstances, however, inversion of the subject pronoun and the verb is made. Inversion can be optional.

When inversion takes place, the pronoun is attached to the verb by a hyphen. If the verb ends in a vowel -t- is inserted between the verb and the pronoun:

A-t-elle bien mesuré les conséquences? Has she considered the consequences properly?

Note

Liaison between the inverted pronoun and the verb is compulsory if the verb ends in a consonant. For example, in: Elle a, dit-elle, bien mesuré les conséquences. (She has considered the consequences properly, she says), the -t- in dit is sounded.

Types of inversion

- in questions (see 15.1.1)

Avez-vous assez d'argent? Have you got enough money?

Vos parents ont-ils de l'argent? Have your parents any money?

Pourquoi faut-il autant d'argent? Why do we need so much money?

● In short interpolated phrases after:

- dire (to say), demander (to ask), penser (to think)
- sembler (to seem), paraître (to appear), etc., when used impersonally

Mes amis, dit-elle, je vous présente votre nouveau directeur.

My friends, said she, I would like to introduce you to your new director.

On a, paraît-il, restauré le Pont du Gard.

We have, it seems, restored the Pont du Gard.

« Avez-vous un stylo? », a-t-elle demandé.

‘Have you got a pen?’ she asked.

● In sentences beginning with certain adverbs or adverbial phrases, inversion can be mandatory or not, according to which adverb is used.

- Compulsory inversion

After à peine (scarcely), du moins (at least), encore (still), rarement (rarely), en vain (in vain)

À peine était-il arrivé qu’il partit aussitôt.

Scarcely had he arrived than he left.

Encore faut-il lui faire confiance.

It’s still necessary to have confidence in him.

It is important to note that if the subject is not a personal pronoun or ce or on, it is placed before the verb and duplicated after the verb by a personal pronoun attached to the verb by a hyphen.

À peine Camilla était-elle arrivée qu’elle partit aussitôt.

Scarcely had Camilla arrived than she left.

Note

Inversion in the expression toujours est-il que:

Toujours est-il qu’on ne l’a jamais retrouvé.

The fact remains that we have never found it.

- Inversion or que

After peut-être (perhaps) and sans doute (doubtless) it is necessary either to invert or use que without inversion:

Peut-être connaissait-il la solution / Peut-être qu’il connaissait la solution.

Perhaps he knew the answer.

- Optional inversion

After ainsi (so), aussi (also), encore (still), en vain (in vain) inversion is optional.

*Ainsi fut-il décidé qu’on se réunirait le lendemain.
/ Ainsi il fut décidé qu’on se réunirait le lendemain.*

So it was decided that we should meet the next day.

- An exclamation or a subjunctive, expressing a strong desire, can be replaced by an inversion.

Suis-je stupide! J'ai mal lu la notice.

How foolish I am! I misread the notice. (for Que je suis stupide!)

Puissiez-vous un jour enfin comprendre!

It would be good if one day you could finally understand! (for Si vous pouviez enfin comprendre!)

3.1.5 Impersonal il

Il ('it') is frequently used impersonally:

- in weather expressions:

Il pleut.

It's raining.

Il fait nuit.

It's night(-time).

Il fait du vent.

It's windy.

Il tonne.

It's thundering.

- for saying the time:

Quelle heure est-il?

What time is it?

Il est trois heures.

It's 3 o'clock.

- as the subject of an impersonal expression (see 8.5):

Il est difficile de savoir ce qu'il pense.

It's difficult to know what he thinks.

Note

Il est and c'est, when used as impersonal subjects, have the same meaning. Il est is more formal and common in written French whereas c'est is more common in everyday French. They have the same structure:

either

Il est / C'est + adjective + que

or

Il est / C'est + adjective + preposition + infinitive

Il est clair qu'il s'est trompé.

It's clear that he's made a mistake.

C'est clair qu'il s'est trompé.

Il est facile de se tromper.

It's easy to make a mistake.

C'est facile de se tromper.

- with certain very common phrases: il y a (there is / are), il s'agit de (it's a question of), il faut (it is necessary), il vaut mieux (it's better), il se peut (maybe)

Il semble qu'il y ait un problème de carburateur. It seems that there's a problem with the carburettor.

Il s'agit de ne pas se tromper. It's a question of not making a mistake.

Note

In spoken French ça is sometimes used instead of il:

Ça pleut.

It's raining.

Ça se peut qu'il vienne.

He may come.

Ça risque de barder!

Sparks may fly!

3.2 Direct and indirect object pronouns

KEY POINTS

- Object pronouns stand for the person, thing or idea which is the object of the sentence:

Apportez ces livres. Je vais les lire en vacances. Bring those books. I'm going to read them on holiday.

- Object pronouns agree in number and gender with the person(s) they stand for:

Marianne va venir. Tu la connais? Marianne is coming. Do you know her?

- Object pronouns, unlike in English, are usually placed before the verb:

Il me l'a envoyé la semaine dernière. He sent me it last week.

3.2.1 Direct object in English = indirect object in French

- It is important to recognize those French verbs which are followed by an indirect object where English requires a direct object, e.g. apprendre à, téléphoner à, conseiller à:

Je lui ai téléphoné trois fois.

I've phoned her / him three times.

Il lui a appris à souder de petits objets.

He taught her / him how to weld small objects.

- A number of verbs in English, like 'to give', 'to send', 'to tell', 'to offer', 'to teach' take two direct objects, where the French equivalent is a direct object plus an indirect object. The English construction can usually also be written as direct object + indirect object by placing 'to' before the relevant pronoun.

Elle le lui a donné hier.

She gave him it yesterday. [OR She gave it to him yesterday.]

Mon copain le leur a envoyé.

My friend sent them it. [OR My friend sent it to them.]

Il me l'a dit.

He told me [it]. [lit. *'He told it to me'.]

3.2.2 le as a neutral pronoun

Le functions both as a masculine pronoun and as a neutral one, referring usually to previously stated phrases or whole sentences, especially with savoir and pouvoir. There is sometimes no equivalent in English for le used in this way.

On ne peut pas changer sa personnalité, je le sais.

You can't change your personality, I know. (le here refers to all of the previous statement, i.e., the fact of not being able to change one's personality)

Tu m'en demandes trop, je ne pourrai pas le faire.

You are asking too much of me; I will not be able to do it. (le refers to the thing that is being asked)

3.2.3 lui and leur

Lui and leur refer to either masculine or feminine nouns:

Je lui ai donné la clé de la voiture.

I've given him / her the car key.

Demandez-leur s'ils vont au marché.

Ask them if they are going to the market.
(leur could refer to the masculine, feminine or a mixture of the two)

3.2.4 Position of object pronouns

- Object pronouns are normally placed immediately before the verb:

Je leur ai répété 100 fois!

I've told them 100 times!

Note

In negative sentences ne is placed before the object pronoun:

Je ne l'ai pas vu(e).

I didn't see him / her.

In compound tenses, object pronouns are placed immediately before the auxiliary verb avoir:

Je les ai vus il y a cinq minutes à peine.

I saw them scarcely five minutes ago.

(See also 10.6.4.)

- Where the verb that relates to the pronoun is an infinitive, the object is normally placed before the infinitive:

Je voudrais vous inviter à dîner chez moi ce soir. I'd like to invite you to dine at my place this evening.

Arrêtez de m'ennuyer avec vos histoires! Stop annoying me with your nonsense!

Note

When an infinitive is dependent on a verb such as écouter, entendre, faire, laisser, regarder, sentir, voir, the object of the infinitive is placed before the main verb:

Je les vois faire tous les jours. I see them do it every day.

Mes parents m'ont laissé partir seul. My parents let me go away by myself.

- With affirmative imperatives (see 10.1.1):
 - object pronouns are placed immediately after the verb, and joined to the verb by a hyphen:

Regardez-les! Look at them!

Taisez-vous! Be quiet!

- the forms me and te are replaced by moi and toi respectively:

Regardez-moi! Look at me! (not Regardez-me!*)

- After negative imperatives, the pronoun is placed before the verb:

Ne le bois pas. Don't drink it!

Ne lui donnez pas les billets. Don't give him / her the tickets.

3.2.5 Agreement of the direct object with the past participle in compound tenses

In compound tenses when using the auxiliary avoir, or with pronominal verbs in certain circumstances, the past participle agrees in number and gender with a preceding direct object (see 10.6.4).

Tu as vu mes lunettes de soleil? Non, je ne les ai pas vues. Have you seen my sunglasses? No, I haven't seen them. (vues agrees in gender and number with the feminine plural direct object les [= lunettes]).

Elle s'est lavée.

She washed / has washed (i.e. herself).

Elle s'est lavé les mains.

She washed her hands.

Elle se les est lavées.

She washed them.

– Ont-ils bien sauvé les documents?

'Have they saved the documents properly?'

– Oui, pas de problème, ils les ont bien sauvagés.

'Yes, don't worry. They've saved them properly.'

3.3 y

KEY POINTS

- y, meaning 'there' 'in it' 'to it', indicates location, and normally refers to things and not people:
 - Vous êtes déjà revenus de France? 'You're already back from France?'
 - Non, en fait c'est la semaine prochaine que nous y allons. 'No, in fact, we're going there next week.'
- y follows the same rules for position in relation to the verb as other object pronouns:
 - J'y vais.* I'm going (there).

3.3.1 y indicating location

y stands for phrases indicating location which are introduced by prepositions such as à, dans, sur and devant.

Nous allons au musée cet après-midi.

We're going to the museum this afternoon.

Nous y allons cet après-midi.

We're going there this afternoon.

Je dois vite aller au centre sportif, mes amis m'y attendent déjà!

I must go to the sports centre quickly; my friends are waiting for me there already.

– Envoie-moi un texto quand tu seras dans le train!

'Send me a text when you are on the train.'

– Mais j'y suis déjà!

'But I'm already on it!'

– Au tennis, est-ce que tu joues sur terre battue?

'Do you play tennis on clay courts?'

– Non, j'y joue jamais, je préfère le gazon.

'No, I never play on them; I prefer grass courts.'

3.3.2 y following certain verbs

With certain verbs, e.g. penser à, songer à, tenir à, arriver à, y replaces à plus a following infinitive.

– As-tu pensé à changer les draps?

'Have you thought about changing the sheets?'

– J'y ai pensé.

'I have.'

– Est-ce que tu tiens vraiment à faire ce long voyage?

'Are you really set on making that long journey?'

– J'y tiens.

'I am.'

– As-tu songé à fermer la porte à clé?

'Have you considered locking the door?'

– Oui, j'y ai songé.

'Yes, I have.'

Il n'est pas arrivé à apprendre à conduire.

He hasn't managed to learn to drive.

Il n'y est pas arrivé.

He hasn't managed it.

3.3.3 Useful phrases with y

y is found in a number of useful phrases:

Allons-y.

Ça y est.

Il n'y a pas de quoi.

il y a longtemps

y compris

Vas-y! Allez-y!

Let's go.

That's it (then).

Not at all / Don't mention it.

a long time ago including

Go on!

3.4 en

KEY POINTS

- en, meaning 'of / about it', 'of / about them', stands for phrases introduced by de:

Nous avons parlé de son projet.

We spoke about his project.

Nous en avons parlé.

We spoke about it.

Combien de kilos d'abricots désirez-vous?

How many kilos of apricots do you want?

J'en veux trois.

I want three.

- en follows the same rules for position in relation to the verb as other object pronouns.

- en may be used to refer to things and, in the spoken language, to people:

—Est-ce que tu le connais?

'Do you know him?'

—Non, j'en ai entendu parler simplement.

'No, I've just heard about him.' (entendre parler de quelqu'un)

On n'a recruté qu'une infirmière sur deux, pourtant on en a vraiment besoin.

We've only recruited one out of two nurses, yet we really need them

De la viande? J'en mange parfois, pas souvent.*

Meat? I eat it sometimes, not often.

3.4.1 en with numbers and quantifiers en is used with numbers and quantifiers. In most cases there is no pronoun equivalent in English.

Voulez-vous un billet pour l'exposition? J'en ai acheté deux.

Do you want a ticket for the exhibition? I've bought two (of them).

J'en ai trop.

I've got too many.

Il m'en restait sept hier, il ne m'en reste plus.

I had seven over yesterday; I haven't got any left.

3.4.2 Verbs and expressions with en

Certain verbs and expressions are followed by en, whose equivalent is a direct object in English.

- avoir besoin de:
Il nous a proposé un emprunt, mais nous n'en avons pas besoin. He offered us a loan but we don't need one.
- se servir de:
On m'a prêté ces outils, mais je ne sais pas m'en servir. He's lent me these tools, but I don't know how to use them.

3.5 Reflexive pronouns

Reflexive pronouns are object pronouns which refer back to the subject of the sentence. In English, the reflexive pronouns are 'myself', 'yourself', etc. In 'She cut herself' the reflexive pronoun 'herself' refers back to the subject 'She' (see 8.4).

The reflexive pronouns are the same as direct object pronouns except in the third person.

First person singular	me	(to) myself
Second person singular	te	(to) yourself
Third person singular	se	(to) himself, herself, itself, oneself
First person plural	nous	(to) ourselves
Second person plural	vous	(to) yourselves
Third person plural	se	(to) themselves

KEY POINTS

Reflexive pronouns in French have four main uses:

- with pronominal verbs
Je me lève à six heures. I get up at six o'clock.
- in a reciprocal meaning
Ils se sont félicités. They congratulated each other.
- in constructions which in English would be in the passive
Les fraises se mangent avec de la crème. Strawberries are eaten with cream.
- with parts of the body, where English would use a possessive adjective
Je me suis lavé les cheveux. I washed my hair.

3.5.1 Pronominal verbs

Note that in pronominal verbs the reflexive pronoun does not usually have an equivalent in English (using ‘myself’, etc.), e.g. s’asseoir (to sit [down]), se laver (to wash), se lever (to get up), se raser (to shave) (see 8.4.1).

Ils s’assoient sur l’herbe.

They sit [lit. sit themselves] down on the grass.

En rentrant du travail, je me change et je me mets un instant devant la télévision.

When I come back from work, I get changed and I sit [lit. put myself] in front of the television for a while.

3.5.2 Reciprocal use

Note that in reciprocal sentences (see 8.4.1) the reflexive pronoun is often understood in English, and does not always have an equivalent, e.g. se rencontrer (to meet), se dire au revoir (to say goodbye), se serrer la main (to shake hands), s’embrasser (to hug), se disputer (to argue).

Nous nous sommes rencontrés tôt ce matin, nous sommes salués, puis nous sommes séparés très vite.

We met (each other) early this morning, we greeted each other, then we separated (from each other) very quickly.

Je crois bien qu’ils se sont disputés hier.

I think they had an argument yesterday.

3.5.3 Passive meaning

Note that the passive voice is used much less frequently in French than in English.

Ce vin se boit avec du poisson.

This wine is drunk with fish.

De tels actes violents se voient rarement dans nos contrées.

Such violent acts are rarely seen in our lands.

Cette école s’appelle Lycée Victor Hugo.

This school is called the Lycée Victor Hugo.
(See 8.2.3.)

3.5.4 Use with parts of the body

When referring to parts of the body and clothing, the reflexive pronoun is used rather than the possessive determiner (see 2.8.1).

Elle va se faire couper les cheveux.

She’s going to have her hair cut.

Il s’est cassé la clavicule en tombant.

He broke his collarbone when he fell.

Elle s’est désinfecté le genou avec de l’alcool.

She disinfected her knee with alcohol.

3.5.5 Reflexive pronouns which have no equivalent in English

Many pronominal verbs have no reflexive idea in the English equivalent: se douter de (to suspect), s’écrier (to shout), s’évanouir (to faint), se fier à (to trust), s’occuper de (to look after), se réveiller (to wake up), se souvenir de (to remember), se taire (to keep quiet), se tromper (to make a mistake).

Il s'est trompé d'heure et n'a pu s'occuper des enfants.
À quelle heure se réveillent-ils d'habitude?
Veuillez vous taire, s'il vous plaît?

He forgot the time and wasn't able to look after the children.
At what time do they usually wake up?
Will you keep quiet, please?

3.5.6 Addition of moi-même, etc.

The following pronouns are often added to a sentence containing a reflexive verb, for emphasis: moi-même (myself), toi-même (yourself), lui-même (himself), elle-même (herself), soi-même (oneself), nous-mêmes (ourselves), vous-mêmes (yourselves), eux-mêmes (themselves), elles-mêmes (themselves).

Il s'est rendu compte lui-même du mensonge.
Je ne m'en souviens pas moi-même.

He himself realized it was a lie.
I don't remember it myself.

3.6 Order of object pronouns

3.6.1 Object pronouns before the verb

- When two object pronouns, including y and en, come before the verb they follow the order in the table below:

me
te	le	lui
se	la	leur	y	en
nous	les
vous

Table 2 Order of object pronouns

Il nous l'a montré avant.
Elle s'en est achetée plusieurs.
Qui s'y frotte s'y pique!

He showed us it beforehand.
She bought herself several of them.
If you go looking for trouble, you'll find it.

- When a direct and an indirect object come together before the verb:
 - if both objects are in the third person, the direct object comes first:

Je le lui ai donné.

I gave him it.

- if only one of the objects is in the third person the direct object comes second:

Il me l'a donné.
Ils me les ont prêtés et je les leur ai rendus immédiatement.

He gave me it.
They lent me them and I gave them back straight away.

3.6.2 Object pronouns after the affirmative imperative

- When two object pronouns follow the affirmative imperative, the order they follow differs from that of Table 2 in one respect: third person pronouns precede first and second person pronouns. The pronouns are linked by hyphens:

Donne-les-moi.	Give me them.
Dites-le-nous.	Tell us (it).
Allez-vous-en.	Go away!
Donnez-le-leur.	Give it to them.

Note

The forms me and te are replaced by moi and toi respectively, except before y and en:

Va-t'en.	Go away!
Commence à t'y diriger pendant que j'attends.	Start going there while I wait.

Negative imperatives follow the order in Table 2 above:

Ne le leur donnez pas.	Don't give it to them.
Ne m'en parle plus jamais !	Don't ever speak to me about it!

3.6.3 Two object pronouns after certain verbs

When a number of verbs, including faire, laisser and entendre, are followed by the infinitive, two object pronouns normally come before the verb and not the infinitive:

Il me l'a fait boire.	He made me drink it.
Elle le lui a laissé croire.	She let him believe it.

3.6.4 Object pronouns after devoir and pouvoir

When devoir and pouvoir are followed by the infinitive, object pronouns normally precede the infinitive:

Vous pouvez me le donner quand nous serons chez nous.	You can give me it when we get home.
Vous devrez me l'avoir remboursé sous huitaine.	You will have to pay (it) me back within a week.

3.7 Stressed pronouns

Stressed (or ‘disjunctive’) pronouns are those used after prepositions, as in ‘We went in after them’ or for the purposes of emphasis, as in ‘I haven’t a clue, me’.

First person singular	moi	me
Second person singular	toi	you
Third person singular	lui	him
	elle	her
	soi	oneself
First person plural	nous	us
Second person plural	vous	you
Third person plural	eux	them
	elles	them

Table 3 Stressed pronouns

KEY POINTS
<ul style="list-style-type: none">Typically, these pronouns in French follow prepositions: Elle était debout devant lui. She was standing in front of him. Ils ont couru après elle sans succès. They ran after her in vain.They are used for emphasis: Lui, il n’a aucune idée de quoi faire. He’s no idea what to do.They are frequently used after c’est, often with a sense of possession: C’est à vous, cette voiture? Is that car yours? C’est lui le coupable. He’s the culprit. Quand tu t’en iras, c’est moi qui organiserai la collecte. When you go it’ll be me who’ll organize the collection.They can stand alone: Qui est-ce qui a gagné? Lui. Who’s won? Him. / He has.

Notes

Stressed pronouns are used:

- in comparisons:
Il est plus doué que moi. He’s cleverer than I [am].
- for contrast:
Toi, tu prépares le repas et moi je fais la vaisselle. You get the meal and I’ll wash up.

- after positive imperatives:

Donnez-le-moi.

Give it to me. (See 10.1.1.)

- with même, seul, pas, non plus and aussi:

Lui seul connaît la solution.

He alone knows the solution.

Êtes-vous déjà allés au Kenya? Pas moi!

Have you already been to Kenya? Not me!

Moi aussi je veux y aller.

I'd like to go there too.

—Je n'aime pas la nouvelle Renault.

'I don't like the new Renault.'

—Moi non plus.

'Neither do I.'

3.7.1 soi

Soi is the stressed pronoun equivalent of on, referring to 'people', 'oneself':

Il est si bon comédien que dans ses films on rit et on pleure malgré soi. He's such a good actor that in his films one laughs and cries despite oneself.

On n'est jamais si bien servi que par soi-même. If you want something done, you'd better do it yourself.

On garde cela pour soi-même.

One keeps that to oneself.

À minuit, chacun rentra chez soi.

At midnight, everyone went home.

3.8 Coordination of personal pronouns

- Subject pronouns

- When linked by the coordinating conjunctions et, ou and ni the second pronoun may be omitted:

Je sors de la maison et (je) prends le bus à 8 heures du matin.

I leave the house and catch the bus at 8 am.

- In compound tenses the auxiliary verb is omitted:

Ils ont bu et chanté pour son anniversaire.

They drank and sang for his birthday.

- Object pronouns

- When linked by the coordinating conjunctions et, ou and ni the second pronoun is normally repeated:

Georges m'a appelé ce matin et m'a dit qu'il ne viendrait pas.

Georges called me this morning and told me that he wouldn't come.

- Stressed pronouns

- When two or more pronouns linked by et or ou are the subject of the verb, stressed pronouns are used. Note that in this case subject pronouns are used in English:

Toi et moi allons voyager ensemble demain.

You and I are going to travel together tomorrow.

Lui et moi assisterons à la réunion de famille.

He and I will go to the family reunion.

3.9 Demonstrative pronouns

We use demonstrative pronouns ‘this one, these ones’ and ‘that one, those ones’ when we wish to point to a particular thing, person or concept: ‘That idea is better than this one’, ‘These shoes are trendier than those (ones).’

KEY POINTS

- The demonstrative pronouns celui, celle, ceux and celles are the equivalent of ‘the one(s)’.
- Demonstrative pronouns agree in gender and number with the noun they stand for.
- The distinction in English between ‘this one’ and ‘that one’ is made by adding -ci or -là respectively to the pronoun: celui-ci, celle-là, etc.

masculine singular	celui	the one	celui-ci	this one	celui-là	that one feminine singular	celle	the one	celle-ci	this one	celle-là	that one masculine plural	ceux	the ones	ceux-ci	these ones	ceux-là	those ones
feminine plural	celles	the ones	celles-ci	these ones	celles-là	those ones

Table 4 Demonstrative pronouns

Note

ce / c’, cela, ceci and ça are demonstrative pronouns which do not stand for specific nouns. They refer to either general states of affairs or actions, or are simply impersonal.

– Tu voudrais aller au cinéma?

– Ce serait avec plaisir.

C’est dommage.

Ça va?

‘Would you like to go to the cinema?’

‘That would be a pleasure.’ (The fact of going to the cinema would be a pleasure.)

It’s a pity. (Here c’ is impersonal; like ‘it’ in English, c’ refers to no specific noun or idea.)

All right / OK?

3.9.1 Use of demonstrative pronouns in relative clauses

The simple demonstrative pronoun cannot stand on its own. Typically, it is used to introduce relative clauses, celui qui / celle que etc. (see 14.4).

*Levez la main ceux qui savent qui a gagné la bataille d’Azincourt.

Raise your hands those who know who won the battle of Agincourt.

3.9.2 Use of ce, cela, ceci, ça

The pronouns ce, cela, ceci and ça are neutral. Ça is more colloquial.

Il ment, cela se lit sur son visage!	He's lying; you can see that on his face.
Ceci n'est pas pour lui déplaire!	This suits him well.
Pour ce faire, il faudrait parler chinois couramment.	To do that you should be be fluent in Chinese.
Ça va faire trois ans qu'il n'est pas retourné dans son pays.	He hasn't been back to his country for three years.

Note

Ça is frequently used instead of il colloquially (see 3.1.5).

3.10 Possessive pronouns

Possessive pronouns indicate possession or show a relationship between the speaker and a thing, a person or an idea: 'Is that drink mine or yours?' 'The idea was hers.'

KEY POINTS
Possessive pronouns agree in number and gender with the thing possessed:
Mon père habite Rouen. Où habite le vôtre?	My father lives in Rouen. Where does yours live?
–Où sont mes lunettes de soleil?	'Where are my sunglasses?'
–Les tiennes sont dans la voiture, avec les miennes.	'Yours are in the car with mine.'
Ma femme et la tienne se connaissent depuis longtemps.	My wife and yours have known each other for a long time.
Une maison comme la leur, cela doit coûter cher, non?	A house like theirs must cost a lot, mustn't it?

	Masc. singular	Fem. singular	Masc. plural	Fem. plural
First person singular	le mien	la mienne	les miens	les miennes	mine
Second person singular	le tien	la tienne	les tiens	les tiennes	yours
Third person singular	le sien	la sienne	les siens	les siennes	his, hers
First person plural	le nôtre	la nôtre	les nôtres	les nôtres	ours
Second person plural	le vôtre	la vôtre	les vôtres	les vôtres	yours
Third person plural	le leur	la leur	les leurs	les leurs	theirs

Table 5 Possessive pronouns

Note

The possessive pronouns le / la nôtre and le / la vôtre are distinguished from the possessive adjectives notre and votre by the definite article and a circumflex accent on the letter o.

3.10.1 À plus a stressed pronoun indicating possession

The idea of possession may also be expressed by adding à plus a stressed pronoun to the thing possessed.

C'est à lui.

Ces pommes ne sont pas à vous, cher voisin!

Elles dépassent la clôture, elles sont légalement à nous.

It's his.

Those apples are not yours, dear neighbour!

They are on the other side of the hedge and so they are legally ours.

3.11 Indefinite pronouns

Indefinite pronouns are words that do not refer to a specific person or thing. In 'You can ask anyone you like; they are all helpful here', 'anyone' and 'all' are indefinite pronouns.

KEY POINTS

- As in English, indefinite pronouns refer to non-specific persons or things
- Indefinites may be positive, e.g. quelqu'un, tous, plusieurs, or negative, e.g. nul, personne, aucun, rien (see Chapter 7)

The principal indefinite pronouns in French are:

aucun	any, none
l'(les) autre(s)	the other one(s)
le (la) (les) même(s)	the same
n'importe qui	no matter who
n'importe quoi	anything
nul	nobody
personne	nobody
plusieurs	several
quelque chose	something
quelqu'un	someone
qui que ce soit	whoever
quiconque	anyone
quoi que ce soit	anything
rien	nothing
tel(le)(s)	some
tous	all

tout le monde

tout

Tu as vu les joueurs! Plusieurs ont été blessés pendant le match.

Tout est bien qui finit bien.*

J'ai perdu mon parapluie. Est-ce que quelqu'un peut m'en prêter un?

everyone

Pronouns in context

Nos enfants, l'électronique et l'informatique

Aujourd'hui, les jeunes baignent dans l'informatique. Dès la prime enfance on leur offre un ordinateur portable, puis il leur faut un téléphone portable et très vite ils ne jurent que par lui. Les textos, ils les composent 10 fois plus vite que vous. Le tout dernier modèle, ils en rêvent, et quand ils l'ont, ils ne manquent pas une occasion pour le comparer avec celui du copain. Même chose avec les ordinateurs portables:

- Le mien a un disque dur d'un téraoctet.
- Oui mais le tien n'a pas de carte graphique HD.
- Pour moi ce n'est pas ça qui compte. Mon ordi, je le veux rapide, mince, léger et avec beaucoup de mémoire. Je télécharge des films et je les regarde dans le train, le bus, partout. Ça me divertit. Si tu veux, viens chez moi, je te montrerai.
- Toi, ce qui te plaît c'est le cinéma, moi, ce sont les jeux. J'en ai des dizaines. J'y passe des heures entières. Si tu veux tu peux jouer avec moi!

Les jeunes deviennent inaccessibles. Certains passent des journées sur la toile. Que font-ils? Qui est derrière l'écran? On voudrait les mettre en garde, mais ils se rient de nous. Ajoutez à cela qu'ils passent les weekends et les vacances entre copains. Et de peur que vous ne les contrôliez, ils ne vous acceptent même pas comme amis sur Facebook.

On a vraiment l'impression qu'ils cherchent à se réfugier dans un monde virtuel. Pourtant, la toile est loin d'être un havre de paix. La violence de certains messages échangés est bien réelle et celui ou celle qui la subit vit un enfer.

Subject	on leur offre un ordinateur portable; Si tu veux tu peux [3.1]
Direct object	quand ils l'ont; ils ne vous acceptent; Mon ordi, je le veux rapide, mince, léger; celui ou celle qui la subit [3.2]

9. Ils sont jeunes, ils se poursuivent toujours.
10. « Oui, nous nous amusons bien tous les trois. »

An adjective is a word that gives more information about a noun or a pronoun.

When we say 'John has a computer', we communicate no information about the computer except that John possesses it. When we place an adjective before 'computer', e.g. 'John has a new computer', or after it, e.g. 'John's computer is new', we describe the computer further.

In English, adjectives are usually placed either before the noun or separate from it, as the complement of the verb. The English term for the former type of adjective is 'attributive' and the latter 'predicative'.

KEY POINTS

In French, adjectives are generally used in the same way as in English.

They are either:

- attributive (épithète in French), i.e., next to the noun they describe:

Une usine désaffectée

a disused factory

une Rolls Royce blanche a white Rolls-Royce

or

predicative (attribut in French), i.e., separated from the noun by a verb of 'state', like être or sembler:

L'usine semble désaffectée.

The factory appears disused.

La Rolls Royce est blanche.

The Rolls-Royce is white.

There are three major differences between adjectives in French and English:

- Adjectives agree with the noun or pronoun in gender:

un bulletin blanc

a blank vote [masculine singular]

une maison blanche

a white house [feminine singular]

une machine volante

a flying machine [feminine singular]

Les musées sont ouverts le dimanche.

The museums are open on Sundays.
[masculine plural]

Les écoles sont fermées le samedi.

Schools are closed on Saturdays. [feminine plural]

- Adjectives agree with the noun or pronoun in number:

une copie blanche

a blank script [feminine singular]

des cahiers de textes quadrillés exercise books with squared paper

[feminine plural]

Ils ont laissé toutes les fenêtres ouvertes.

They left all the windows open. [feminine plural]

- Adjectives are normally placed after the noun, with the exception of a number of common adjectives which precede it:

un disque dur

a hard disk

But

un gros ordinateur

a large computer

4.1 The position of adjectives

4.1.1 Position after the noun

The following adjectives are normally placed after the noun:

- Long adjectives (of more than three syllables) qualifying a short noun:

une vue bucolique	a bucolic view
un site enchanteur	an enchanting site

- Adjectives followed by a complement or modified by a long adverb (more than one syllable):

un bateau vieux de 30 ans	a thirty-year-old boat
une fille vraiment jolie	a really pretty girl

- Adjectives of colour or geometrical form:

une cour carrée	a square courtyard
des murs blancs	white walls
une route sinueuse	a winding route

Note

In figurative use, or in poetry, colour adjectives can be placed before the noun:

de noirs desseins	dark designs
les vertes collines du Maine	the green hills of Maine

- Adjectives with an idea of time:

les générations futures	future generations
les pages suivantes	the following pages

4.1.4 Adjectives which accompany numbers

Several adjectives which accompany a number are placed after that number, unlike in English. These are: premier (first), dernier (last), autre (another), prochains (next) and mêmes (same).

les trois derniers jours les cinq dernières minutes les quatre prochains jours les deux autres dimanches

the last three days
the last five minutes
the next four days
the other two Sundays

4.2 The feminine of adjectives

4.2.1 Adjectives which add -e to form the feminine

- As with nouns, the feminine of adjectives is usually formed by adding -e to the masculine:

Masculine	Feminine
cru	crue	raw
joli	jolie	pretty
national	nationale	national
poli	polie	polite
régional	régionale	regional
vrai	vraie	true

- In most cases, the addition of the -e causes the final consonant (that appears in the written form of the word) to be pronounced:

étonnant	étonnante	surprising
fort	forte	strong
grand	grande	big
gris	grise	grey
inclus	incluse	inclusive
petit	petite	little
persan	persane	Persian

Note

The adjectives grand and franc, when used in compound nouns in certain set expressions, are invariable in the feminine singular: une grand-mère but des grands-mères (grandmother[s]). In these expressions:

- grand does not mean ‘big’ or ‘tall’ in physical stature (a grandmother is not necessarily ‘big’).
- grand is linked to a word by a hyphen to create a compound word. The most frequent of these words are:

grand-maman (grandma)

grand-mère (grandmother)

grand-route / grand-rue (main / high street)

grand-tante (great-aunt)

grand-vergue (main yard)

grand-voile (mainsail)

(ne) pas grand-chose (not much, not a lot) à grand-peine (with great difficulty)

avoir grand-peur (to be fear-stricken)

Otherwise, grand is not followed by a hyphen and agrees with its noun: grande banlieue (outer suburbs); grandes vacances (summer [i.e. long] holidays); Grande Bretagne (big compared with Bretagne [Brittany]); Grande Ourse (Great Bear); grande surface (hypermarket; large surface).

4.2.2 Adjectives which are invariable in the masculine and feminine Adjectives which end in -e are the same in the masculine and feminine:

habile	habile	clever
riche	riche	rich
sale	sale	dirty
sincère	sincère	sincere
utile	utile	useful

Exceptions

maître	maîtresse	master, main
traître	traîtresse	treacherous
une poutre maître	a main beam
une accalmie traîtresse	a deceptive lull

Note

drôle (funny), ivrogne (drunk), pauvre (poor), suisse (Swiss) are the same in the feminine: une histoire drôle (a funny story), une montre suisse (a Swiss watch), but nouns formed from them have a feminine form: une drôlesse (hussy), une Suissesse (Swiss woman).

4.2.3 Adjectives ending in -er

Adjectives ending in -er form the feminine in -ère:

Masculine	Feminine
cher	chère	dear
entier	entière	whole
fier	fière	proud
léger	légère	light
printanier	printanière	spring(like)

Note

The masculine forms of amer (bitter) and fier are pronounced the same as the feminine amère [amɛR] and fière [fjɛR].

4.2.4 Adjectives ending in -el, -eil, gentil and nul

Adjectives ending in -el, -eil, gentil and nul double the final l in the feminine:

habituel	habituelle	habitual
nul	nulle	no, useless
pareil	pareille	same

4.2.5 Adjectives ending in -et

Adjectives ending in -et double the t before the final -e of the feminine:

muet	muette	dumb
net	nette	clear, net
fluet	flurette	slight, frail
violet	violette	violet, purple
propret	proprette	neat and tidy

Exceptions

- The following adjectives form the feminine in -ète:

complet	complète	complete
concret	concrète	concrete
discret	discrète	discreet
inquiet	inquiète	worried
secret	secrète	secret

- Adjectives ending in -at and -ot do not double the final t:

délicat	délicate	delicate
idiot	idiote	idiotic
bigot	bigote	bigoted

Exceptions

boulot	boulotte	tubby
pâlot	pâlotte	rather pale
sot	sotte	foolish
vieillot	vieillotte	quaint

4.2.6 Adjectives ending in -f

Adjectives ending in -f form the feminine in -ve:

Exception

mormon	mormone	Mormon
---------------	----------------	--------

Note

lapon (Lapp), letton (Latvian), nippon (Japanese) have two feminine forms: lapone / laponne; lettone / lettonne; nipponne / nipponne.

4.2.8 Adjectives ending in -an, -in, -ain, -ein, -un

Adjectives ending in -an, -in, -ain, -ein, -un add -e:

voisin	voisine	neighbouring
plein	pleine	full
anglican	anglicane	Anglican
commun	commune	common

Exceptions

paysan (peasant) doubles the final n: paysanne.

bénin (benign, minor) and malin (malignant, clever) form the feminine in -gne: bénigne, maligne.

4.2.9 Adjectives ending in -c

Adjectives ending in -c form the feminine in -que:

Masculine	Feminine
caduc	caduque	obsolete
public	publique	public
turc	turque	Turkish

Exceptions

blanc	blanche	white
franc	franche	frank, honest
sec	sèche	dry

Notes

- grec (Greek) becomes grecque in the feminine.
- laïque (lay / secular) is both masculine and feminine.

4.2.10 Adjectives ending in -g

Adjectives ending in -g form the feminine in -gue:

long	longue	long
oblong	oblongue	oblong

4.2.11 Adjectives ending in -gu

Adjectives ending in -gu form the feminine in -guë or, since 1990, -güe (see Appendix, pp. 381–92):

aigu	aigüe / aiguë	high-pitched
-------------	----------------------	--------------

ambigu	ambigüe / ambiguë	ambiguous
exigu	exigüe / exigüe	cramped, confined

4.2.12 Adjectives ending in -x and -s

Adjectives ending in -x and -s form the feminine in -se (pronounced [z]):

clos	close	(en)closed
danois	danoise	Danish
français	française	French
gris	grise	grey
jaloux	jalouse	jealous
mauvais	mauvaise	bad
pluvieux	pluvieuse	rainy
ras	rase	short

Exceptions

- doux and frais

doux	douce	sweet

4.2.17 Adjectives without a feminine form

A few adjectives, such as aquilin (aquiline), benêt (simple-minded), hongre (gelded), pers (blue-green) have no feminine form and can only qualify masculine nouns.

un nez aquilin

an aquiline nose

des yeux pers

blue-green eyes

un cheval hongre

a gelded horse

4.2.18 An adjective without a masculine form

Bée (gaping) has no masculine form:

être bouche bée de surprise to be open-mouthed with surprise

4.3 Adjectives with a second masculine form

A number of adjectives have a second masculine form, which is used before a noun beginning with a vowel or a silent h. The feminine derives from the old masculine form.

Masculine singular before a consonant	Masculine singular before a vowel or silent h	Masculine plural	Feminine singular	Feminine plural
beau (beautiful)	bel	beaux	belle	belles
fou (mad)	fol	fous	folle	folles an old building (i.e. decrepit) old buildings

a new man (changed character)

a new man (another man)

new men

crazy love

4.4 The plural of adjectives

4.4.1 Agreement

- An adjective takes the masculine plural form when:
 - all the nouns it qualifies are masculine
 - at least one of the nouns it qualifies is masculine

La porte, la fenêtre et le portail sont ouverts. The door, the window and the gate are open.

Note

When this happens, it is preferable to place the masculine noun nearest to the adjective:

une viande et des légumes bien cuits (lit. a well-cooked piece of meat and well-cooked vegetables) rather than des légumes et une viande bien cuits.

- An adjective takes the feminine plural if all the nouns it qualifies are feminine:

La fenêtre et la porte sont ouvertes.

The window and the door are open.

Ma mère et ma sœur sont petites.

My mother and sister are small.

4.4.2 Formation of the plural

- In general adjectives, like nouns, form the plural by adding -s to the singular. This is the case with all feminine adjectives.

Singular un talon haut

une portière bleue

Plural

des talons hauts

des portières bleues

high heel(s)

blue door(s)

Note

The final -s is not pronounced, except where there is liaison [z]:

des murs jaunes [z] et des rideaux bleus yellow walls and blue curtains

- Masculine adjectives ending in -s or -x.

These adjectives are invariable in the plural:

un enfant heureux

un enfant reclus

des enfants heureux

des enfants reclus

a happy child / happy children

a reclusive child / reclusive children

un papier gris

des papiers gris

a grey piece of paper / grey pieces of paper

- Masculine adjectives ending in -eau.

These adjectives add -x in the plural:

beau

jumeau

nouveau

Tourangeau

beaux

jumeaux

nouveaux

Tourangeaux

beautiful

twin new inhabitant of Tours

de vrais jumeaux

de nouveaux textes de loi identical twins

new bills

Notes

- esquimau (Eskimo) and hébreu (Hebrew) also add -x in the plural:

des livres hébreux

Hebrew books

des chiens esquimaux

huskies

- bleu and feu add -s in the plural:

mes feus grands-parents

my late grandparents

des yeux bleus

blue eyes

But

When feu is placed before a determiner it is invariable:

feu mes oncles

my late uncles

- Masculine singular adjectives ending in -al become -aux in the plural:

un discours inaugural an inaugural speech

des discours inauguraux inaugural speeches

un palais royal

a royal palace

des palais royaux

royal palaces

Exceptions

- The masculine plural of bancal (rickety), fatal (fatal), natal (native), naval (naval) and fractal (fractal) add -s in the plural:

des chantiers navals

naval dockyards

des tabourets bancals

rickety stools

- The masculine plural of a number of adjectives, such as final (final), glacial (glacial), idéel (ideal), pascal (Easter), tribal (tribal), jovial (jolly) and tonal (tonal), ends either in -als or -aux:

des coups de vent glacials or glaciaux

glacial gales

des points finals or finaux

full stops

- The masculine plural of banal is banals in the modern meaning of ‘commonplace’, but banaux in the old meaning of ‘communal’, in a feudal society.

des textes banals

commonplace texts

les moulins banaux

communal mills

4.5 Compound adjectives

- Adjectives, like nouns, can have compound forms:

sourd-muet

deaf and dumb

aigre-doux

bitter-sweet

(See 1.2.16.)

- If the compound adjective includes two adjectives, they both agree in gender and number:

des prunes aigres-douces

bitter-sweet plums

Hier, j'ai vu des étudiants ivres-morts.

I saw some students who were dead-drunk yesterday.

C'est une école pour filles sourdes-muettes.

It's a school for deaf and dumb girls.

- If the compound adjective includes an adjective and an invariable element, only the adjective agrees:

des théories anglo-saxonnes

Anglo-Saxon theories

Les relations franco-américaines s'améliorent.

Franco-German relations are improving.

Molière a écrit des pièces tragi-comiques.

Molière wrote tragicomedies.

4.6 Agreement of adjectives with on

Adjectives related to on are usually masculine singular. However, increasingly on:

- replaces nous in both colloquial French and standard French
- represents a woman or several people.

In these two cases, the adjective agrees with the person it represents. It can therefore be in the masculine or feminine or the singular or plural according to the gender and number of the person(s).

On est toutes arrivées en même temps.

We all arrived at the same time.

Alors, ma chère, on est pressée?

Well now, dear, are you in a hurry?

On était serrés comme des sardines.

We were packed tight like sardines.

4.7 Agreement of adjectives according to meaning

4.7.1 Two nouns linked by et or ou

- If the adjective qualifies two or more nouns it is plural:

une télévision et un ordinateur neufs

a new television and computer une chemise ou un pull vieux

an old shirt or (an old) sweater

- If the adjective qualifies one of the nouns it agrees with the noun that is nearest:

Un ordinateur ou une télévision neuve a computer or a new television (only the television is new)

- At times agreement is obvious:

le père et la fille cadette	the father and the youngest daughter
Au petit déjeuner il prend des céréales ou un œuf brouillé.	He has cereal or scrambled egg for breakfast.

Note

If the two nouns are synonymous or juxtaposed, the adjective is in the singular:

un courage, une bravoure exemplaire	an exemplary courage, bravery
--	-------------------------------

4.7.2 Two nouns linked by de

The adjective agrees with the noun it qualifies:

Ces câbles de TGV sont torsadés.	Those TGV cables are twisted.
ces lignes de TGV bleues	those lines for the blue TGV

4.8 Adjectives of colour

In general straightforward adjectives of colour agree with the noun in gender and number:

une cravate grise	a grey tie
des yeux verts	green eyes

4.8.1 Adjectives of colour which derive from nouns

These are usually invariable (the word couleur is understood):

des portes marron (des portes de la couleur du marron)	brown doors
des couvertures orange	orange blankets
une chemise crème	a cream shirt
des taches olive et citron	olive and lemon stains
des yeux noisette	light-brown eyes

Exceptions

rose (pink), mauve (mauve), pourpre (purple), écarlate (scarlet) act like normal adjectives:

des rubans roses et des rideaux mauves	pink ribbons and mauve curtains
---	---------------------------------

4.8.2 châtain

châtain often adds -s in the masculine plural:

des cheveux châtain nut-brown hair

In the feminine it is sometimes variable:

Des moustaches châtaines or des moustaches châtain brown whiskers

4.8.3 Compound adjectives of colour

Compound adjectives of colour are invariable if they consist of two different adjectives or a colour adjective followed by a complement:

des yeux vert clair	light green eyes
des vestes bleu marine	navy blue jackets
des chemises jaune citron	lemon yellow shirts
des statues vert de gris	verdigris statues

Where two or more adjectives of different colours are used, they are linked by a conjunction or juxtaposed and are usually invariable:

des papillons rouge et blanc	red and white butterflies
des drapeaux bleu, blanc, rouge	blue, white, red flags

4.9 Foreign borrowings

4.9.1 'Compound' adjectives containing prefixes

In 'compound' adjectives which combine a prefix and an adjective, such as hémi-, semi-, tragi-, pseudo-, franco-, anglo-, néo-, the prefix is invariable.

des origines anglo-saxonnes	Anglo-Saxon origins
les plages néo-calédoniennes	New Caledonian beaches
des pièces tragi-comiques	tragi-comic plays
les relations franco-allemandes	Franco-German relations

4.9.2 Other borrowings

Borrowings that have not been gallicized are usually invariable:

des cheveux auburn	auburn hair
des allures sexy	sexy looks
des livres sterling	pounds sterling
des gens cool	cool people

4.9.3 Minimum, maximum and optimum

Le Bon usage (M. Grevisse and A. Goosse, 14th edition, 2010 [p. 708]) advises that these words may vary in number, by adding -s for the plural, but not in gender: des prix minimums (minimum prices) but une température maximum (a maximum temperature).

4.10 Special cases

4.10.1 Invariable words used as adjectives

When words that are not adjectives, such as Empire, bien and famille, have an adjectival function, they are invariable.

des bureaux Empire

des gens bien

des jeunes pas trop famille

Empire-style [Napoleon III] desks

good people

young people who don't believe in family values

4.10.2 Adjectives employed as nouns

Adjectives are commonly used as nouns by placing an article in front of them:

les riches et les pauvres

des clairs-obscurs

the rich and the poor

chiaroscuros

4.10.3 Adjectives employed as adverbs

When adjectives are used as adverbs they do not agree with a noun:

Ils parlent fort.

Elle sent bon.

Vous voyez clair.

They are speaking loudly.

She feels well.

You see clearly.

(See Chapter 6.)

4.10.4 Shortened adjectives

Shortened adjectives and abbreviations used adjectivally are invariable:

des gens sympa

des gens BCBG (Bon Chic, Bon Genre)

des gens parano

friendly / nice people

(ironic) respectable, upper middle-class people paranoid people

4.11 Adjectival expressions

- The expression seul à seul has been invariable in the past:

Je me suis retrouvé seul à seul avec Brigitte. I found myself alone with Brigitte.

but nowadays grammars tend to make this expression agree:

Je me suis retrouvé seul à seule avec Brigitte.

Je me suis retrouvée seule à seul avec Pierre.

- Avoir l'air + adjective

Avoir l'air, a verb expressing a state, like paraître, is followed by an adjective which agrees with the subject:

Ils ont l'air méchants. They look nasty.

Elle a l'air intelligente. She seems intelligent.

When, however, avoir l'air has its full sense of 'appearance', i.e., avoir une physionomie, the adjective agrees with 'air':

Ils ont l'air méchant. They have a nasty appearance.

Elle a l'air intelligent. She has an intelligent look.

- Demi, semi, mi, nu

Demi (half), semi (half), mi (mid) and nu (naked) are invariable when they precede the noun, and they are linked to it by a hyphen (see 1.3.17):

des semi-remorques	articulated lorries
une demi-heure	a half-hour
la mi-saison	mid-season
nu-tête	bare-headed
nu-pieds	barefoot

Nu agrees in gender and number when it is placed after the noun:

la tête nue	bare head
les pieds nus	bare feet

Demi can be placed after the noun. It is then linked by et and agrees only in gender.

une heure et demie	an hour and a half
deux doses et demie	two and a half doses

- Bon marché and meilleur marché

Bon marché (cheap) and meilleur marché (cheaper) are invariable:

Les maisons sont bon / meilleur marché en Belgique.	Houses are cheap / cheaper in Belgium.

● Possible

Possible is invariable after a superlative:

Il souhaite travailler le plus d'heures possible.

He hopes to work for the most possible hours.

le moins d'erreurs possible

the least possible mistakes

4.12 Comparison of adjectives

(See also 6.4.)

When making comparisons using adjectives, various adverbs are used to indicate different degrees of intensity:

aussi ... que

as ... as plus ... que

more ... than le plus ...

the most ...

moins ... que

less ... than

le moins ...

the least

● The comparative

Comparisons establish a connection between two elements in three different ways:

- comparison of equality

When the two elements are of equal value, aussi ... que (as ... as) is used:

Le loup est aussi menacé que le rhinocéros.

The wolf is as endangered as the rhinoceros.

- comparison of superiority

When one component is greater than the other, plus ... que (more ... than) is used. (For this type of comparison in English either -er is added to the adjective or 'more' precedes it.)

Les pays d'Afrique sont plus chauds que ceux d'Europe.

African countries are hotter than European ones.

Le loup est plus menacé que l'éléphant.

The wolf is more endangered than the elephant.

- comparison of inferiority

When one element is less than another moins ... que (less ... than) is used.

L'éléphant est moins menacé que le loup.

The elephant is less endangered than the wolf.

● The superlative

The superlative expresses a quality in its greatest possible degree. The superlative can be:

- Absolute superlative

The equality is of the highest degree, without comparison. The adverbs used are très (very), extrêmement (extremely):

Cet ordinateur est très performant. This computer is very high performance.

The absolute superlative can also be formed by adding the suffix -issime to the adjective: rarissime (extremely rare), grandissime (tremendous), richissime (fabulously rich).

○ Relative superlative

The quality of the adjective is of a very high degree or a very low degree when compared with all others. The adverbs used are le plus ... (either adjective + -est or 'the most' + adjective in English) and le moins ... (the least).

Elle est la plus douée de sa promotion. She is the most talented person in her year-group.

Notes

- Adjectives like meilleur and pire are already comparatives and cannot therefore be preceded by plus or moins (plus meilleur* and plus pire* are not possible).
- Certain adjectives, such as préféré (favourite), total (total) and entier (whole), cannot be superlatives because the idea of highest quality is already present in them.
- Adjectives like double, triple, parallèle and rectangulaire, as well as âiné (older-est), cadet (younger-est), principal (principal) and unique (unique) are incompatible with the idea of degree. Plus cadet*, plus principal* and plus double* are therefore impossible.
- Specific cases

The adjectives bon, mauvais and petit have the irregular comparative forms meilleur, pire and moindre respectively. Note however that the alternatives plus mauvais / le plus mauvais and plus petit / le plus petit exist for pire and moindre.

Comparative	bon	meilleur, -e, -s, -es ... (que)	Cette fois les résultats étaient meilleurs. This time the results were better.
	mauvais	pire, -s / plus mauvais, -e, -es ... (que)	Il a fait pire que la dernière fois. He did worse than the last time.
	petit	plus petit, -e, -s, -es / moindre, -s ... (que)	dans une moindre mesure to a lesser extent

Superlative	bon	le meilleur la meilleure les meilleur(e)s	C'est à Lyon qu'on trouve les meilleurs restaurants. It's in Lyons that you find the best restaurants.
	mauvais	le, la, les pire(s) / le, la, les plus mauvais(e)s	Ce voyage fut la pire/la plus mauvaise chose qui me soit arrivée. That journey was the worst thing to happen to me.
	petit	le, la, les moindre(s) / le, la, les plus petit(e)s	C'est la moindre des choses. It's the least we can say. Michel est le plus petit des trois. Michel is the smallest of the three.

4.13 Verbal adjectives

Verbal adjectives are derived from the present participle of verbs. The present participle is formed by adding -ant to the stem of the first person plural of the present indicative. The verbal adjective and the present participle are similar, but there is often a difference of spelling between them. A useful way of distinguishing the verbal adjective is by replacing it with an adjective (see 10.4.3).

Formation

Verb	1st person plural	Present participle	Verbal adjective
finir	Nous finiss-ons	finiss-ant	finiss-ant(e)s
exceller	Nous excell-ons	excell-ant	excell-ent(e)s
fatiguer	Nous fatigu-ons	fatigu-ant	fatig-ant(e)s
convaincre	Nous convainqu-ons	convainqu-ant	convainc-ant(e)s
briller	Nous brill-ons	brill-ant	brill-ant(e)s

À Polytechnique on trouve des étudiants excellant en mathématiques. At Polytechnique you find students excelling in mathematics.
À Polytechnique on trouve d'excellents étudiants. At Polytechnique you find excellent students.

● Verbal adjectives ending in -ent

A number of verbal adjectives end in -ent instead of -ant: excellent (excellent), différent (different), négligent (negligent), influent (influential), équivalent (equivalent):

des idées convergentes

convergent ideas

des parents négligents

careless parents

● Verbal adjectives of verbs ending in -guer

The verbal adjective ends in -gant, whereas the present participle ends in -quant:

un personnage intrigant

a scheming character

● Verbal adjectives of verbs ending in -quer

Some verbal adjectives end in -cant, others end in -quant, like the present participle: paniquer, paniquant(e)(s) (to panic / panicking), communiquer, communicant(e)(s) (to communicate / communicating):

une scène paniquante

a scary scene

Son attitude est provocante.

His attitude is provocative.

Notes

● The verbal adjective agrees with the noun in gender and number:

une cuisine excellente

an excellent cuisine

des femmes exigeantes

demanding women

● It can be modified by an adverb of degree:

Ce travail est plus fatigant que l'autre.

This job is more tiring than the other one.

● The verbal adjective can always be replaced by another adjective, unlike the present participle. In L'année suivante, ils iront en Afrique (The following year they will go to Africa), suivante can be replaced by prochaine: L'année prochaine, ils iront en Afrique.

but

In Ils vécurent à Paris les trois années suivant leur mariage (They lived in Paris for the three years following their marriage), suivant is a present participle; les trois années prochaines leur mariage* is not possible.

Adjectives in context

LA REMPAILLEUSE

On prit pour arbitre le docteur, vieux médecin parisien retiré aux champs, et on le pria de donner son avis.

Justement, il n'en avait pas: (...)

« C'est une affaire de tempérament ; quant à moi, j'ai eu connaissance d'une passion qui dura cinquante-cinq ans sans un jour de répit, et qui ne se termina que par la mort. »

La marquise battit des mains.

« Est-ce beau cela ! Et quel rêve d'être aimé ainsi ! Quel bonheur de vivre cinquante-cinq ans tout enveloppé de cette affection acharnée et pénétrante ! Comme il a dû être heureux et bénir la vie celui qu'on adora de la sorte ! »

Le médecin sourit :

« En effet, madame, vous ne vous trompez pas sur ce point, que l'être aimé fut un homme. Vous le connaissez, c'est M. Chouquet, le pharmacien du bourg. Quant à elle, la femme, vous l'avez connue aussi, c'est la vieille rempailleuse de chaises qui venait tous les ans au château. Mais je vais me faire mieux comprendre. »

L'enthousiasme des femmes était tombé ; et leur visage dégoûté disait : « Pouah ! » comme si l'amour n'eût dû frapper que les êtres fins et distingués, seuls dignes de l'intérêt des gens comme il faut.

There are three types of numbers:

- those we use for counting (7, 25, 302, 1000, etc.), called cardinal numbers
- those we use for placing things in order (1st, 6th, 21st, etc.), called ordinal numbers
- those we use for stating approximate quantities ('a dozen or so', 'a couple', etc.)

There are many differences between French and English in the way that numbers are formed and used.

KEY POINTS

- Numbers are determiners which indicate the quantity of the thing described.

In general, numbers precede the noun, but there are some exceptions:

deux mille euros

two thousand euros

le troisième homme

the third man

But

l'an 2000

the year 2000

Henri IV (quatre)

Henry the Fourth

- Numbers do not agree in gender with the exception of:
 - the cardinal number un(e) either standing alone or forming part of another number.

Parmi les concurrents il n'y avait qu'une fille.

Among the contestants there was only one girl.

J'ai cent un amis sur Facebook.

I've a hundred and one Facebook friends.

vingt et une bouteilles

twenty-one bottles

- the ordinal numbers, premier(s) / première(s) and second(e)(s)

les premières fleurs du printemps

the first blossom of spring voyager en seconde classe to travel second class

5.1 Cardinal numbers

0	zéro	17	dix-sept
1	un	18	dix-huit
2	deux	19	dix-neuf
3	trois	20	vingt
4	quatre	21	vingt et un
5	cinq	22	vingt-deux
6	six	23	vingt-trois
7	sept	24	vingt-quatre
8	huit	25	vingt-cinq
9	neuf	26	vingt-six
10	dix	27	vingt-sept
11	onze	28	vingt-huit
12	douze	29	vingt-neuf
13	treize	30	trente
14	quatorze	31	trente et un
15	quinze	40	quarante
16	seize	41	quarante et un

50	cinquante	102	cent deux
51	cinquante et un	103	cent trois
60	soixante	200	deux cents
61	soixante et un	201	deux cent un
70	soixante-dix	300	trois cents
71	soixante et onze	1 000	mille
72	soixante-douze	1 001	mille un
73	soixante-treize	1 100	mille cent*
80	quatre-vingts	1 101	mille cent un
81	quatre-vingt-un	1 200	mille deux cents*
82	quatre-vingt-deux	2 000	deux mille
83	quatre-vingt-trois	1 000 000	un million
90	quatre-vingt-dix	1 200 000	un million deux cent mille
91	quatre-vingt-onze	1 000 000 000	un milliard
92	quatre-vingt-douze	1 000 000 000 000	un billion
93	quatre-vingt-treize
100	cent
101	cent un

* onze cents (1 100), douze cents (1 200) etc. are alternatives

Note

In Belgium and Switzerland the cardinal numbers are identical except for 70–79 and 90–99:

70 = septante, 71 = septante et un, etc.; 90 = nonante, 91 = nonante et un, etc.

In Switzerland octante (80), etc. also exists.

5.1.1 Linkage of numbers

● Use of et

- et is inserted where 1 is added to tens: vingt et un, trente et un, except quatre-vingt-un and quatre-vingt-onze
- et is not inserted after hundreds or thousands, where it would be in English:

cent dix

a hundred and ten

mille soixante-deux

a thousand and sixty-two

● Use of hyphens*

- Hyphens link most compound numbers under 100:

17 dix-sept

45 quarante-cinq

98 quatre-vingt-dix-huit

- They do not link 21, 31, 41, 51, 61, 71, 101, 1 001, 100 000 001:

21 vingt et un
 31 trente et un
 71 soixante et onze
 101 cent un
 1 001 mille un

- They do not link numbers of 100 and above with a following number (but added compound numbers retain their hyphen[s]):

103 cent trois
 133 cent trente-trois
 191 cent quatre-vingt-onze
 1 420 mille quatre cent vingt

*Under the new rules for spelling (1990) it is suggested that hyphens be inserted for all compound numbers. For example: 1328 = mille-trois-cent-vingt-huit (see Appendix pp. 381–92).

5.1.2 Plurals

- quatre-vingts loses the final s when another number is added:

88 quatre-vingt-huit

but not when another noun follows:

quatre-vingts kilos

eighty kilos

- cent adds an s when it is multiplied and not followed by another number.

Hundreds from deux cents to neuf cents lose the final s when another number is added:

200 deux cents
 1 800 mille huit cents
 777 sept cent soixante dix-sept

but not when a noun follows:

quatre cents habitants

four hundred inhabitants

- un million, un milliard, un billion are nouns and must be made plural when necessary:

trois millions

three million

deux millions trois cent mille cinq

two million three hundred thousand and five but they must be followed by de / d' when they precede words other than numbers:

un million d'habitants

a million inhabitants

un milliard de livres

a billion pounds

5.1.3 huit, onze

When le precedes huit or onze, it is not elided to L':

le onze mars

the 11th of March

le numéro de mon billet est le huit.

The number of my ticket is eight.

5.1.4 Pronunciation

● six, dix /sis/, /dis/

- the final letter is pronounced [s] when the number stands alone or at the end of a sentence:

Il en veut six. /sis/

He wants six.

Il y en avait dix. /dis/

There were ten of them.

- the final letter is pronounced [z] when the number precedes a word beginning with a vowel or silent h:

dix euros /diz/

ten euros

à six heures /siz/

at six o'clock

- the final letter is not pronounced before a word beginning with a consonant:

six jours /si/

six days

dix roubles /di/

ten roubles

● huit /ɥit/

The final -t is pronounced when huit stands alone or precedes a word beginning with a vowel or silent h:

huit hommes /ɥit/

eight men

J'en veux huit. /ɥit/

I want eight.

but it is not pronounced before a noun beginning with a consonant:

huit dollars /ɥi/

eight dollars

● vingt /vɛ̃/

The final -t is pronounced only in the numbers 21–29 and when vingt precedes a word beginning with a vowel or silent h:

vingt enfants /vɛ̃t/

twenty children

● cent /sɑ̃/

The final -t is not pronounced when another number follows, e.g. 101 cent un, 108 cent huit, but it is pronounced when cent precedes a word beginning with a vowel or silent h:

cent arbres /sɑ̃t/

a hundred trees

5.1.5 Placing of cardinal numbers after the noun

Cardinal numbers follow the noun when referring to a page, a line of text / a poem, a bus, a terminal, and a year. A definite article precedes the noun in these cases (see also 5.2.4).

4th	quatrième	21st	vingt et unième
5th	cinquième	22nd	vingt-deuxième
6th	sixième	30th	trentième
7th	septième	40th	quarantième
8th	huitième	50th	cinquantième
9th	neuvième	60th	soixantième
10th	dixième	70th	soixante-dixième
11th	onzième	71st	soixante et onzième
12th	douzième	80th	quatre-vingtième
13th	treizième	90th	quatre-vingt-dixième
14th	quatorzième	91st	quatre-vingt-onzième
15th	quinzième	100th	centième
16th	seizième	1000th	millième
17th	dix-septième

Note

dernier, -ière(s) = last

le dernier jour des vacances

the last day of the holidays

5.2.1 Formation

Ordinal numbers are formed by adding -ième to the cardinal number. Note that:

- cardinal numbers, e.g. quatre, drop the final ending -e:

la quatrième année de ses études

the fourth year of his studies

5.3 Word order when a cardinal and ordinal number are together

Unlike in English, when a cardinal and an ordinal number, or dernier, come together, the cardinal number always comes first:

les trois premiers jours d'avril

the first three days of April

Les deux derniers coureurs étaient italiens.

The last two runners were Italian.

5.4 Approximate numbers

Approximate numbers are formed, in general, by adding the suffix -aine to the cardinal number, dropping the final -e, where relevant.

une huitaine

about eight une dizaine

about ten (note the -x of dix becomes -z)

une douzaine

about a dozen (but see note below)

une quinzaine

about fifteen une vingtaine about twenty une trentaine about thirty une quarantaine about forty une cinquantaine

about fifty une soixantaine

about sixty une centaine

about a hundred un millier

about a thousand

Note

The following numbers usually denote a specific quantity or time period:

une douzaine

(exactly) a dozen

une huitaine

a week

une quinzaine

a fortnight

As nouns, these numbers are followed by de when expressing an approximate quantity of something:

une douzaine d'œufs

a dozen eggs

Elle aura la trentaine.

She'll be about thirty.

des centaines de personnes hundreds of people

5.5 Time

- The full answer to the question Quelle heure est-il? (What time is it?) begins Il est ...

Il est une heure.

It's one o'clock.

Il est trois heures vingt-cinq.

It's twenty-five past three.

- For 'half past' the hour et demi(e) is added:

Il est six heures et demie.

It's half past six.

Il est midi et demi.

It's half past twelve/midday.

- For 'quarter past' and 'quarter to' the hour et quart and moins le quart are added; for times in between: for 'past' just add the number; for 'to' moins plus the figure is used:

Il est huit heures et quart.

It's a quarter past eight.

Il est huit heures dix.

It's ten past eight.

Il est neuf heures moins le quart.

It's a quarter to nine.

Il est neuf heures moins vingt-cinq.

It's twenty-five to nine.

Figures may be used as an alternative to the above:

8.15 huit heures quinze

8.20 huit heures vingt

8.30 huit heures trente

8.45 huit heures quarante-cinq

8.55 huit heures cinquante-cinq

- The twenty-four-hour clock is used for timetables, opening hours, etc.

Le magasin est ouvert de 14h00 à 17h30.

The shop is open from 14:00 to 17:30.

Le train part à 23h22.

The train departs at 23:22.

- 'a.m.' and 'p.m.' are expressed in French by du matin, de l'après-midi and du soir:

Je suis parti à 11 heures du matin.

I left at 11 a.m.

Viens à 7 heures et demie du soir.

Come at 7.30 p.m.

- When stating distance in terms of time, the word minute(s) is often omitted:

Le château est à 1 heure 35 de marche.

The castle is 1 hour 35 minutes' walk.

5.6 Dates

- Cardinal numbers are used for days of the month, with the exception of premier (the first):

le 1^{er} [premier] août

(on) 1st [the first of] August

le 15 [quinze] septembre

(on) 15th [the fifteenth of] September

le 31 [trente et un] octobre

(on) 31st [the thirty-first of] October

- There are two ways of expressing the year:

1998 mille neuf cent quatre-vingt-dix-huit [lit. one thousand nine hundred and ninety-eight]

or dix-neuf cent quatre-vingt-dix-huit nineteen hundred and ninety eight but only the first way is used from 2000 onwards.

2013 deux mille treize (two thousand and thirteen)

- Decades are expressed by les années plus the number:

J'ai beaucoup voyagé dans les années soixante-dix. I travelled a lot in the seventies.

5.7 Measurements

The adjectives épais (thick), haut (high), large (wide), long (long), and profond (deep) are used for measurements. Two structures may be used to express measurement:

- être + (adjective) + de + length, etc.

Cette piste est longue de 400 mètres. That track is 400 metres long.
Le bâtiment est haut de 20 mètres. The building is 20 metres high.

or

avoir + length etc. + de + (adjective)

La table a 90 cm de large. The table is 90 centimetres wide.

In colloquial French faire + length etc. + de + (adjective) is commonplace:

Cette route fait 10 km (de long). This road is 10 kilometres (long).

5.8 Fractions and calculations

- Fractions and decimals

- la moitié (half)

La moitié is the equivalent of 'half' as a noun:

J'ai passé la moitié de ma vie en Afrique. I've spent half my life in Africa.

- demi is the equivalent of 'half' when linked to another noun by a hyphen. It is invariable (see 4.11).

un demi-verre de vin blanc half a glass of white wine une demi-douzaine half a dozen une demi-heure half an hour

When, however, it follows the noun and is linked by et, it agrees with the noun:

une heure et demie	an hour and a half
trois kilos et demi	three and a half kilos

- un quart (a quarter), trois quarts (three quarters)

Un quart des habitants n'ont pas voté.	A quarter of the inhabitants did not vote. (Note the plural agreement with 'habitants' here)
---	--

Les trois quarts des bouteilles étaient vides.	Three-quarters of the bottles were empty.
---	---

- un tiers (a third), les deux tiers (two-thirds)

Un tiers de la population est mal nourri.	A third of the population is malnourished.
--	--

Les deux tiers des grévistes sont retournés à la maison.	Two-thirds of the strikers have gone home.
---	--

Ordinal numbers are used for the remaining fractions: un sixième (a sixth), un huitième (an eighth), un dixième (a tenth), etc.

- when a number is followed by decimal, a comma is used to separate them (unlike in English, which uses a full stop):

65,5 %	65.5%
21,35 €	€21.35

- sur with numbers

sur is the equivalent of 'out of' in such phrases as deux sur trois (two out of three) and dix sur vingt (ten out of twenty).

● Calculations

$2 + 2 = 4$	deux et/plus deux font/égalent quatre	two and two make/are four
$4 - 2 = 2$	quatre moins deux égalent deux	four minus two makes two
$3 \times 3 = 9$	trois fois trois font/égalent neuf	three times three makes nine
$30 \div 6 = 5$	trente divisé par six égalent cinq	thirty divided by six equals five

5.9 Quantifiers

Quantifiers are words or phrases used before a noun to indicate the amount or quantity. In English 'many', 'enough', 'all' are quantifiers. Like numbers, they are determiners.

- Quantifiers are words and phrases of the following kind:

assez de	enough
beaucoup de	much, many
bien de	many
chacun de	each one of
chaque	each

moins de	less, fewer
peu de	few
pas de	no, not any of
plus de	more
quelques	a few, some
plusieurs	several
trop de	too many
tous	all

Nous n'avons pas assez de temps pour peindre les quatre murs de la pièce.	We haven't enough time to paint the four walls of the room.
Chaque fois qu'il vient nous nous disputons.	Each time he comes we quarrel.
Tous les jours il commence par faire ses exercices.	Every day he begins by doing his exercises.

- When the subject of the sentence is beaucoup de, bien de, moins de, peu de, plus de or trop de followed by a plural noun, the verb is plural:

Moins de gens viennent ici qu'avant.	Fewer people come here than before.
Peu de gens savent la vérité.	Few people know the truth.

- When the quantifier stands on its own as the object of the verb, en must precede the verb (see 3.4):

Combien de gens y a-t-il? Il y en a beaucoup.	How many people are there? There are lots.
Où sont toutes les chaises du jardin? Il y en a moins qu'hier.	Where are all the garden chairs? There are fewer than yesterday.
Tu as des pancements? Oui, j'en ai plusieurs.	Have you got any plasters? Yes, I have several.

Note

Quelques becomes quelques-un(e)s when standing alone:

Tours est à quelques kilometres d'ici.	Tours is a few kilometres from here.
– Tu connais les films de Godard?	'Are you familiar with Godard's films?'
– Oui, j'en ai vu quelques-uns.	'Yes, I've seen a few.'

Numbers in context

La fin de Bel Ami

Après 5 ans de bons et loyaux services, le cheval le plus médaillé de ces vingt dernières (1) années se retire en pleine gloire. Trois blessures successives auront eu raison de son courage.

À son palmarès, des gains cumulés atteignant les 637 900 euros (2), trente et une (3) courses courues, neuf victoires et sept placés sur le podium, dont cinq victoires de groupe II. À l'âge de six ans et cinq mois, c'est un exploit. Mais après une honorable deuxième (4) place, malgré deux blessures légères, lors de l'avant-dernier critérium d'Enghien, Bel Ami n'aura pu terminer ce qui allait être son ultime challenge.

En tout, deux tendons et cinq muscles abîmés en trois courses. C'est plus qu'il n'en faut pour abattre un champion de cette trempe. Nos derniers (5) espoirs de voir ce grand coureur de nouveau en piste se sont définitivement évanouis lors de cette dernière (5) course, il y a 3 jours à peine. La vilaine blessure que s'est infligée Bel Ami fait suite à une série de deux autres, plus légères mais handicapantes tout de même. L'incident s'est produit alors que Bel Ami avait déjà couru les trois quarts (6) du parcours, en première (7) position. Sur cette course élégante, de 2,6 km de long (8), talonné par le huit (9), Black Beauty, un pur sang de première (7) classe, lui-même suivi en troisième (10) position par le onze (11), Bourguignon, Bel Ami a dû céder sa place de leader.

Le 3 octobre (12), Bel Ami finira ses jours dans un haras, à 1 heure 10 (13) à peine de Paris. Son propriétaire lui a déjà trouvé une douzaine (14) de juments, de quoi faire des dizaines (15) de poulains de son envergure et qui sait, peut-être des centaines (15) de petits enfants.

3. $\frac{5}{8}$

4. $\frac{1}{2}$

5. 2 $\frac{1}{2}$

6. 3min $\frac{1}{2}$

7. $\frac{1}{9}$

8. $\frac{6}{50}$

9. 8 km $\frac{1}{2}$

10. 2/1000

Adverbs are invariable words or phrases which modify the meaning of different parts of a sentence, including other adverbs. An adverb can also modify a phrase or a whole sentence.

In the sentence 'We walked slowly', the adverb 'slowly' tells you how we walked.

In 'She speaks French very well', the adverb 'very' indicates the degree of her proficiency in the language.

In 'Yesterday, we went to the races', the adverb 'yesterday' tells you when the action of the sentence happened.

KEY POINTS

- In French adverbs function in a similar way as in English. For example, they modify:
 - verbs

Ils aiment passionnément la montagne. They love the mountains passionately.
[Passionnément modifies the verb aiment]
 - adjectives

Cette chemise est trop grande pour lui. That shirt is too big for him. [trop modifies the adjective grande]
 - adverbs

Cette chemise est beaucoup trop grande pour lui. That shirt is much too big for him.
[beaucoup modifies the adverb trop]
 - prepositional phrases

Le pont est exactement derrière ce bâtiment. The bridge is exactly behind that building [exactement modifies the prepositional phrase derrière ce bâtiment]
 - sentences

Théoriquement, il n'est jamais en retard.* In theory, he is never late. [Théoriquement applies to the whole sentence]
- A large number of adverbs end in -ment, which corresponds roughly to English -ly, e.g. absolument (absolutely)
- Adverbs are classified in various types, for example:
 - manner: heureusement (happily)
 - degree: beaucoup (a lot)
 - time: hier (yesterday)
 - place: dedans (inside)
 - assertion: bien sûr (of course)
 - negation: jamais (never)

6.1 Adverbs and adverbials

Adverbs can be single words or expressions of more than one word:

- Examples of one-word adverbs are: bien (well), hier (yesterday), loin (far), mieux (better), plus (more), bientôt (soon), maintenant (now).
- Examples of adverbials are: tout de suite (at once), en vain (in vain), ne ... rien (nothing). Adverbials may be linked by a hyphen: avant-hier (the day before yesterday).
- Adverbial expressions frequently consist of a preposition followed by a noun, adjective or verb: pour ainsi dire (so to speak), à nouveau (afresh), au fur et à mesure (as one goes along, gradually).
- Some adjectives can be used as adverbs, without changing their form:

Elles coûtent cher.

They cost a lot [lit. 'dear'].

Elle s'habille court.

She wears her skirts short.

Ils ont crié fort.

They shouted loudly.

Note

Droit (straight) can be used either as an adverb or an adjective: Elles se tiennent droit or Elles se tiennent droites. (They stand up straight.)

- Some adverbs are borrowed from foreign languages:

Payer cash

to pay cash down (English)

a priori

a priori (Latin)

Allez-y piano

Go easy (Italian)

6.2 Formation of adverbs ending in -ment

Adverbs ending in -ment are very common, and the majority are derived from adjectives.

- Adverbs derived from the masculine form of adjectives ending in a consonant, which add -ment to the feminine form:

Masculine amoureux

doux

faux

fort plein

sec

Feminine → Adverb

amoureuse → amoureusement

douce → doucement

fausse → faussement

forte → fortement

pleine → pleinement

sèche → sèchement

loving → lovingly gentle → gently

false → falsely strong → strongly full → fully dry → drily

Exceptions

bref	brève → brièvement	brief → briefly
gentil	gentille → gentiment	kind → kindly
traître	traîtresse → traîtreusement	treacherous → treacherously

Adverbs which carry an acute accent on the e of the feminine ending:

commun	commune → communément	common → commonly
confus	confuse → confusément	confused → confusedly
obscur	obscur → obscurément	obscure → obscurely
précis	précise → précisément	precise → precisely
profond	profonde → profondément	deep → deeply

Note

It is not always possible to derive an adverb from an adjective. A considerable number of adjectives do not add the ending -ment, among them têtu (stubborn), équivalent (equivalent), gros (big, fat) and mince (thin). In these cases an adverbial phrase introduced by de manière or de façon is used, e.g. de manière têtue, de manière équivalente.

- Adverbs derived from the masculine form of adjectives which end in ai, e, é, i, u add -ment to the adjective:

aisé → aisément	easy → easily
poli → poliment	polite → politely
vrai → vraiment	true → truly

Exceptions

- The following adverbs ending in e, i

aveugle → aveuglément	blind → blindly
commode → commodément	comfortable → comfortably
énorme → énormément	enormous → enormously
gai → gaiement (sometimes gaîment)	cheerful → cheerfully
impuni → impunément	unpunished → with impunity

- Adjectives ending in -eau, -au

nouveau → nouvellement	new → newly
--------------------------------------	-------------

Note

- fou and mou also belong to this category, being derived from the masculine form in old French.

Masculine

fou [old French fol]
mou [old French mol]

Feminine

folle → follement
molle → mollement

Adverb

mad → madly soft → softly

- A number of adverbs ending in -ument add a circumflex accent to the u: -ûment:

assidu → assidûment

assiduous → assiduously

cru → crûment

crude → crudely

incongru → incongrûment

incongruous → incongruously

indu → indûment

inappropriate → inappropriately

(See Appendix, pp. 381–92, for new spelling rules on the circumflex accent.)

- Adverbs derived from the masculine form of adjectives ending in -ent or -ant:

- -ant endings become -amment:

constant → constamment

constant → constantly

élégant → élégamment

elegant → elegantly

- -ent endings become -emment:

récent → récemment

recent → recently

évident → évidemment

evident → evidently

The adverb endings -amment and -emment are pronounced the same (the phonetic symbol for this sound is [-amã]).

Exceptions

lent (slow), présent (present) and véhément (vehement) follow the general rule for adjectives whose masculine form ends in a consonant: lentement (slowly); présentement (presently); véhémentement (vehemently).

Summary

	Formation	Examples
Masculine adjective ending in a consonant	Feminine form of the adjective + ment	Adjective	Feminine	Adverb
		attentif long premier	attentive longue première	attentivement longuement premièrement
Masculine adjective ending in a vowel	Masculine adjective + ment	Masculine form of adjective		Adverb
		modéré résolu vrai		modérément résolument vraiment
Masculine adjective ending in -ant	Stem + amment	courant → couramment galant → galamment

	Formation	Examples
Masculine adjective ending in -ent	Stem + emment	différent → différemment prudent → prudemment violent → violemment

Notes

- Adverbs cannot be formed from adjectives of colour, except for vert (green) in the sense of ‘vigorous’:

Ils se sont faits vertement réprimandés. They were sharply rebuked.

- A number of adverbs ending in -ment are not derived from adjectives:

bigre (= my goodness! exclamation) → bigrement (jolly, extremely) bougre (= fellow, masculine noun) → bougrement (damned) diable (= devil, masculine noun) → diablement (devilishly) vache (= cow, feminine noun) → vachement (colloquial: really, very)

6.3 Different types of adverbs

Adverbs are categorized according to their meaning, but it has to be borne in mind that some adverbs can be considered to belong to several categories.

6.3.1 Adverbs of manner

- Adverbs which indicate the manner in which something is done, e.g.:

ainsi	thus
bien	well
clairement	clearly
comme	how
comment	how
debout	up(right)
ensemble	together
facilement	easily
gentiment	kindly
heureusement	happily
lentement	slowly
mal	badly
mieux	better
plutôt	rather
vite	quickly

- Most adverbs ending in -ment are in this category:

Il a répondu gentiment.

He answered kindly.

Il est clairement ivre.

He's clearly drunk.

Elle avance lentement.

She's moving forward slowly.

6.3.2 Adverbs of degree

Adverbs of this kind indicate a degree of intensity, e.g.:

assez

enough

autant

as much aussi

as beaucoup much combien

how much davantage

more environ

about fort greatly moins

less peu little plus

si

so

tant

so much tellement

so (much)

très

very trop

too much

Elle est assez forte.

She's quite strong.

Elle est arrivée trop tôt.

She's arrived too early.

Ils s'aiment tant!

They love each other so much!

6.3.3 Adverbs of time

Adverbs of time refer to the time when something happened, how long it took or its frequency, e.g.:

aujourd'hui

today

déjà already après

after(wards) depuis

since demain

tomorrow

encore still enfin

at last ensuite

then, next hier

yesterday

longtemps

(for) a long time

maintenant parfois quelquefois soudain souvent tard tôt toujours

now sometimes sometimes suddenly often late soon always

Les œufs sont parfois bruns parfois blancs.
Il arrive souvent tard.
Il était polisson mais il a bien changé depuis.

Eggs are sometimes brown, sometimes white.
 He often arrives late.
 He was very naughty but he's changed a lot since.

6.3.4 Adverbs of place

Adverbs of place refer to where something is or happened:

ailleurs
après autour dedans dehors derrière dessus dessous ici là loin partout près

elsewhere after around inside outside behind on top underneath here there far everywhere near

Il a cherché partout son portefeuille.
Il était loin derrière quand on l'a vu la dernière fois.

He's looked everywhere for his wallet.
 He was far behind when we saw him last.

6.3.5 Adverbs of assertion

These adverbs indicate the degree of belief or agreement of the speaker in response to a statement. They usually modify a whole sentence:

bien sûr certainement
oui sans doute si soit

of course certainly yes
 probably, no doubt yes (responding to a negative remark) very well

volontiers
vraiment

Vous ne venez pas avec nous? Si, je viens.
Il a sans doute pris le taxi pour aller à l'aéroport.
Il ne fait pas la cuisine, mais il fait volontiers la vaisselle.

willingly really

Aren't you coming with us? Yes, I am.
No doubt he's taken a taxi to the airport.
He's doesn't cook but he happily [lit. willingly] does the washing up.

6.3.6 Negative adverbs

Negative words, such as ne ... pas and ne ... rien, are classified as adverbs (see Chapter 7):

Je ne sais pas comment faire avec cet étudiant. I don't know what to do about that student.
On n'a rien sans rien. You don't have anything without working for it. [lit. you have nothing without anything]

6.4 Comparison of adverbs

Adverbs of degree (plus, moins, aussi, etc.) are used to make comparisons (see also 4.12).

6.4.1 Relative degree of comparison

● The comparative

- Comparative of superiority (plus, plus ... que)

plus	more
plus ... que	more ... than
L'herbe est plus verte ailleurs.	The grass is greener elsewhere.
Paul est plus grand que Jean.	Paul is taller than Jean.

- Comparison of equality

aussi	as
aussi ... que	as ... as
pas aussi/pas si ... que	not as ... as
autant (with verbs)	as much

Elle n'est pas si méchante qu'elle en a l'air.	She's not as nasty as she looks.
Il ne boit pas autant depuis sa maladie.	He doesn't drink as much since his illness.
Mon ordinateur ne fonctionne pas aussi bien que le sien.	My computer doesn't work as well as his.

- Comparison of inferiority

moins

less moins ... que

less ... than

Elle est moins méchante qu'elle en a l'air.

She's less nasty than she looks

● The superlative

- The relative superlative: the idea of 'the most' or -est after a short adjective ('the most intelligent', 'the greatest', etc.) is rendered by le plus + adverb or adjective:

C'est le plus beau spectacle de l'année.

It's the most beautiful spectacle of the year.

C'est lui qui court le plus vite.

He's the one who runs fastest.

Les longs courriers sont les avions qui volent le plus haut.

Long-haul planes are the ones that fly highest.

- The absolute superlative, or superlative of 'high degree'

This type of superlative indicates a high degree of a quality without comparing it with anything else. Adverbs like beaucoup (with verbs) and très (with adjectives and past participles used adjectivally) are examples:

Elle semble très à l'aise mais en fait elle est très appréhensive.

She looks very much at ease but in fact she is very apprehensive.

Elle a beaucoup travaillé et elle ne se plaint pas trop.

She has worked a lot and she doesn't complain too much.

Summary

Degree of comparison	Comparative	Elle est plus / aussi / moins grande que moi. She is taller than / as tall as / less tall than me.
	Relative superlative	C'est elle qui est la plus / la moins heureuse de toutes. She is the happiest / least happy of all.
	Absolute superlative	Elle est très / extrêmement heureuse. She is very / extremely happy.

6.4.2 Comparative and superlative forms of bien, mal, pis, beaucoup and peu

Some adverbs, as well as adjectives, have irregular forms in the comparative and superlative (see 4.12):

- bien

bien (well)

Comparative

mieux (better)

Superlative

le mieux (the best)

Elle conduit bien.

She drives well.

Elle conduit mieux que moi.

She drives better than me.

Elle conduit le mieux.

She drives the best (of all).

- mal and pis

The comparative and superlative of mal are regular:

mal (badly)

plus mal (worse)

le plus mal (the worst)

Il conduit mal.

He drives badly.

Il conduit plus mal que moi.

He drives worse than me.

Il conduit le plus mal.

He drives the worst (of all).

The irregular forms pis (worse) and le pis (the worst) also exist. These forms are used nowadays only in set expressions such as tant pis (too bad) and de mal en pis (from bad to worse).

- beaucoup

beaucoup (much, a lot)

plus (more)

le plus (the most)

Il sort beaucoup.

He goes out a lot.

Il sort plus que moi.

He goes out more than me.

Il sort le plus.

He goes out the most (of all).

- peu

peu (little, not much)

moins (less)

le moins (the least)

Elle sort peu.

She doesn't go out much.

Elle sort moins que moi.

She goes out less than me.

Elle sort le moins.

She goes out the least (of all).

6.5 Position of adverbs

6.5.1 Adverbs which modify verbs

- With simple tenses of the verb, the adverb is usually placed after the verb:

Il cherche désespérément un emploi.

He's looking desperately for a job.

Il travaille lentement.

He works slowly.

Note

Presque may be placed before or after a verb in the infinitive:

Presque arriver à l'heure n'est pas arriver à l'heure / Arriver presque à l'heure n'est pas arriver à l'heure.

Arriving almost on time is not the same as arriving on time.

- With compound tenses the adverb is usually placed between the auxiliary verb and the past participle:

Il l'avait instamment prié d'attendre son tour. He had asked him insistently to wait his turn.

Note

Adverbs of time and place are often placed after the past participle:

Il a travaillé hier et avant-hier. He worked yesterday and the day before.
Il est parti loin de chez lui. He has gone far from home.

6.5.2 Adverbs which modify an adjective, a past participle or another adverb

The adverb is usually placed before an adjective, a past participle or another adverb:

Il est plutôt patient avec ses élèves. He's quite patient with his pupils.
Elle est beaucoup trop fière pour présenter des excuses. She's far too proud to make apologies.

6.5.3 Adverbs denoting frequency

With verbs in simple tenses, adverbs of frequency, e.g. toujours (always), parfois (sometimes), jamais (never), de temps en temps (now and again), souvent (often), are placed after the verb in French but before the verb in English:

Je pense souvent à elle. I often think of her.
Il ne répond jamais quand je l'interroge. He never answers when someone questions him.

In compound tenses the adverb may be placed after the auxiliary verb or after the past participle, whereas in English the adverb is placed after the auxiliary:

J'ai marché souvent dans la neige / J'ai souvent marché dans la neige. I have often walked in the snow.

6.5.4 Change of meaning of adverbs according to position

Some adverbs change their meaning according to where they are placed in the sentence.

Compare:

Franchement, Jacques a parlé toute la journée.* To be frank, Jacques talked for the entire day. [Franchement modifies the whole sentence.]

with

Jacques a parlé franchement toute la journée.

Jacques talked with sincerity for the entire day. [Franchement modifies the verb only, with the resultant change of meaning of the adverb.]

and

Logiquement, on devrait pouvoir tout faire.*

In principle, we should be able to do everything. [Logiquement modifies the whole sentence.]

with

On devrait pouvoir tout faire logiquement.

We should be able to do everything logically. [Logiquement modifies the verb only.]

6.6 Inversion after certain adverbs

When placed at the beginning of a sentence, some adverbs, for example peut-être and à peine, require the verb and subject to be inverted (see 3.1.4):

Peut-être sont-ils allés au concert.

Perhaps they've gone to the concert.

À peine étions-nous arrivés qu'ils se mit à pleuvoir.

Scarcely had we arrived than it began to rain.

Adverbs in context

La vraie Tartiflette

- Bonjour Camilla, tu sembles bien préoccupée.
- Ne m'en parle pas! Récemment, j'ai voulu faire une tartiflette à mes amis, elle était carrément sèche.
- Tu n'as peut-être pas mis assez de fromage. Laisse-moi t'expliquer la vraie recette:

Tout d'abord, épluche 500 grammes de pommes de terre et coupe-les soigneusement en dés; rince-les bien.

Fais chauffer délicatement deux cuillères à soupe d'huile dans une poêle et verses-y 200g d'oignons finement coupés. Une fois les oignons parfaitement cuits, ajoute les pommes de terre. Fais dorer légèrement toutes les faces des cubes de tes pommes de terre, rajoute 200g de lardons et attends patiemment la cuisson.

Simultanément, prends ton reblochon, assure-toi que les côtés soient assez mous, et gratte la croûte superficiellement. Coupe-le en deux.

Maintenant préchauffe le four; ne le mets pas trop fort, environ 200°C.

Munis-toi d'un plat à gratin dont tu auras préalablement frotté les bords avec de l'ail.

Verses-y une première couche de tes pommes de terre aux lardons; étale une moitié de ton reblochon par-dessus. Ensuite, étale le reste des pommes de terre que tu recouvriras avec la deuxième moitié de ton reblochon... Attention, la croûte en-dessous!

Mets au four pendant 20 minutes. Et n'oublie pas de m'inviter.

- D'accord, dès demain!

In this recipe adverbs are used to give more information, telling us how, where, when, etc. actions take place. Adverbs modify other parts of speech such as verbs, adjectives and other adverbs. The following table picks out some of the adverbs in the passage showing their type and their function within the sentence.

Adverb	Type	Function
bien	degree	modifies the adjective préoccupée [6.3.2]
ne ... pas	negation	modifies the verbe parle [6.3.6]
récemment	time	modifies the clause: j'ai voulu faire une tartiflette à mes amis [6.3.3]
carrément	manner	modifies the adjective sèche [6.3.1]
soigneusement	manner	modifies the verb coupe [6.3.1]
patiemment	manner	modifies the verb attends [6.3.1]
simultanément	time	modifies the sentence: prends ton reblochon, assure-toi que les côtés soient assez mous, et gratte la croûte superficiellement [6.3.3]
maintenant	time	modifies the sentence préchauffe le four [6.3.3]
trop	degree	modifies the adverb fort [6.3.2]
fort	degree	modifies the verb mets ; this is an example of an adjective used as adverb [6.3.2]
préalablement	time	modifies the verb [tu] auras frotté [6.3.3]
ensuite	time	modifies the sentence: étale le reste des pommes de terre que tu recouvriras avec la deuxième moitié de ton reblochon... [6.3.3]
par-dessus	place	modifies the verb étale [6.3.4]

NEGATION

Negative words are used to say no, to deny or refuse something. In English, these are words like 'not', 'never' and 'nobody'. In general, a negative sentence in English may be expressed in two ways, e.g. 'I never eat fish' or, alternatively, 'I don't ever eat fish'.

In French negation is expressed generally by using two words. The first of these words is invariably ne:

ne ... aucun
 ne ... guère
 ne... jamais
 ne... ni ... ni ne ... nul
 ne ... nullement
 ne ... nulle part ne ... pas
 ne ... personne
 ne ... *point
 ne ... plus

ne ... que
 ne ... rien

*ne point is hardly used in contemporary French.

no, not any, none hardly never, not ever neither ... nor no, not any in no way, not in any way nowhere, not anywhere not nobody, not anybody, no one, not anyone not no more, not any more, no longer, not any longer only nothing, not anything

KEY POINTS

- In simple sentences the first negative element (ne) is always placed before the verb and the second one (pas, jamais, etc.) after it. Ne is elided to n' before a vowel.

Je ne comprends pas ce que tu me dis.

I don't understand what you are saying to me.

Il n'a pas beaucoup d'amis.

He hasn't got many friends.

- In compound sentences, the first negative element is always placed before the verb. The position of the second element is variable: some are placed before the past participle, others after it.

Il n'a rien dit.

He said nothing.

Je n'ai vu personne.

I haven't seen anyone.

- Negative words may stand on their own:

Qu'est-ce que tu as dit? Rien.

What did you say? Nothing.

7.1 Position of negative expressions

- With simple tenses ne is placed before the verb and any object pronouns; the second element immediately follows the verb.

Il ne sera pas là avant demain.

He won't be there before tomorrow.

Je ne vois personne.

I can't see anybody.

Je ne m'en souviens jamais.

I never remember.

Pourquoi tu ne t'y intéresses pas?

Why aren't you interested?

- With compound tenses

- guère, jamais, pas, plus and rien are placed after the auxiliary verb:

Elle ne m'a jamais répondu.

She has never answered me.

Il ne m'a rien caché.

He hasn't hidden anything from me.

- in all other negative expressions the second part goes after the past participle:

Depuis deux ans je n'ai connu aucun succès.

For two years I've had no success.

Il n'a rencontré personne.

He hasn't met anyone.

- The position of the negative expression is the same in questions and imperatives:

N'as-tu pas vu le feu d'artifice?*

Didn't you see the fireworks?

Ne vous faites pas de soucis.*

Don't worry.

- With infinitives in the negative

- ne guère, ne jamais, ne pas, ne plus and ne rien precede the infinitive:

Il vaut mieux ne pas le faire.

It's better not to do it.

J'essaie de ne jamais manger de chocolat.

I try never to eat chocolate.

J'ai fermé les yeux pour ne plus voir.

I shut my eyes so as not to see any more.

- In all other negative expressions, in general, ne precedes the infinitive and the second element follows it:

Il est allé là parce qu'il espère ne voir personne. He's gone there because he hopes he won't see anybody.

Il souhaite n'étudier ni à Paris ni à Londres. He doesn't want to study either in Paris or in London.

7.2 Order of negative expressions

When two or more negative expressions appear in a sentence, the order of the second element is variable. In the most common expressions the following is generally true:

- jamais normally precedes rien, ni and personne

Il ne dit jamais bonjour ni au revoir.

He never says either hello or goodbye.

Elle n'a jamais rien fait de bon.

She's never done anything good.

Il n'aimera jamais personne.

He'll never like anyone.

- plus normally precedes rien and personne

Il n'a plus rien fait de bon depuis son retour.

He hasn't done anything good since his return.

Après tant d'années, elle ne reconnaissait plus personne.

After so many years, she didn't recognize anyone any more.

- rien normally precedes personne

Nous n'avons rien donné à personne cette année.

We've given nothing to anybody this year.

Il n'a rien dit à personne de ses échecs.

He's said nothing to anyone about his setbacks.

7.3 de with a direct object in negative sentences

Where an indefinite or partitive article is used in an affirmative sentence, de or d' is used when the sentence is negated (see 2.5).

Il a une carte mémoire. He's got a memory stick.

Il n'a pas de carte mémoire.

He hasn't got a memory stick.

Elle a des amis. She has (some) friends.

Elle n'a pas d'amis.

She hasn't any friends.

Je mange de la viande. I eat meat.

Je ne mange pas de viande.

I don't eat meat.

Similarly, in sentences containing ne ... jamais, ne ... plus or ne ... guère, a following direct object is always preceded by the article de:

Je ne prend jamais de sucre.
Il n'y a plus de café.
Il n'y avait guère de voyageurs.

I don't ever take sugar.
 There's no more coffee.
 There were scarcely any travellers.

Note

This rule does not apply to the verb être:

Ce n'est pas un film agréable.

It's not an enjoyable film.

7.4 ne ... aucun no, not any, none aucun(e) acts as an adjective or pronoun. It is only found in the singular:

Il n'aura aucun mal à terminer le travail.
Aucun de mes collègues ne va refuser de t'aider.*
Aucune de ses amies ne peut l'oublier.*

He'll have no difficulty finishing the job.
 None of my colleagues will refuse to help you.
 None of her friends can forget her.

7.5 ne ... guère hardly ne ... guère is a restrictive rather than a negative expression:

Je ne sors guère le weekend.
Il n'y a guère de pain.

I hardly go out at weekends.
 There's hardly any bread.

7.6 ne ... jamais never, not ever

- ne ... jamais is an adverbial expression:

Il ne faut jamais parler la bouche pleine.
Elle ne s'est jamais trompée.

You must never speak with your mouth full.
 She's never made mistakes.

- Jamais can be placed at the beginning of a sentence, followed by ne:

Jamais je n'ai vu un tel spectacle!*

I've never seen such a spectacle!

- Jamais can stand on its own:

- As a single word

Vous allez revenir? Jamais.

You'll come back? Never.

- as the equivalent of ‘ever’

As-tu jamais pensé que tu pourrais avoir tort?

Have you ever thought you could be wrong?

Après les vacances je me sens mieux que jamais.

After the holidays I feel better than ever.

7.7 ne ... ni ... ni neither ... nor ne... ni ... ni is a conjunction which can link different elements of a sentence, such as the subject, object pronouns and adjectives:

Ni l'un ni l'autre n'ont su quoi faire.

Neither one nor the other knew what to do.

Je n'ai besoin ni d'aide ni de conseil.

I need neither help nor advice.

Elle n'était ni triste ni contente.

She was neither sad nor happy.

Note

The equivalent of ni in English is often ‘or’:

Il ne faut pas donner de conseils ni à Claude ni à sa femme. You musn't give advice to Claude or his wife.

7.8 ne ... nul(le), no, no any; ne ... nulle part nowhere, not anywhere; ne ... nullement in no way, not in any way

● ne ... nul(le)

Nul has the same meaning as aucun and acts as an adjective or a pronoun. It is almost always found in the singular. ne ... nul means the same as ne ... aucun, but is more formal (see 4.1.3).

Je n'ai nul besoin de pratiquer plus de sport.

I've no need to play more sport.

● ne ... nulle part

Je ne l'ai vue nulle part.

I haven't seen her anywhere.

● ne ... nullement

Je n'avais nullement envie de partir.

In no way did I want to leave.

7.9 ne ... pas not

- pas can be placed at the beginning of a sentence, followed by ne:

Pas un jour ne se passe sans qu'il ne me rende visite. Not a day goes by without his visiting me.

- pas can be omitted after the following verbs: cesser de, oser, savoir, pouvoir:

Il n'a cessé de pleuvoir.

It hasn't stopped raining.

Je n'ose lui rappeler l'argent qu'il me doit.

I daren't remind him of the money he owes me.

Tu ne sais comment le faire.

You don't know how to do it.

Nous ne pouvons aller à Lyon à cause de la grève.

We can't go to Lyons because of the strike.

- pas is used without ne in certain phrases:

C'est pas grave (colloquial).

It's not serious.

Pas de problème!

No problem!

Pas encore.

Not yet.

Pas vrai!

It's not true!

Pas du tout!

Not at all!

Pas grand-chose (colloquial).

Not important / Not much.

7.10 ne ... personne nobody, not anybody, no one, not anyone

- personne may act as subject or object of a verb, or appear after a preposition:

Personne n'avait l'air de faire attention à lui.

Nobody seemed to pay attention to him.

En général, en fin de semaine elle ne voit personne.

In general at the weekend she doesn't see anybody.

Je n'ai plus besoin de personne.

I don't need anyone any more.

Je n'ai parlé de lui à personne.

I haven't spoken to anyone about him.

- personne, meaning 'nobody', can stand on its own:

Il y a quelqu'un dehors? Non, personne.

Is there somebody outside? No, nobody.

7.11 ne ... plus no more, no longer, not any more, not any longer

Depuis quelques mois je ne lui donne plus grand-chose à faire.

For a few months I haven't given him much to do any more.

Il ne sera plus comme avant.

He won't be like he was any more.

Je n'ai plus besoin d'aller chez elle.

I don't need to go to her place any longer.

Ça n'existe plus.

That doesn't exist any longer.

Note

non plus is the equivalent of ‘neither’, ‘nor’:

Je ne veux plus y aller. Moi non plus.

I don't want to go any more. Neither do I /
Nor me.

7.12 ne ... que

ne ... que is a restrictive rather than a negative expression:

Il ne me reste que 20 euros.

I've only 20 euros left.

Il n'y a qu'une personne qui puisse nous aider.

There's only one person who can help us.

7.13 ne ... rien nothing, not anything

- Rien, like personne, may act as subject or object of a verb, or appear after a preposition:

Rien ne va le changer.

Nothing will change him.

Il ne connaissait rien au sujet dont on parlait.

He knew nothing about the subject we were discussing.

Elle ne croit à rien.

She doesn't believe in anything.

Il m'a fait attendre pour rien.

He made me wait for nothing.

- rien de plus an adjective is a frequent construction:

Il n'y avait rien de bon dans ce film.

There was nothing good in that film.

Il n'avait rien d'autre à offrir.

He had nothing else to offer.

- rien meaning ‘nothing’ can stand on its own:

Alors, qu'est-ce que vous voulez? Rien.

Well, what do you want? Nothing.

- expressions with rien:

Ça n'a rien à voir avec ...

That has nothing to do with ...

Ça ne veut rien dire.

That means nothing.

Ce n'est rien.

It's nothing.

De rien.

You're welcome.

en moins de rien

in no time

mieux que rien

better than nothing

rien du tout

nothing at all

Rien à faire!

It's no use!

7.14 Omission of ne in speech

In the expression ne... pas, ne is frequently omitted in colloquial French:

C'est pas moi qui l'ai fait.
Je sais pas.

It's not me who did it.
I don't know.

7.15 Use of non and si

- non is frequently used in negative expressions:

Je crois que non.
Mais non! Vous avez tort!
Non loin d'ici il y a les ruines d'une abbaye.

I don't think so.
No, you're wrong!
Not far from here there lie the ruins of an abbey.

La crise va changer la vie non seulement des pauvres mais aussi des riches.

The crisis will change the lives not only of the poor but also of the rich.

- si is used to answer 'yes' to a negative question:

Tu n'es pas prêt? Si.

You aren't ready, are you? Yes (I am).

(See 15.1.4.)

7.16 n'est-ce pas?

The English question tags 'isn't it?', 'aren't you?', 'didn't they?' etc. are rendered in French by n'est-ce pas?

Tu viendras demain, n'est-ce pas?
Vous avez manqué le train, n'est-ce pas?

You'll come tomorrow, won't you?
You've missed the train, haven't you?

(See 15.1.2.)

7.17 Use of ne without a negative sense

Ne without a negative sense is used optionally in formal French, in the following circumstances:

- after verbs of fearing, e.g. craindre, avoir peur que:

J'ai peur qu'il (ne) revienne.

I'm afraid he'll come back.

- after the conjunctions à moins que, avant que and sans que:

On voyagera ensemble à moins qu'il (n') ait pris un billet de première classe.

We'll travel together unless he's bought a first-class ticket.

Rentre le linge avant qu'il (ne) pleuve.

Bring in the washing before it rains.

- in comparative sentences:

La Scandinavie, c'était mieux que je ne le pensais.

Scandinavia was better than I thought.

7.18 Negative words with sans

When used with sans (without), negative words have positive equivalents in English (rien = anything, plus = any longer, etc.):

sans aucun doute

without any doubt

sans rien demander

without asking for anything sans jamais me rendre compte without my ever realizing

Negation in context

Celui que l'on n'attendait pas!

Ils étaient beaucoup plus nombreux qu'on ne (1) l'avait prévu dans ce Pub londonien en ce dimanche de juillet. De nombreux jeunes qui n'étaient pas (2) venus pour boire mais pour assister en direct à l'arrivée du Tour de France, avaient les yeux rivés sur deux écrans de télévision. On n'avait pas (2) lésiné sur la technologie: un écran géant à l'intérieur et un autre à l'extérieur.

Personne (3) ici n'avait imaginé que cette année le Tour serait remporté par un Britannique, et surtout pas (4) ces jeunes enthousiastes qui, il y a peu n'avaient jamais (5) entendu parler ni du Tour ni (6) de son arrivée sur une des plus belles avenues du monde.

Aujourd'hui, oublie Wimbledon, oublie Roland Garros, rien n'est (7) plus beau que ce maillot jaune sur les Champs Elysées.

Pas question (4) de se laisser distraire d'aucune (8) manière.

Il est loin l'enfant qui rêvait en regardant les compétitions cyclistes sans jamais oser (9) imaginer qu'un jour il serait sur la plus haute marche du podium. Aujourd'hui le champion n'est agé que (10) de 22 ans, mais il n'est nullement (11) un inconnu dans le monde du cyclisme. Il a déjà gagné plusieurs médailles lors de courses sur pistes. Malgré ses succès, notre jeune sportif n'est pas (2) encore une vraie star. Cela ne (12) saurait tarder.

Pendant le Tour, il ne fut certes pas (2) le plus fort dans les étapes de haute montagne, mais il fut suffisamment fort en plaine pour ne pas perdre (13) le maillot jaune endossé dès les premiers jours. Alors bravo quand même au vainqueur, et tant pis s'il n'a pas (2) revêtu une seule fois le maillot à pois du meilleur grimpeur.

Pour ces téléspectateurs il ne fait aucun (8) doute qu' ils vivent là un moment historique: la naissance du nouveau roi de la petite reine!

Je fumerai toujours des gros cigares. J'aurai des amis sincères. Mes parents seront toujours là pour pour garder les enfants.

J'aurai assez d'argent pour envoyer mes enfants étudier à l'étranger. Ils fréquenteront les plus grandes écoles. Ils voyageront toujours.

Ils connaîtront toutes les grandes cultures du monde. Ils seront souvent épanouis et tout le monde les aimera. Ils auront beaucoup d'amis sur Facebook. Ce sera la fête tous les jours.

There is no area of grammar that is more important to understand than the verb. This chapter classifies its features under several headings and explains a number of grammatical concepts and constructions relating to the verb, with the aim of clarifying the way in which it functions in French. Further explanation and exemplification of these concepts is to be found in Verbs 2 (pp. 204–49). For definitions of the terminology used refer to the Glossary on pp. xv–xxi.

8.1 The verb

KEY POINTS

- The verb is a word that expresses either an action (travailler, marcher) or a state (être, paraître).
- The verb is the core of the sentence, around which the other elements of the sentence (the subject, object, etc.) are arranged.
- All clauses must contain a verb.
- The past participle form of the verb (parlé, vendu, etc.) can function as an adjective.
- The infinitive form (parler, vendre) can function as a noun.

Verbs are classified in three groups: (1) -er verbs (e.g. parler [to speak]), (2) most -ir verbs (e.g. finir [to finish]) and (3) a third group consisting of -re verbs (e.g. vendre [to sell]), -oir verbs (e.g. pouvoir [to be able]) and some -ir verbs (e.g. venir [to come]) (see Verbs 3, 9.2.4).

8.2 Characteristics of the verb

Verbs can be classified and regrouped into linking verbs, transitive verbs, intransitive verbs, pronominal verbs and impersonal verbs, as in the table.

Person	6 persons: je, tu, il / elle, nous, vous, ils / elles	Je parle anglais. (1st person) I speak English. Tu parles français. (2nd person) You speak French. Elle parle russe. (3rd person) She speaks Russian.
Number	Singular: je, tu il / elle Plural: nous, vous, ils / elles	Je parle anglais. (singular) I speak English. Nous parlons français. (plural) We speak French.
Mood*	7 moods: - 4 personal: indicative, imperative, conditional and subjunctive and - 3 impersonal: infinitive, participles (present and past), gerund	Vous parlez anglais, je le sais! (indicative) You speak English, I know it! Parlez français, S.V.P.! (imperative) Speak French, please! Il faut que nous parlions russe. (subjunctive) We have to speak Russian. Avec de la pratique tu parlerais mieux. (conditional) With practice you would speak better. un candidat parlant 3 langues (present participle) a candidate speaking 3 languages Il a peu parlé à la conférence. (past participle) He did not speak much at the conference. En parlant tu as dévoilé ton origine. (gerund) By speaking you revealed your origin.
Tense	Present, imperfect, compound past, future, etc.	Je parle anglais. (present) I speak English. Je parlerai français. (future) I will / shall speak French. Avant je parlais mieux. (imperfect) I used to speak better before.

Type	4 types of verb: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> – verb (standing on its own) – auxiliary and semi-auxiliary – transitive and intransitive – impersonal 	J'ai une vieille voiture. (verb) I have an old car. J'ai acheté une vieille voiture. (auxiliary) I've bought an old car. Elle va parler. (near future) (semi-auxiliary) She's going to speak. Tu as gagné un million? Tu parles! (intransitive verb) You've won a million? You must be joking ! Je gagne de l'argent. (transitive) I earn money. Il fait beau. (impersonal) It's fine weather.
Voice	3 voices active, passive or pronominal	Il parle anglais. (active) He speaks English. L'anglais est parlé partout. (passive) English is spoken everywhere. Ils ne se parlent plus. (pronominal) They don't speak to each other any more.
Aspect	Numerous ways of describing an action (e.g. beginning it, finishing it, showing its duration, repeating it, etc.)	Elle parle. (the simple present = the duration of the action is not indicated) She speaks. Elle est en train de parler. (the present continuous = the duration of the action is emphasized) She is speaking.

* Note that in English it is usual to speak of 3 important grammatical moods (i.e., expressions of the speaker's attitude by means of the verb): the indicative, the subjunctive and the imperative.

 Note that English differs from French in specifying that there are 2 voices only, active and passive.

The different forms that a verb can take are called conjugations (see 9.2.1).

8.2.1 Linking verbs

A linking verb, or copula, is one which connects the subject to the predicate. This type includes:

- être

Steinbeck était américain.

Steinbeck was American.

Steinbeck était un écrivain américain.

Steinbeck was an American writer.

- verbs or verbal expressions of state, indicating the idea of:

- appearance:

apparaître (comme)

to look like

avoir l'air

to look like être tenu pour to be considered to be paraître

to appear, seem passer pour to be taken for sembler

to seem se trouver

to be

- remaining:

Des banques américaines furent tenues pour responsables de la crise.

American banks were considered to be responsible for the crisis.

demeurer

to remain

rester

to stay

Il est resté infirme après son accident.

He remained disabled after his accident.

- designation:

être fait

to be made être élu

to be elected

être choisi pour to be chosen for être proclamé

to be proclaimed

Elizabeth II a été proclamée Reine en 1952.

Elizabeth II was proclaimed Queen in 1952.

François Hollande a été élu Président en mai 2012.

François Hollande was elected President in May 2012.

- naming:

être appelé

to be called être dit

to be said to be être traité de

Il a été traité de paresseux par son professeur. He was called lazy by his teacher.

- state:

devenir

to become se faire

to become tomber

to fall

Il est tombé malade.

He fell ill.

8.2.2 Auxiliary verbs: avoir and être

The verbs avoir (to have) and être (to be) have a meaning in their own right as verbs but their basic meaning is lost when they:

- act as auxiliaries to form compound tenses of verbs;
- are used in the formation of the passive voice;
- are used to form pronominal verbs.

● avoir

As an auxiliary verb, avoir is used to form the compound tenses of:

- all transitive verbs (followed by a direct or an indirect object) in the active voice, and not pronominal verbs:

Elle a changé de style, mais nous l'avons reconnue tout de suite.

She's changed her style, but we recognized her straight away.

- avoir and être themselves:

Ils ont eu beaucoup de chance à l'oral.

They've had a lot of luck in the oral exam.

Vous avez été souvent en retard cet hiver.

You've often been late this winter.

J'ai été heureuse de vous rencontrer.

I was happy to meet you.

- many intransitive verbs:

Il a dormi tout l'après-midi.

He's slept the whole afternoon.

- most impersonal verbs:

Il a fait chaud en mai mais il a plu en juin.

It was hot in May but it rained in June.

● être

As an auxiliary verb être is used:

- to form the passive voice of all tenses:

La ferme est constituée de trois bâtiments principaux.

The farm comprises [lit. is composed of] three main buildings.

Les bagages avaient été mis dans le coffre.

The luggage had been put in the boot.

Il est découragé par le mauvais temps.

He's put off by the bad weather.

Elle était submergée de travail.

She was snowed under with work.

- to conjugate the compound tenses of all pronominal verbs:

Elle s'est levée tôt, s'est douchée et s'est précipitée à l'arrêt d'autobus.

She got up early, had a shower and hurried off to the bus stop.

- to conjugate the compound tenses of a number of intransitive verbs, which for the most part express movement or a change of state (see 9.5.2):

Il est entré.

He came in.

Elle est tombée en cours de route et elle est arrivée couverte de boue.

She fell on the way and arrived covered with mud.

Note

When a sequence of verbs has the same compound tense and uses the same auxiliary, the auxiliary can be omitted on the second and subsequent occasions:

Ils ont d'abord lu puis déclamé le texte.

First they read and then declaimed the text.

Nous avons pris place dans l'amphithéâtre, ouvert nos livres et commencé à écrire.

We took our seats in the lecture theatre, opened our books and began to write.

But when the auxiliaries are different, they cannot be omitted:

Ils sont sortis de l'autobus, ont crié et chanté à tue-tête et se sont enfuis.

They got off the bus, shouted and sang at the top of their voices and ran off.

8.2.3 Active and passive voices

When the subject of the verb carries out the action, the verb is in the active voice:

Le lion poursuit la gazelle

The lion hunts the gazelle.

Daniel jouera le rôle.

Daniel will play the part.

When the subject of the verb receives the action, the verb is in the passive voice.

An active statement, in which the verb has a direct object, may be turned into a passive one, as follows:

Le rôle sera joué par Daniel.

The part will be played by Daniel.

Active sentence: Daniel will play the part.
1	the auxiliary verb être is used in the same tense as the active verb (jouera)	sera will be
2	the active verb (jouera) becomes a past participle	(sera) joué (will be) played
3	the direct object of the active verb (le rôle) becomes the subject of the verb être in the passive voice.	Le rôle (sera joué) The part (will be played)
4	the subject of the active voice sentence (Daniel) becomes the agent and is introduced by par , de , or à	(Le rôle sera joué) par Daniel . (The part will be played) by Daniel.
Passive sentence: The part will be played by Daniel.

Similarly, La gazelle est poursuivie par le lion. (The gazelle is hunted by the lion.)

In theory, all verbs which take a direct object can be used in the passive voice, but in practice French uses the passive far less than English. Two important alternatives to the passive voice exist in French:

- on plus an active verb as an alternative to the passive:

On dit que les Anglais achètent de plus en plus de maisons en France.	It is said that the English are buying more and more houses in France.
De nos jours, on construit moins de lignes TGV en France.	Nowadays fewer TGV lines are being built in France.

- a pronominal verb as an alternative to the passive (see 8.4):

Les abricots se vendent au marché à des prix modérés.	Apricots are sold at the market at reasonable prices.
La Tour Eiffel se voit de loin.	The Eiffel Tower can be seen from afar.

8.2.4 Semi-auxiliary verbs

Semi-auxiliary verbs in French, such as aller (to go), devoir (to have to), pouvoir (to be able), commencer à (to begin), venir de (to have just) are always followed by an infinitive, except for aller (to go) which can be followed by the form ending in -ant.

Like auxiliary verbs they lose their meaning when they express certain nuances of tense, mood and aspect:

Elle vient d'arriver mais elle va partir tout de suite.	She has just arrived (recent past), but she is going to leave (near future) at once.
--	--

● Semi-auxiliaries of tense:

- devoir can express the future:

Je dois partir pour Londres demain. I am to go to London tomorrow.

- aller, être sur le point de express the near future:

L'avion va décoller. The plane is about to take off.

- venir de expresses a recent past:

L'avion vient de décoller. The plane has just taken off.

● Semi-auxiliaries of mood (see also 8.2.5):

- devoir expresses an action that is obligatory, probable or desirable:

Un étudiant doit apprendre.

A student has to learn.

Il a dû finir son livre.

He must have finished his book.

Il pense qu'on doit procéder ainsi.

He thinks we have to proceed in this way.

- pouvoir expresses possibility, probability, wishes:

N'importe qui peut se tromper.

Anyone can make a mistake.

Il peut être dix heures.

It may be ten o'clock.

Puisse-t-il réussir!*

If only he can succeed!

● Semi-auxiliaries of aspect:

Different verbs are used for different aspects, for example:

- commencer à, se mettre à for the beginning of an action
- être en train de (to be in the process of) for duration
- finir de, cesser de (to finish) for the conclusion of an action

● Verbs categorized as semi-auxiliary:

Semi-auxiliary verbs followed by an infinitive:

aller	to go
devoir	to have to, must
faillir	to almost do (impersonal)
faire	to do
falloir	need, must, have to (impersonal)
laisser	to leave, let
manquer	to miss, lack
pouvoir	to be able, can
paraître	to appear
savoir	to know
sembler	to seem
venir	to come
vouloir	to wish, want

Semi-auxiliary verbs followed by a preposition plus infinitive:

avoir à	to have to
cesser de	to stop, cease to
commencer à	to begin to
être en train de	to be (busy)
être sur le point de	to be about to
finir de	to stop
se mettre à	to begin
se voir en train de	to see oneself (doing)
sortir de	to come out of
venir de	to have just
Il va partir ce soir.	He's going to leave this evening.
Nous devons finir notre travail.	We have to finish our work.
La rivière a manqué déborder.	The river almost overflowed.
Il avait fini de pleuvoir.	It had stopped raining.
Il s'est mis à geler et j'ai failli glisser plusieurs fois.	It began to freeze and I almost slipped several times.
Il a fallu rentrer.	It was necessary to go back.

8.2.5 Modal verbs

The term 'modal verb' in English describes a category of semi-auxiliary verbs, which communicate attitude and intention, affecting the meaning of the verb in the infinitive which follows. The English modal verbs, can, may and must express attitudes relating, for example, to ability, probability, permission and obligation. May I speak French? expresses permission; may is the modal verb and speak the infinitive; must I speak French? expresses obligation.

French does not have modal verbs. The principal equivalents of English modal verbs in French are pouvoir (to be able), devoir (to have to), savoir (to know), falloir (must) and vouloir (to wish, want).

Devoir

Devoir expresses three essential ideas:

- the future to be to

Il doit arriver demain.

He is to arrive tomorrow.

- likelihood

Cela doit coûter très cher!

That must cost a lot!

Cette personne devait être très belle étant jeune.

That person must have been beautiful when young.

- obligation

Je dois absolument partir dans quelques minutes. I must leave without fail in a few minutes.

● Different meanings according to tense

In the present devoir expresses:

- obligation (must, have to, should or ought to)

Je dois absolument m'absenter pour quelques jours. I absolutely must go away for a few days.

- when followed by an infinitive it can express a strong probability:

Il doit être 10 heures déjà, non? It must be 10 o'clock already, mustn't it?

- it is used to correct someone politely:

Vous devez faire erreur, Monsieur! You must be mistaken, sir!

In the compound past, devoir expresses two different meanings:

- an obligation (had to)

Il était tellement épuisé qu'il a dû abandonner la course. He was so exhausted he had to give up the race.

- a probability (must have)

Il a abandonné la course, il a dû être fatigué. He gave up the race; he must have been exhausted.

In the imperfect devoir can have four different meanings:

- a compound conditional meaning (should have / ought to have)

Nous devons (= nous aurions dû) être à Paris demain, mais pour raisons familiales nous ne sommes pas partis. We should have been in Paris tomorrow, but for family reasons we haven't gone.

- obligation (had to)

Nous sommes désolés d'avoir manqué le rendez-vous, mais nous avons dû aller à Paris de toute urgence. We are sorry to have missed the meeting, but we had to go to Paris very urgently.

- Supposition, speculation (must have)

Je ne me souviens plus pourquoi nous avons manqué le rendez-vous, nous devions être à Paris. I don't remember any more why we missed the meeting; we must have been in Paris.

It has a future meaning:

Il était sur le balcon où plus tard De Gaulle devait faire son célèbre discours.

It was on the balcony where later De Gaulle would make his famous speech.

In the conditional it expresses:

- a recommendation (should, ought to)

Tu devrais t'habiller mieux que ça!

You should dress better than that!

- a politely expressed obligation or a piece of advice

Vous devriez vous concentrer sur votre travail.

You should concentrate on your work.

- a supposition (should, ought to)

Avec de tels résultats, tu devrais trouver un stage intéressant.

With results like that you ought to find interesting internship.

In the compound conditional it expresses:

- a regret, reproach or a piece of advice (should have / ought to have)

Tu aurais dû réfléchir avant d'agir.

You ought to have thought before you acted.

J'aurais dû prendre une aspirine.

I should have taken an aspirin.

Devoir is also used pronominally, expressing a moral obligation:

Elle se devait d'être à l'heure.

She had to be on time.

Note

- Devoir takes a circumflex accent in the masculine singular of the past participle only: dû (but due, dus, dues).
- The imperative of devoir is rarely used.

Falloir

Falloir, meaning to have to, must, should, ought to, is an impersonal verb that is followed by the subjunctive:

Il faut qu'il apprenne à cuisiner avant de commencer ses études.

He must learn to cook before beginning his studies.

Il faudra que tu amènes les billets dès que possible.

You'll have to bring the tickets as soon as possible.

Pouvoir

Pouvoir expresses:

- physical capacity

Avec ma blessure je ne peux pas faire de sport. With my injury I can't play sports.

- permission or possibility

Je ne peux pas sortir, mes parents me l'interdisent. I can't go out because my parents have forbidden me to.

Ici on peut marcher sur les pelouses. You can walk on the grass here.

- being in a state

Je ne peux pas dormir. I can't sleep.

- a hypothesis or eventuality

En juin il peut encore faire froid! In June it can still be cold!

Fais attention! Tu peux te blesser avec cet outil. Take care! You can hurt yourself with that tool.

- a polite question

Pouvez-vous m'aider à monter cette valise, s'il vous plaît? Can you please help me to take this case up?

(see savoir for the way of expressing 'have the means to', 'know how to' in the meaning of pouvoir)

● Different meanings according to tense

In the compound past, pouvoir often expresses an action completed successfully (= réussir à, to succeed, manage to):

Il a finalement pu résoudre le problème. He's finally succeeded in solving the problem.

Il a pu avoir un billet pour ce soir. He's been able / managed to get a ticket for this evening.

In the conditional, pouvoir expresses future potentiality:

Il pourrait bien se débrouiller tout seul s'il le voulait. He could cope by himself if he wanted to.

On pourrait changer notre salon, qu'en penses-tu? We could change our living room; what do you think?

In the compound conditional pouvoir can express a hypothesis or an eventuality:

Vous auriez pu manquer votre train! You could have missed your train.

Pouvoir takes a pronominal form in the expression il se peut que, followed by the subjunctive. It is often translated by 'may':

Il se peut qu'il arrive après 18 heures. He may arrive after 6 pm.

Il se peut qu'il pleuve. It may rain.

Note

- The first person singular of the present indicative of pouvoir has two forms:

a standard form: je peux

in more formal language: je puis

Puis is the form used when there is inversion of the verb and subject: puis-je.

- Pouvoir has two rs in the future and conditional form: e.g. je pourrai, etc., je pourrais, etc.

Savoir

Savoir expresses:

- acquired knowledge

Il sait parler turc et japonais.

He can speak Turkish and Japanese.

- success in doing something, having the aptitude to do something

Je saurai le convaincre.

I will be able / know how to convince him.

- having the means to do something

Il sait parler en public.

He knows how to speak in public.

- ability, e.g. to play a musical instrument

Elle sait jouer du piano.

She can play the piano.

- Different uses of savoir

Savoir in the conditional, followed by an infinitive, can have the meaning of pouvoir in negative utterances (from which pas is omitted):

Je ne saurais vous dire laquelle je préfère.

I could not tell you which I prefer.

An infinitive clause after savoir can be used as the complement of a direct object:

Il fréquentait un ami qu'il savait être criminel.

He associated with a friend who(m) he knew to be a criminal.

Elle s'engagea sur un sentier qu'elle savait être périlleux.

She started on a path that she knew was dangerous.

Savoir is used pronominally in the meaning of self-knowledge:

Il se sait malade.

He knows himself to be ill.

Vouloir

Vouloir expresses:

- a 'strong' wish
- an intention, desire to carry out something and stick to it

● Different uses

In the present vouloir expresses a determined desire or wish:

Il ne veut pas marcher, il veut être porté.	He won't walk; he wants to be carried.
Le proviseur veut connaître l'auteur des graffitis.	The headteacher wants to know who wrote the graffiti.

In interrogative and exclamatory sentences vouloir expresses an order. It is often followed by bien:

Voulez-vous bien rester à votre place!	Will you stay in your place!
---	------------------------------

With a subject that is not a person, often in the negative, it indicates persistence:

J'ai un mal de tête qui ne veut pas passer.	I have a headache that won't go away.
--	---------------------------------------

In the imperative or the infinitive after verbs like prier (to beg) and demander (to ask), it expresses a desire or a request in a polite way:

Veillez me suivre, s'il vous plaît!	Kindly follow me.
Je vous prie de vouloir bien me suivre!	Be so kind as to follow me.

In the compound past it expresses a wish that is unsatisfied or unsuccessfully completed:

Il a voulu sauter le mur et il s'est cassé la cheville.	He tried to jump over the wall and he broke his ankle.
On dirait que les malfaiteurs ont voulu passer par le jardin.	It seems that the thieves were trying to go through the garden.

In the conditional it expresses a potential wish or a hope:

Au retour, je voudrais passer par la boulangerie.	On the way back, I would like to call at the baker's.
Il voudrait savoir si vous êtes libre.	He'd like to know if you are free.

Vouloir is used pronominally:

Il se voudrait intègre mais l'est-il vraiment?	He'd like to think himself honest, but is he really?

8.3 Transitive and intransitive verbs

8.3.1 Transitive verbs

Transitive verbs must be followed by a direct object (in French COD = complément d'objet direct) or an indirect object (in French COI = complément d'objet indirect).

- If the object is not introduced by the prepositions à, de or en, the verb affects directly the person or thing that is receiving the action. The object is then direct:

Elle a trouvé un emploi.

She's found a job.

- If the object is introduced by the prepositions à or de, it is indirect:

Elle pense à ses amis.

She thinks about her friends.

Il rêve d'une maison au bord de la mer.

He dreams of a house by the sea.

Le tabac nuit à la santé.

Smoking damages your health.

Note that in the last example the object is indirect in French but direct in English.

- Some verbs are double transitive, i.e. they may be followed by a direct and an indirect object:

Il offre un verre à son ami.

He offers a drink (direct object) to his friend (indirect object).

Elle enseigne l'espagnol à ses collègues.

She teaches Spanish (direct object) to her colleagues (indirect object).

Note

In the sentence: Il enseigne l'espagnol à l'université (He teaches Spanish at the university), à l'université is an adverbial phrase of place and not an indirect object.

8.3.2 Intransitive verbs

- An intransitive verb is one which is not followed by a direct or an indirect object:

Le chat miaule de façon étrange.

The cat miaows strangely.

Le clown gesticule sur la scène.

The clown gesticulates on stage.

Le cheval trotte allègrement.

The horse trots along cheerfully.

Note

Typically, intransitive verbs are accompanied by an adverbial, as in the examples above.

- Most active verbs can be either transitive or intransitive. In some cases, the change from transitive to intransitive is accompanied by a change of meaning, e.g. arrêter (to stop), commencer (to begin), habiter (to live in), manquer (to miss, fail, be missing), servir (to serve), rompre (to break), retarder (to delay).

- verbs without a change of meaning e.g. habiter (à), hériter (de):

Transitive verb with direct object: Il habite la campagne. He lives in [lit. inhabits] the country.

Intransitive verb: Il habite à la campagne. He lives in the country.

- verbs with a change of meaning:

Transitive verb with direct object	Intransitive verb
Il a manqué la cible . He missed his target.	J'ai contrôlé, rien ne manque . I checked, nothing is missing.
Elle entre les données . She enters the data.	Elle entre dans la pièce . She goes into the room.
Je monte la valise . I take the case up.	Je monte . I go up.
Ils ont fui le danger à temps . They escaped the danger in time.	Les lâches fuient; les courageux se battent . Cowards flee; the brave fight on.

- Some verbs are always intransitive, e.g. miauler (to miaow), rugir (to blush), arriver (to arrive), venir (to come), voyager (to travel):

Il sont en train d'arriver à la gare.

They are arriving at the station.

Les jeunes voyagent de plus en plus.

Young people travel more and more.

- Verbs of state, e.g. être, paraître, sembler, devenir, avoir l'air, passer pour, rester, demeurer, are classified as intransitive:

Ils paraissent en forme.

They look fit.

Il a l'air convenable.

He seems respectable.

- Some verbs are almost always intransitive, e.g. pleurer (to cry), nager (to swim):

Il ne pleure jamais.

He never cries. (intransitive)

Elle pleure des larmes de crocodile.

She weeps crocodile tears. (transitive)

Vous nagez comme un champion!

You swim like a champion! (intransitive)

Vous nagez mieux le crawl que la brasse.

You swim the crawl better than the breast-stroke. (transitive)

8.4 Pronominal verbs

Pronominal verbs are verbs in which the subject and the object of the verb are the same person. In these verbs the reflexive pronoun (me / m', te / t', se / s', nous, vous) always precedes the verb.

In the infinitive the reflexive pronoun is always se or s':

s'amuser

to enjoy oneself

s'habituer

to get used to se réconcilier

to make one's peace

se hasarder

to venture

Note

In Je me demande (I wonder) [lit. 'I ask myself'], the verb is reflexive (se demander). The reflexive pronoun me reflects back on the subject of the sentence 'I', i.e. 'I am asking myself'.

But demander can also be used without a reflexive pronoun, as in Il me demande (He asks me). In this sentence, the pronoun me is not a reflexive pronoun because it does not reflect back on to the subject Il. The subject, and me, the object, are different people.

In compound tenses:

- Pronominal verbs are conjugated with the auxiliary verb être (see 8.2.1, Linking verbs)
- The reflexive pronoun is placed before the auxiliary être:

Il s'est trompé.

He made a mistake.

8.4.1 Verbs which are both pronominal and non-pronominal

Some verbs, such as (se) laver (to wash), can be both pronominal and non-pronominal. For example, in Je me lave (I wash [myself]) laver is used pronominally; in Je lave la voiture (I wash the car), laver is not used pronominally. Other verbs, such as s'en aller (to go away), are always pronominal.

These verbs are of three kinds:

● Reflexive verbs

- These verbs express an action which the subject does to itself:

Je me lave.	I wash.
Il s'est surmené.	He worked himself too hard.
Nous nous inquiétons.	We're getting worried.
Taisez-vous!	Keep quiet!

- In order to know whether a verb is reflexive add moi-même, toi-même, etc.:

Je me rase = * je rase moi-même .	I shave = I shave myself.
---	---------------------------

- The pronoun that is part of a reflexive verb can have different functions:

Direct object:	Elles se sont baignées. They bathed.
Indirect object:	Elles se sont donné du temps. They gave [to] themselves time.

- A reflexive pronominal verb is often translated into English by an active verb:

Il s'est coupé le doigt.	He cut his finger.
Il se rase tous les matins.	He shaves every morning.
Sa santé s'est dégradée.	His health deteriorated.

● Reciprocal verbs

- When the subjects of the verb are doing something to each other the pronominal verb is called reciprocal. The action is carried out and received by each one at the same time:

Les enfants se querellent dans la cour.	The children quarrel among themselves in the playground.
Ils s'entraident.	They help one another.
Ils se sont rencontrés dans la rue après s'être cherchés pendant des heures.	They met each other in the street after looking for each other for hours.

- Sometimes reciprocity is indicated by adding l'un l'autre or les uns les autres (each other, one another):

Ils se sont encouragés les uns les autres.	They encouraged one another.
---	------------------------------

- Some reciprocal verbs can be reinforced by the prefix entre-: s'entraider (to help each other); s'entre-déchirer (to tear each other to pieces); s'entre-tuer (to kill one another):

Dans le besoin, il est bon de s'entraider.

When in need it's good to help one another.

- To know whether a pronominal verb has a reciprocal meaning, complete the sentence by adding l'un l'autre, les uns les autres, etc.:

Toutes les élèves se sont averties par téléphone (les unes les autres).

All the pupils informed each other by telephone.

● Verbs with a passive meaning

A pronominal verb can have a passive meaning when the subject receives the action of the verb.

In La cloche s'entend de loin (The bell is heard from afar), the sense is a passive one: it is clearly not the bell which hears itself, and whoever hears the bell is not identified. In this kind of sentence the agent of the action is often not stated, but understood. Here we can assume that the agent is 'people / us'.

Je m'appelle ...	My name is / I am called ...
Cela s'entend de loin.	That is heard from a distance.
Cela se situe au nord.	That is situated in the north.
Cela se voit rarement.	That is rarely seen.
Cela ne se fait pas.	That is not done.

To know whether a pronominal verb has a passive sense, replace it by a passive:

Cela s'entend de loin = Cela est entendu de loin.

That is heard from a distance.

Cela se voit rarement = Cela est rarement vu.

That is rarely seen.

L'or se vend cher cette année = L'or est vendu cher cette année.

Gold is sold at a high price this year.

8.4.2 Verbs found only in the pronominal form

Some pronominal verbs exist only when accompanied by the reflexive pronoun me, te, se, nous or vous (see 3.5). The action of the verb is always carried out on the subject itself.

Examples of these verbs are:

s'abstenir

to abstain

s'évanouir

to faint, vanish

s'écrier

to cry out

se réfugier

to take refuge

se repentir

to suffer for

s'en aller	to go away
s'enfuir	to run off
se suicider	to commit suicide
s'envoler	to take off, e.g. aircraft

In general, these verbs do not have a reflexive, reciprocal or passive sense:

Elle s'est évanouie dans la nature.	She vanished into thin air.
Le directeur s'écria: « Fermez la porte! »	The director shouted: 'Shut the door!'

8.4.3 Verbs with a non-reflexive and a pronominal form

Some verbs, e.g. rire / se rire de, have both a non-reflexive and a pronominal form. The pronominal form differs from the non-reflexive one in meaning, e.g. se douter de (to suspect), se jouer de (to make light of), se rire de (to make light of), s'apercevoir (to notice), s'attendre à (to expect):

Il rit à toutes les blagues qu'on lui raconte.	He laughs at all the jokes we tell him.
Obélix se rit du danger.	Obelix makes light of the danger. (He does not laugh at it)

Notes

- Some pronominal verbs, like s'apercevoir, can have several meanings:

Apercevoir (usual form) / s'apercevoir (pronominal form)
reflexive meaning	Le chimpanzé s'aperçoit dans le miroir. The chimpanzee sees himself in the mirror.	The subject sees himself.
reciprocal meaning	Nous nous aperçûmes à travers la vitre. We saw each other through the window.	The subjects see each other.
passive meaning	Le Mont-Blanc s'aperçoit de loin. Mont Blanc can be seen from afar.	The subject is seen in a general way.

Apercevoir (usual form) / s'apercevoir (pronominal form)
change of meaning	Jo s'aperçut qu'il venait de dire une bourde.	The subject notices.
	Jo saw that he had made a blunder.

- Some expressions, like se faire mal (to hurt oneself), se rendre compte (to realize), se donner rendez-vous (to arrange a meeting), do not have a direct object:

Elles se sont rendu compte du danger.

They realized the danger.

Il s'est fait mal au dos.

He hurt his back.

8.5 Impersonal verbs

Impersonal verbs are verbs that are introduced by a subject il (the equivalent of English it), which does not refer to a specific person or thing. Impersonal verbs are used especially for statements about the weather, for saying the time and with some common expressions like il y a (there is / are) and il s'agit de (it is a question of) (see 3.1.5):

Il neige beaucoup.

It's snowing a lot.

Il est cinq heures et quart.

It is a quarter past five.

En été, il y a trop de touristes ici.

There are too many tourists here in summer.

De quoi s'agit-il?

What's it about?

8.6 Verbal aspect

'Aspect' is a term which defines actions in relation to time, as perceived by the speaker. There are two broad types of action: those which are seen by the speaker as being part of the flow of time and those which do not refer to time passing.

This opposition is shown in two forms of the present tense in English: I am working and I work. I am working describes an action in its duration in time; I work expresses a general idea without reference to duration.

Verbal aspect describes an action in its progression and evolution; this action can be of a number of different types: repetitive, instantaneous, continuous, fulfilled, imminent, progressive, etc. It is important to know some of these aspects because they are not expressed in the same way in French as they are in English.

For example, a Frenchman who wishes to help an old lady to lift her suitcase up on to a luggage rack will say: Laissez, Madame, je vais m'en charger! [lit. 'Leave (it to me), Madame, I'm going to see to it!'], using the immediate future (aller + the infinitive), since the action is seen as an imminent one. An Englishman, in the other hand, is likely to say: I'll see to it!, using the simple future tense.

In the sentence L'avion est en train de voler (The aeroplane is flying), the verb expresses the act of flying. Aspect tells us (a) that the action is taking place at the moment the person is speaking, and (b) that it will last for a length of time that is not specified.

Un avion vole (An aeroplane flies): the action described – an aeroplane flying – is the same as in the first example, but aspect does not necessarily indicate the action in its duration. Without a context the action cannot, for example, be seen in its entirety and tell us that an aeroplane flies as opposed, say, to a ship, which sails.

L'avion a volé (The aeroplane flew): the action is still the same, but aspect tells us that the action was completed at the time of speaking.

L'avion volait (The aeroplane was flying): the action remains the same, but aspect tells us that the action was continuing at the time of speaking.

In English the progressive aspect is very important. Simple forms like I work, and continuous forms like I am working, are in opposition in all tenses and moods of the verb: I worked / I was working, I'll work / I'll be working, etc.

In French, the progressive aspect is rare; it is expressed by phrases such as être en train de (to be in the process of) + the infinitive:

Il est en train de scier du bois.

He is sawing wood.

or by the archaic construction aller + present participle:

La crise va croissant.

The crisis is growing.

Ma douleur va s'estompant.

My pain is easing.

Many grammarians classify aspects under three headings: grammatical, lexical and semantic.

8.6.1 Grammatical aspect

Grammatical aspect depends on the conjugation of the verb. It can therefore vary according to the intentions of the speaker.

One example of grammatical aspect is the opposition between a verbal action that is in the act of being carried out and one that is completed.

If you say Elle travaillait (She was working), the action is in the course of being completed. In Elle a travaillé (She worked) the action is completed.

This distinction depends on the tense of the verb and not its meaning; it is therefore grammatical aspect.

Each simple tense has a corresponding compound form. The compound form, the auxiliary verb avoir or être plus the past participle, expresses the completed aspect of an action, whereas the simple form expresses the aspect in process.

Whether the aspect is completed or in process is therefore linked to the presence or not of an auxiliary verb: the imperfect, the compound past or the past simple will express different aspects according to whether they are simple or compound tenses:

Il dormait (He was sleeping): expresses a past action which is ongoing and is incomplete at the time of being spoken.

Il a dormi (He slept): expresses a completed past action.

In the sentence Il jouait quand sa mère l'a appelé (He was playing when his mother called him), an action has begun but has not yet been completed (jouait); it serves as background to another action which is seen in its entirety and has been completed (a appelé).

8.6.2 Lexical aspect

Lexical aspect is indicated by a specific verb, adverb, semi-auxiliary, etc.

An example of lexical aspect is the 'iterative' aspect which marks repetition, as opposed to an action which happens once only.

Adverbs like régulièrement (regularly), souvent (often), jamais (never), toujours (always), or expressions like tous les jours (every day), express frequency. In past time, the tense used in French with these adverbs will generally be the imperfect, the equivalent of English used to / would plus the infinitive. In the present, the English equivalent will generally be the simple present and, occasionally, the continuous present.

Tous les matins il lisait le journal.

Every morning he would read the paper.

Tous les matins il lit le journal.

Every morning he reads the paper.

Here are some ways in which French marks certain lexical aspects.

● Use of adverbs

adverb	aspect	examples	English
chaque fois (every time) souvent (often) de nouveau / à nouveau (again) parfois (sometimes) quelquefois (sometimes) de temps en temps (from time to time)	repetition	Sa voiture cale à chaque fois qu'il s'arrête.	His car stalls every time it stops.

adverb	aspect	examples	English
longtemps (for a long time) toujours (always) tout le temps (all the time) constamment (constantly) sans cesse, sans arrêt (ceaselessly)	duration	Elle a attendu longtemps.	She waited for a long time.
bientôt / sous peu (soon) incessamment (shortly)	imminence	Il arrive bientôt.	He'll arrive soon.
peu à peu / petit à petit (bit by bit)	progression	Il y arrivera petit à petit.	He's managing bit by bit.
enfin / finalement (finally, at last) juste (just)	end	Elle arrive enfin.	She's coming at last.
Use of an expression which reinforces the iterative value. chaque année (each year) tous les mois, ans, etc. (every month, year, etc.)		Il reprend du paracétamol toutes les 5 heures.	He takes paracetamol again (iterative) every 5 hours (reinforced iterative).

● Use of prefixes

prefix	aspect	examples
re- / ré-	repetition or return	Il a repris du paracétamol. Elle est retournée chez elle.	He's taken paracetamol again. She's returned home.
en-	distance or passage from one state to another	dormir / s'endormir porter / emporter	to sleep / to fall asleep to carry / to carry away
par-	completion	faire / parfaire venir / parvenir	to do / to perfect to come / to reach

● Use of suffixes and infixes

*infixes / suffixes	examples	aspect	English
-aill-	crier / criailler tirer / tirailler	frequentatives pejoratives	to shout / to shriek to tug / pull at
-ifier -iser	solidifier pacifier nationaliser / étatiser	action change of state	to solidify to pacify to nationalize
-ot- -et-	voler / voleter trembler / trembloter pianoter vivre / vivoter	frequentatives pejoratives diminutives	to fly / to flutter to shake / to tremble slightly or quiver to tinkle, drum to live / to struggle along
-on-	chanter / chantonner	frequentatives pejoratives diminutives	to sing / to hum
-el-	harceler	frequentatives pejoratives diminutives	to pester / harass
-ass-	rêver / rêvasser pleuvoir / pleuvasser	frequentatives pejoratives diminutives	to dream / to (day) dream to rain / to drizzle
-ill-	mordre / mordiller sauter / sautiller	frequentatives pejoratives diminutives	to bite / to nibble at to jump / to skip along
-in-	pleuvoir / pleuviner	frequentatives pejoratives diminutives	to rain / rain lightly
-ouill-	gribouiller chatouiller	frequentatives pejoratives diminutives	to scribble to tickle
-oyer	rudoyer guerroyer	action or state	to bully to wage war
-nich-	pleurer / pleurnicher	frequentatives pejoratives diminutives	to cry / to snivel

*infix – an element inserted into the root of a word

8.6.3 Semantic aspect

The perfective / imperfective aspect is an example of a semantic opposition. In French this opposition is based simply on the meaning of the verb.

- The perfective aspect expresses an action that, once it is completed, cannot be prolonged, or an action which only comes into being when it is finished:

In the sentence Caroline est née à Cambridge (Caroline was born in Cambridge), the action of being born only comes into being when it is completed; no interruption is possible because this would mean the action ceased to exist. The same is true of verbs like fermer (to close), ouvrir (to open), sortir (to go out), *mourir*¹ (to die), trouver (to find), atteindre (to reach), whatever the tense or mood. These verbs are not generally used with adverbs of duration. You cannot say: Il naquit sans cesse / longtemps* (*He was born for a long time).

¹ Note that if the meaning of the verb changes because of the context, the verb can be imperfective, e.g. mourir d'ennui (to die of boredom).

- The imperfective aspect indicates an action that has been carried out even if it is interrupted before its end. The action only has to be started, and it can be stopped at any moment.

In the sentence Caroline dort au premier étage (Caroline sleeps on the first floor), if the action of sleeping is interrupted, this changes nothing since the action of sleeping can go on indefinitely. The same is true of verbs like vivre (to live), chanter (to sing), marcher (to walk), regarder (to look at), attendre (to wait), aimer (to love), irrespective of tense or mood.

Some verbs, e.g. tomber (to fall) can be both perfective and imperfective:

La neige tombe à gros flocons.
Le vieillard tombe.

Snow is falling in big flakes. (imperfective)
The old man falls. (perfective)

8.6.4 Aspect in auxiliary verbs

- Use of the auxiliary verb être in certain expressions:

aspect	auxiliary / semi-auxiliary expressions	English	examples
duration (in the act of)	être en train de être occupé à + infinitive	to be + ing to be busy + ing	Il est occupé à remplir sa feuille d'impôts. He is busy filling in his tax form.
imminence, near future	être sur le point de / en passe de + infinitive	to be about to	Les équipes de France et d'Angleterre sont sur le point de jouer. The French and English teams are about to play.

aspect	auxiliary / semi-auxiliary expressions	English	examples
obligation	être à + infinitive	to have to be	Les règles de jeu sont à corriger ou à revoir entièrement. The rules of the game have to be corrected or reviewed entirely.

● Use of semi-auxiliaries:

aspect	semi-auxiliary expressions	English	examples
immediate or near future	aller + infinitive	to be going to	Laissez ces livres, je vais les ranger dans la bibliothèque. Leave those books. I'm going to put them back in the library.
progressive evolution / development	aller + -ant (present participle not preceded by en)	to go + present participle	La crise va croissant; ses réserves vont diminuant. The crisis is growing; their reserves are dwindling.
immediate / recent past	venir de + infinitive	just + past tense	On vient de lui annoncer la nouvelle! They've just told him the news!
beginning	se mettre à + infinitive, commencer à / de + infinitive	to start + ing	Les équipes de France et d'Angleterre ont commencé à jouer. The French and English teams have begun to play.
end	finir de / cesser de + infinitive	to stop + ing	Les équipes de France et d'Angleterre ont fini de jouer. The French and English teams have finished playing.

● The use of semi-auxiliaries such as faillir + infinitive, manquer de + infinitive:

Il a failli rater son train.

He almost missed his train.

Il a manqué de tomber sur la voie.

He almost fell on the line.

Exercises

1 Fill the gaps with the verbs listed below:

- Write the verbs in the tenses indicated, not forgetting to use the correct preposition where necessary.
- Say whether the verbs are (1) transitive with a direct object, (2) transitive with an indirect object, (3) intransitive or (4) double transitive, putting a tick in the appropriate box.

	Verb	Tense	Example	1	2	3	4
1.	aller	present	Ils _____ Londres ce samedi
2.	penser	present	Nous _____ vacances
3.	poster	compound past / perfect	Tu _____ la lettre hier?
4.	avoir besoin	present	Je _____ rien pour l'instant
5.	dédicacer	compound past / perfect	Elle _____ son livre / sa fille
6.	voyager	compound past / perfect	Nous _____ dans toute l'Europe
7.	passer	present	Je _____ mes vacances en France
8.	jouer	present	Est-ce que tu _____ échecs?
9.	jouer	present	Est-ce que vous _____ piano?
10.	travailler	present	Il _____ le bois

2 Put into the passive voice:

1. On a appelé les étudiants par leur nom.
2. On les a installés dans différentes salles d'examen.
3. Les surveillants ont contrôlé les identités.

4. Puis, ils ont décacheté les enveloppes.
5. et ils ont distribué les sujets.
6. On a autorisé une bouteille d'eau par table.
7. On avait mis tous les portables dans une boîte en entrant.
8. et on avait laissé les vestes aux porte-manteaux.
9. Le règlement n'autorisait pas les étudiants à sortir avant une heure.
10. Un étudiant rendit sa copie bien avant les autres.

3 Complete the sentences using the pronominal verbs in the present or compound past, according to the context:

- Tick in the relevant box say if the pronominal verbs below are (1) reflexive, (2) reciprocal or (3) passive in meaning:

	Verb	Example	1	2	3
1.	Se dégrader	La situation _____
2.	Se saluer	Ils ne ... pas _____
3.	Se battre	Ils _____ comme des chiffonniers.*
4.	Se voir	De tels événements _____ rarement.
5.	Se demander	Elle _____ ce qu'elle va faire.
6.	S'entraider	Elles _____ chaque fois qu'elles le peuvent.
7.	S'appeler	Nous _____ Claude tous les deux.
8.	Se chercher	Elle _____ un emploi convenable.

* to fight like cat and dog (chiffonniers = scavengers)

4 Pronominal verbs

Complete the following questions, using indicative tenses and the persons indicated between brackets:

1. À quelle heure _____ (se réveiller, 2nd person plural, compound past)?
2. Quand _____ (se lever, 1st person plural, compound past)?
3. À quel moment _____ (se doucher, 1st person plural, imperfect)?
4. Quand _____ (se sécher les cheveux, 3rd person plural, future)?
5. Quand _____ (se maquiller, 2nd person singular, imperfect)?
6. Quand _____ (se brosser les dents, 3rd person singular, compound past)?
7. Quand _____ (s'habiller, 1st person singular, future)?
8. Quand _____ (se mettre en route, 2nd person plural, compound past)?
9. Quand _____ (s'engouffrer dans le métro, 3rd person plural, pluperfect)?
10. Quand _____ (s'asseoir à son bureau, 2nd person singular, pluperfect)?

5 Complete the sentences using the impersonal verbs between brackets, using an appropriate tense:

1. _____ de sauver l'euro. [s'agir]
2. Pour cela _____ de s'entendre entre pays de la zone euro. [convenir]
3. _____ que la tâche sera rude. [être clair]
4. _____ parfois que l'unanimité se soit faite autour de certaines questions.
[arriver]
5. Mais _____ que la mésentente entre Européens est la norme. [aller de soi]
6. _____ beaucoup d'eau sous les ponts avant d'atteindre l'harmonie entre Européens. [couler]
7. _____ un temps où l'enthousiasme pour l'idée européenne était grand. [être]

8. Mais ce temps est révolu et ——— surtout de la déception dans les cœurs. [y avoir]
9. ——— beaucoup de patience. [falloir]
10. ——— que les Européens comprennent qu'—— de sauver l'euro au plus vite. [être important / être. nécessaire]

VERBS 2: TENSES OF THE INDICATIVE

9.1 Tenses

Beneath a verb like vive in Vive la démocratie! (Long live democracy!) complex elements lie hidden: each of these elements influences the form of the verb. The same is true of all verbs: to conjugate a verb like vive is to answer a certain number of questions, such as:

What is the speaker's intention?	the mood	The action is not a reality but a strong wish.	subjunctive
At what moment in time does the action occur?	the tense	The moment the action is uttered.	present
What is the subject of the action?	the person	a concept	third person
Are there several subjects or just one?	number	a single subject	singular
Does the subject carry out the action or is the action done to him?	voice	The subject carries out the action.	active voice

In the previous chapter we have seen that it is traditional in France to treat the verb as having seven moods. According to this system, each of these moods includes a number of tenses.

The difference between je finis (present indicative) and (que) je finisse (present subjunctive) does not lie in the tense – in each case the tense is the same – but in the intention of the speaker (the mood).

● Mood

The action of the verb is variable: it can, for example, be real, wished for, put in doubt, etc. These different ways of expressing the verbal action are called moods. Moods express the intention or the attitude of the speaker to the action, or to the different ways in which the action may be carried out.

The number of moods in French varies according to different grammarians. Many grammars say that there are seven, four of which are ‘personal’: the indicative, the subjunctive, the imperative and the conditional, and three ‘impersonal’: the infinitive, the participle and the gerund.

Other grammarians, however, do not consider the impersonal moods as moods, and treat the conditional as a tense of the indicative rather than a mood.

For our purposes, we will describe the verb according to the latter view and present the verb in French as having three moods: the indicative, the subjunctive and the imperative.

● The infinitive (see 10.2)

The infinitive is the ‘non-inflected’ form of the verb, i.e. it is not marked for person or number. It can be recognized by its ending, either -er, -(o)ir, or -re: généraliser (to generalize), abolir (to abolish), naître (to be born), concevoir (to conceive).

● Tenses

The tenses are the forms that are taken by verbs to situate the action in time. These different forms of the verb are called the conjugations.

The verbal action can be situated:

- at the moment of speaking: the present tense

Regarde, regarde! C'est Catherine! Elle passe à la télé! Look, look. It's Catherine. She's on TV!

- Before the moment of speaking: the past tenses

Tu as vu Catherine? Elle est passée à la télé hier! Did you see Catherine? She was on TV yesterday!

- After the moment of speaking: the future tenses

Catherine passera probablement à la télé demain. Catherine will probably be on TV tomorrow.

Time and tense

The chart represents graphically a ‘timeline’ of tenses which we describe in this chapter. The present tense communicates what is happening now. The past tenses represent different moments before present time: the pluperfect is a ‘before-past’ tense, the simple and compound past both express a defined moment in past time and the imperfect describes past time in its extension. Beyond the present lies the future, which is preceded in the sequence by the compound future, a tense that conveys the future as a completed action.

The tenses are sometimes used with an auxiliary verb, sometimes not. We speak of simple tenses and compound tenses. For compound tenses, there is a choice between the auxiliary verbs avoir and être. The majority of verbs employ avoir; être is used for: (a) pronominal verbs; (b) about 20 verbs, principally of movement (aller [to go], venir [to come], entrer [to go in], sortir [to go out], etc.); (c) verbs in the passive voice.

For the majority of simple tenses there is a corresponding compound tense:

	Simple tenses		Compound tenses
Indicative	Present	tu dors	Compound past	tu as dormi
	Imperfect	tu dormais	Pluperfect	tu avais dormi
	Future	tu dormiras	Compound future perfect	tu auras dormi
	Conditional	tu dormirais	Compound conditional	tu aurais dormi
Subjunctive	Present	que tu dormes	Past	que tu aies dormi
Imperative	Present	dors!	Past	aie dormi!
Participle	Present	dormant	Past	dormi
Infinitive	Present	dormir	Past	avoir dormi

The compound tenses are used for two meanings:

- completion: every compound form shows a completed action.
- prior actions: the compound form expresses an action prior to one that is in the process of being carried out.

Après qu'il aura fini son rapport, il le présentera.

After he has finished his report, he will present it.

Après qu'il a fini son rapport, il le présente.

After he has finished his report, he presents it.

Après qu'il eut fini son rapport, il le présenta.

After he had finished his report, he presented it.

9.2 The radical and verb endings

9.2.1 Expression of mood, tense, person, number and voice

The mood, tense, person, number and voice are expressed:

- By the endings of the verbs

- In order to conjugate a verb, it has to change its form.

In the following forms: je parle, nous parlons, vous parliez, tu parlais one part of the verb is fixed: parl-

one part is variable: -e, -ons, -iez, -ais.

The fixed part is the radical of the verb and the variable parts are the endings. The variable part changes according to the tense, person and mood.

- The radical is the part that carries the meaning of the verb. The majority of verbs have one radical, and this is true in particular for regular verbs of the first and second groups.

chant- is the radical of chanter

fin- is the radical of finir.

Certain verbs have irregular radicals in the various tenses:

v-, ir- and all- are all radicals used in conjugating aller, sai-, sav-, sach-, saur- are all radicals used in conjugating savoir.

Each mood and tense and each of the three groups of verbs have specific endings.

Changes in the form of verbs take place:

- when the radical is modified

- by the addition of an insertion called an infix between the radical and the ending.

In the following forms:

finir (to finish):

je finis, nous finissons

couvrir (to cover):

je couvre, nous couvrons

-iss- appears in the middle of finissons, but not in couvrons.

- by variation in the spelling of the radical

In the following form:

tenir (to hold): je tiens, nous tenons, the spelling of the radical changes from ten- to tien-.

- by a change in the radical

In the following forms:

aller (to go): je vais, nous allons, nous irons: the radical all- disappears completely, to be replaced by v- or ir-, depending on the tense. This type of irregularity can be found in English too, for example: I go, I went; I am, I was.

- with the use of auxiliary verbs

The auxiliary verbs avoir and être are used to form compound tenses, and the auxiliary être to form the passive:

J'arrive > Je suis arrivé

I arrive > I (have) arrived

Je choisis > J'ai choisi

I choose > I have chosen / I chose

Il pleut > Il a plu

It's raining > It (has) rained

Elle annonce > Elle est annoncée

She announces > She is announced

9.2.2 Verb endings

-ait is the ending which marks the third person singular of the imperfect tense or of the conditional: il aimait (he used to love), il aimerait (he would love).

Unlike the radical, verb endings present few irregularities. They vary according to group, from the present indicative to the imperative, but they are the same for all verbs and all groups in, for example, the conditional or the subjunctive.

There are a few verbs which do not have a form in certain tenses or persons. Clore (to close), for example, has no form for the simple past, the imperfect indicative or the imperfect subjunctive.

9.2.3 Defective verbs

Verbs such as bruire (to buzz), choir (to fall), échoir (to fall due), gésir (to lie, be at rest), paître (to graze), quérir (to fetch) and traire (to milk) are called ‘defective’ because they do not conjugate in all forms of the verb.

9.2.4 The three groups of verbs

● Verbs ending in -er

These verbs have a regular conjugation except for certain verbs ending in -ayer, -cer, -ger, -eler, -eter, e.g. payer (to pay), commencer (to begin), manger (to eat), appeler (to call), acheter (to buy). Aller is an exception.

The -er group of verbs represents 90% of all verbs.

● Verbs ending in -ir which form their present participle in -issant

These verbs have:

- an infix -iss- between the radical and the ending in certain persons of certain tenses;
- a regular and stable radical, with the exception of haïr (to hate) and fleurir (to bloom);
- a past participle that ends in -i, with the exception of maudire (to curse), which belongs to this group despite ending in -ire: past participle, maudit.

The verbs in this group have a regular conjugation: finir (to finish), abolir (to abolish), choisir (to choose).

● A group ending in re, -oir and -ir with a present participle ending in -ant (not in -issant)

Many of these verbs are irregular, e.g. faire (to do), dire (to say), venir (to come), pouvoir (to be able), exclure (to exclude).

Aller also belongs to this group.

- Être and avoir do not belong to any group; their conjugation has a number of features which are peculiar to them.

9.2.5 The indicative mood

The indicative mood presents facts as real or certain: Il est sûr qu'il viendra à l'heure. (It's certain that he will come on time.)

It is the mood that presents a fact as it is envisaged by the speaker. In conversation, it is by far the most used of the moods.

In a subordinate clause after que the indicative can be used if the action is considered to be certain. If, however, there is doubt or uncertainty in the mind of the speaker the subjunctive must be used (see Chapter 11):

Il est clair qu'il viendra (indicative).

It's clear that he'll come.

Il est possible qu'il vienne (subjunctive).

It's possible that he'll come (perhaps he'll come).

Tenses of the indicative

The following are the indicative tenses:

1 present tense

7 past tenses:

2 simple: imperfect, simple past

3 compound: compound past, pluperfect, past anterior

2 other compound past tenses: double compound past, compound pluperfect

2 future tenses:

1 simple: future

1 compound: compound future

2 conditional tenses

1 simple: conditional

1 compound: the compound conditional

Each compound form expresses a previous action, unfinished in relation to the corresponding simple form. In Quand elle a (avait, eut, aura) dîné, elle regarde (regardait, regarda, regardera) la télévision. [lit. When she has (had, had, will have) dined, she watches (watched, watched, will watch) television].

Each double compound form corresponds to an unfinished action in relation to the corresponding compound form, e.g. Quand elle a eu dîné, elle a regardé la télévision (When she had dined, she watched the television).

9.3 The present tense

This is the tense that is employed most in the spoken language. It refers to actions that take place in present time. In English there are two forms: 'He speaks' and 'He is speaking'.

The first of these forms is used to talk about actions which are habitual or are generally or always true:

'He goes to church on Sundays.' 'The moon goes round the earth.'

The second form, called the progressive or continuous present, is usually for actions which are happening at the time of speaking:

‘He’s running away.’ ‘They are not talking sense’.

Unlike English, French does not possess a progressive form; it has only one form to express both of the above ideas.

9.3.1 Formation

1st group: gagner (to earn, win)

number/ person		radical	endings	conjugated verb
singular	Je	gagn	-e	Je gagne
	Tu	gagn	-es	Tu gagnes
	Il / elle	gagn	-e	Il / elle gagne
plural	Nous	gagn	-ons	Nous gagnons
	Vous	gagn	-ez	Vous gagnez
	Ils / elles	gagn	-ent	Ils / elles gagnent

Orthographic and phonetic changes

Some verbs in the 1st group have orthographic and phonetic changes.

ending	verb	change	example
-cer	placer (to place), prononcer (to pronounce)	c > ç before a and o	placer > nous plaçons
-e*er	mener (to lead), lever (to raise)	They carry a grave accent on the e before a silent e .	Je lève > Nous levons Je mène
-é*er	espérer (to hope), préférer (to prefer), sécher (to dry) posséder (to possess) assiéger (to besiege)	e or é in the penultimate syllable changes to è when the consonant is followed by a silent e .	posséder > Je possède Nous possédons

ending	verb	change	example
-ger	interroger (to question), bouger (to move)	Insert e before a and o .	bouger > nous bougeons
-eler or -eter	appeler (to call), jeter (to throw)	Double the l or the t before a silent e .	appeler > j' appelle jeter > je jette
	Exceptions acheter (to buy), geler (to freeze), congeler (to freeze), peler (to peel), marteler (to beat), modeler (to model)	These verbs do not double the consonant but they carry a grave accent on the e before a silent e .	J'achète Nous achetons
-guer -quer	naviguer (to sail), fabriquer (to make, manufacture)	Keep the u throughout the conjugation.	Je navigue Nous naviguons
-oyer or -uyer	nettoyer (to clean), ennuyer (to bore)	Change the y into i before a silent e .	Je nettoie J'essuie
-ayer	payer (to pay)	There are two possibilities. These verbs can either maintain the y or change it into i before a silent e .	Je paye Je paie

2nd group: finir (to finish)

number and person		radical	infix	endings	conjugated verb
singular	Je	fin	--	-is	Je finis
	Tu	fin	--	-is	Tu finis
	Il / elle	fin	--	-it	Il / elle finit
plural	Nous	fin	-iss-	-ons	Nous finissons
	Vous	fin	-iss-	-ez	Vous finissez
	Ils / elles	fin	-iss-	-ent	Ils / elles finissent

Note hair loses its diaeresis in the first three persons of the singular of the present indicative: Je hais, tu hais, il hait, nous haïssons, vous haïssez, ils haïssent.

3rd group: perdre (to lose)

number and person		radical	endings	conjugated verb
singular	Je	perd	-s	Je perds
	Tu	perd	-s	Tu perds
	Il / elle	perd	-	Il / elle perd plural	Nous	perd	-ons	Nous perdons
	Vous	perd	-ez	Vous perdez
	Ils / elles	perd	-ent	Ils / elles perdent

Auxiliary verb avoir

number and person		radical	endings	conjugated verb
singular	J'	ai	-	J'ai
	Tu	a	-s	Tu as
	Il / elle	a	-	Il / elle a plural	Nous	av	-ons	Nous avons
	Vous	av	-ez	Vous avez
	Ils / elles	o	-nt	Ils / elles ont

Auxiliary verb être

number and person		radical	endings	conjugated verb
singular	Je	sui	-s	Je suis
	Tu	e	-s	Tu es
	Il / elle	es	-t	Il / elle est plural	Nous	s	-ommes	Nous sommes
	Vous	êt	-es	Vous êtes
	Ils / elles	s	-ont	Ils / elles sont

Note

(s')asseoir / (s')assoir

S'asseoir (to sit down) is conjugated in two different ways: je m'assieds, which is more literary, and more frequent than je m'assois. The opposite occurs in Quebec, where the radical asso- is more frequent. The two roots are found in all tenses and moods. S'assire also exists, but it has almost disappeared; it can be heard in some regions of France.

je m'assieds	je m'assois
tu t'assieds	tu t'assois
il, elle s'assied	il, elle s'assoit
nous nous asseyons	nous nous assoyons
vous vous asseyez	vous vous assoyez
ils, elles s'asseyent	ils, elles s'assoient

The orthographic changes of 1990 recommend that this verb is written s'assoir (with no change in pronunciation).

9.3.2 Uses of the present tense

KEY POINT

The present tense describes a state of affairs which exists at the time of speaking, and which is held to be true by the speaker.

Tiens! Ils passent les Beatles à la radio.
Il fait beau aujourd'hui.

Why, the Beatles are on the radio!
The weather's fine today.

The present tense describes:

- general truths which have always existed and will always exist, maxims, sayings, definitions:

Deux et deux font quatre.

Two and two make four.

L'appétit vient en mangeant.

Eating stimulates the appetite.

La Terre tourne autour du Soleil.

The earth goes round the sun.

- repeated actions, accompanied by an adverb:

Il joue souvent au football.

He often plays football.

Le samedi il va au pub.

On Saturdays he goes to the pub.

- habits or tendencies, without reference to time:

Son chat griffe.

His cat scratches.

Il maltraite son chien.

He ill-treats his dog.

- a past that is very recent or linked to the present:

Je le quitte à l'instant!

I just left him!

Il est marié depuis 10 ans.

He has been married for 10 years. [and still is married now]

- a future action:

Il joue au foot samedi.

He's playing football on Saturday.

L'an prochain il commence un doctorat.

He begins his doctorate next year.

- an event situated entirely in the past. This is called the historical present:

En 1789, la France connaît une Révolution importante.

In 1789 France experiences / experienced an important Revolution.

- prophetic utterances:

Au train où vont les choses, dans 50 ans il n'y a plus de forêts en Europe.

The way things are going, in 50 years there will be no more forests in Europe.

9.4 The imperfect tense

When we talk about the past in English we can choose between three different forms of the verb:

if we want to describe what we did last Saturday we might say 'We swam in the sea last Saturday'.

if we want to stress the continuous nature of this action like we might say 'We were swimming in the sea'.

In order to convey the idea that the same action was repeated or habitual, we use the auxiliary verb 'used to' or 'would': 'We used to / would swim in the sea.

The latter two forms can have a different meaning from the first one. In order to express continuous or habitual actions in the past in French the imperfect tense is used.

9.4.1 Formation

The same radical and the same endings are used for all verb groups. The endings are: -ais,- ais, -ait, -ions, -iez, -aient.

Note that:

- there is an -i- in the first and second persons plural, which distinguishes the imperfect from the present indicative:

nous traduisions, vous abolissiez, vous veniez, nous avions, vous étiez

- the infix -iss- appears in all persons plural of verbs in the second group (-ir)

The conjugation of the imperfect presents few difficulties. The radical of the verb is the same as that of the first person plural of the present indicative. The only exception is être.

1st group: gagner

number and person		radical	endings	conjugated verb
singular	Je	gagn	-ais	Je gagnais
	Tu	gagn	-ais	Tu gagnais
	Il / elle	gagn	-ait	Il / elle gagnait
plural	Nous	gagn	-ions	Nous gagnions
	Vous	gagn	-iez	Vous gagniez
	Ils / elles	gagn	-aient	Ils / elles gagnaient

2nd group: finir

	Ils / elles	ét	-aient	Ils / elles étaient

9.4.2 Orthographic and phonetic changes

Some verbs in the 1st group have orthographic and phonetic changes:

radical ending in -i , -y , -ill or -gn	se méfier (to mistrust), gagner (to earn, win), voir (to see), habiller (to dress)	The [i] sound of the first and second persons plural blends with the -ll- or -i of the end of the radical and is therefore not pronounced. It is important not to forget to write the i .	habillions / habilliez voyions / voyiez nous méfions / vous méfiiez gagnions / gagniez
-cer	placer (to place), prononcer (to pronounce)	c > ç before a	placer > elle plaçait
-ger	interroger (to question), bouger (to move)	Insert an e before a .	bouger > il bougeait

-eler or -eter		The l and the t are not doubled in the imperfect (cf. present).	appeler > j'appelais jeter > tu jetais
-guer -quer	naviguer (to sail), fabriquer (to make, manufacture)	Keep the u , even before a .	Je naviguais

9.4.3 Uses of the imperfect

KEY POINT

The imperfect describes a past action which was taking place; its beginning and end are not clearly defined:

J'allais à la plage tous les jours.

I used to go to the beach every day.

The imperfect describes:

- a past action seen in its duration, which is not defined or limited by time:

Il aimait se promener avec sa petite fille.

He liked going for a walk with his granddaughter.

Il travaillait pour la SNCF.

He worked for the SNCF.

- a scene, a picture or a setting:

C'était la fin de l'automne. Il neigeait. Au loin, la montagne s'estompait derrière le tourbillon incessant des flocons.

It was the end of autumn. It was snowing. In the distance the mountain was becoming blurred in the unceasing whirl of the snowflakes.

- a background against which an event occurs:

Il lisait quand soudain le téléphone sonna.

He was reading when suddenly the phone rang.

Il faisait nuit, les rues étaient désertes. Un cri retentit.

It was night, the streets were deserted. A cry rang out.

- a habitual action:

Tous les soirs grand-père fumait sa pipe au coin du feu pendant que grand-mère faisait des mots croisés.

Every evening grandpa used to / would smoke his pipe at the fireside while grandma did the crossword.

The historical or narrative imperfect describes a series of actions at a precise moment in the past. It could often be replaced by a simple past or a compound past, but the imperfect slows the action and gives it more breadth and presence than the simple past or a compound past. The idea of duration that characterizes the imperfect allows us to glimpse the consequences of an action:

En 1944 les troupes débarquaient en Normandie.

In 1944 the troops disembarked in Normandy.

Tout de suite après la guerre ils émigraient en France.

Immediately after the war they emigrated to France.

- an action which takes place after another moment in the past:

Le lendemain, il partait pour les Antilles.

The next day he was leaving for the West Indies.

- an action which almost took place but was prevented and therefore did not occur. An alternative would be the compound conditional:

Un point de plus et il sortait (serait sorti) major de sa promotion.

One mark more and he would have come first in his year.

Sans votre présence d'esprit, cet élève se blessait (se serait blessé) sérieusement.

Without your presence of mind, this pupil would have been seriously injured.

- polite utterances which are an alternative for a blunter present tense:

J'allais vous demander la permission de m'absenter une heure ou deux.

I was going to ask permission to be absent for an hour or two.

Notes

- The sequence of tenses

After a verb in the past tense, according to the sequence of tenses, the verb in a subordinate clause is in the imperfect tense:

Joseph fit signe qu'il partait.

Joseph motioned that he was leaving.

- The imperfect in conditional clauses

The imperfect is used after a hypothetical si. It expresses a present or future action:

Si j'avais les moyens je voyagerais en 1^{re} classe. If I had the means, I'd travel first class.

- The imperfect with si can express:

- regret: S'il pouvait revenir sur sa décision! If only he could go back on his decision!
- a wish: Ah! Si j'étais riche! Ah! If I were rich!
- a suggestion: Et si nous allions nous coucher les enfants! How about us going to bed, children!

9.5 The compound past

In the sentence 'She has lost her passport', the verb 'has lost' is in the compound past tense. This tense combines the auxiliary verb (has) and the past participle of the verb (‘lost’). In English this tense is used to describe actions that have begun in the past and carry through to the present. What we are interested in is that the passport isn’t here now (see 9.2.1).

9.5.1 Formation

avoir or être in the present indicative plus the past participle:

1st group: gagner

number and person		auxiliary	past participle	conjugated verb
singular	J’	ai	gagné	j’ai gagné
	Tu	as	gagné	tu as gagné
	Il / elle	a	gagné	il / elle a gagné
plural	Nous	avons	gagné	nous avons gagné
	Vous	avez	gagné	vous avez gagné
	Ils / elles	ont	gagné	ils / elles ont gagné

2nd group: finir

number and person		auxiliary	past participle	conjugated verb
singular	J’	ai	fini	j’ai fini
	Tu	as	fini	tu as fini
	Il / elle	a	fini	il / elle a fini
plural	Nous	avons	fini	nous avons fini
	Vous	avez	fini	vous avez fini
	Ils / elles	ont	fini	ils / elles ont fini

3rd group: descendre

number and person		auxiliary	past participle	conjugated verb
singular	Je	suis	descendu(e)	je suis descendu(e)
	Tu	es	descendu(e)	tu es descendu(e)
	Il / elle	est	descendu(e)	il / elle est descendu(e)
plural	Nous	sommes	descendu(e)(s)	nous sommes descendu(e)(s)
	Vous	êtes	descendu(e)(s)	vous êtes descendu(e)(s)
	Ils / elles	sont	descendu(e)s	ils / elles sont descendu(e)s

Auxiliary verb avoir

number and person		auxiliary	past participle	conjugated verb
singular	J'	ai	eu	j'ai eu
	Tu	as	eu	tu as eu
	Il / elle	a	eu	il / elle a eu plural	Nous	avons	eu	nous avons eu
	Vous	avez	eu	vous avez eu
	Ils / elles	ont	eu	ils / elles ont eu

Auxiliary verb être

number and person		auxiliary	past participle	conjugated verb
singular	J'	ai	été	j'ai été
	Tu	as	été	tu as été
	Il / elle	a	été	il / elle a été
plural	Nous	avons	été	nous avons été
	Vous	avez	été	vous avez été
	Ils / elles	ont	été	ils / elles ont été

9.5.2 Conjugation of verbs with être

- Over 20 intransitive verbs as follows:

verb	past participle		verb	past participle
aller	allé	to go	mourir	meurt	to die
apparaître	apparu	to appear	naître	né	to be born
arriver	arrivé	to arrive	partir	parti	to leave
décéder	décédé	to die	passer	passé	to pass by
demeurer	demeuré	to remain	rester	resté	to remain
descendre	descendu	to go down	retourner	retourné	to return
devenir	devenu	to become	sortir	sorti	to go out
entrer	entré	to go in	tomber	tombé	to fall
monter	monté	to go up	venir	venu	to come

In addition the auxiliary être is used with derivatives of the above verbs, like rentrer (to go back in), repartir (to set off again), revenir (to come back), parvenir (to reach).

- All pronominal verbs (see 8.4).
- All verbs in the passive voice (see 8.2.3).

KEY POINTS

In French the compound past tense has two main functions:

- it describes past actions which are completed:

De Gaulle a démissionné en 1969 et est mort en 1970. De Gaulle resigned in 1969 and died in 1970.

Il a travaillé comme postier dans sa jeunesse. He worked as a postman in his youth.

- it also describes past actions which carry through to the present:

Zut! J'ai perdu mon passeport. Damn! I've lost my passport.

9.5.3 Uses of the compound past

The compound past expresses:

- an action begun in the past which continues into the present:

J'ai déjà ramassé 2 paniers de champignons depuis midi. I've already gathered two baskets of mushrooms since midday.

J'ai acheté un nouvel ordinateur. I've bought a new computer.

- in the spoken language, an action situated entirely in the past which would normally be in the simple past:

Molière et sa troupe ont connu des débuts difficiles.

Molière and his company had a difficult beginning.

- an action in the near future that is described as already completed (often with a compound future meaning), with a time reference:

*J'ai peint (aurai peint) ce mur dans une heure.
J'ai pratiquement fini mon livre.*

I will have painted this wall in an hour.
I practically finished my book. (I'll have finished it soon)

- understatement in negative sentences:

À cette allure, on est pas encore rentrés !

At this rate, we won't be back for quite a while yet. (to say that we are still a long way from being back)

Note

The compound past in conditional clauses

The compound past is used after conditional si to express a future action which happens before another future action:

Si à 8 heures il n'a pas téléphoné c'est moi qui l'appelle.

If he hasn't phoned by 8 o'clock, I'll be the one to call him.

9.6 The simple past

In English the simple past tense refers to actions that have been completed in the past: e.g. 'France won the World Cup in 1998'. The verb consists of a single word, 'won', and the date given confirms that the event is over and done with.

In French, one of two tenses may be used to express a completed past action: the compound past (see 9.5) or the simple past.

9.6.1 Formation

The simple past is formed from the radical plus the endings below.

1st group: gagner

number/ person		radical	endings	conjugated verb
singular	Je	gagn	-ai	je gagnai
	Tu	gagn	-as	tu gagnas
	Il / elle	gagn	-a	il / elle gagna plural	Nous	gagn	-âmes	nous gagnâmes
	Vous	gagn	-âtes	vous gagnâtes
	Ils / elles	gagn	-èrent	ils / elles gagnèrent

2nd group: finir

number/ person		radical	endings	conjugated verb
singular	Je	fin	-is	je finis
	Tu	fin	-is	tu finis
	Il / elle	fin	-it	il / elle finit
plural	Nous	fin	-îmes	nous finîmes
	Vous	fin	-îtes	vous finîtes
	Ils / elles	fin	-irent	ils / elles finirent

3rd group: perdre

number/ person		radical	endings	conjugated verb
singular	Je	perd	-is	je perdis
	Tu	perd	-is	tu perdis
	Il / elle	perd	-it	il / elle perdit
plural	Nous	perd	-îmes	nous perdîmes
	Vous	perd	-îtes	vous perdîtes
	Ils / elles	perd	-irent	ils / elles perdirent

Note

For verbs in the third group the vowel of the ending can be either i or u:

nous conclûmes, vous aperçûtes, ils virent, je dus, etc.

Auxiliary verb avoir eu- pronounced /y/

number/ person	radical	endings	conjugated verb
singular	J'	e	j'eus
	Tu	e	tu eus
	Il / elle	e	il / elle eut plural	Nous	e	nous eûmes
	Vous	e	vous eûtes
	Ils / elles	e	ils / elles eurent

Auxiliary verb être

number/ person	radical	endings	conjugated verb
singular	Je	f	je fus
	Tu	f	tu fus
	Il / elle	f	il/elle fut plural	Nous	f	nous fûmes
	Vous	f	vous fûtes
	Ils / elles	f	ils / elles furent

9.6.2 Uses of the simple past

The simple past is hardly ever employed in the spoken language, where the compound past takes its place. On the other hand, it is used in the written language, especially in the third persons singular and plural.

KEY POINT

The simple past expresses a completed past action, with its beginning and end being clearly defined, and with no relevance to the present:

Hier ils jouèrent un beau match.

Yesterday they played a fine match.

L'avion décolla à 13.30.

The plane took off at 13.30.

The simple past

- expresses an action that takes place at a particular moment in the past:

J'étais plongé dans mes pensées quand soudain on m'appela de l'autre côté de la rue. I was deep in thought when suddenly somebody called out to me from the other side of the street.

- contrasts with the imperfect, in that it describes a past action without reference to its duration:

Hier il fit des courses. Yesterday he did some shopping.

- is the tense used for narrating the past (e.g. in folk tales). It is ideal for describing a succession of actions, whereas the imperfect describes a number of simultaneous actions in the past (see 9.7):

À la lecture de la lettre mon sang ne fit qu'un tour. Je pris la plume et lui répondis sur le champ!
« Nous partîmes cinq cents; mais par un prompt renfort
Nous nous vîmes trois mille en arrivant au port. »
 (Corneille, Le Cid, Acte IV, Scène 3)

On reading the letter my heart missed a beat. I took up my pen and replied on the spot! 'Five hundred of us departed but, soon reinforced, we were three thousand strong when we reached the port'.

9.7 The imperfect and the simple past contrasted

The imperfect and the simple past are the tenses most used in narrative texts, but they contrast fundamentally in their uses.

Imperfect	Simple past
Habit / repetition / simultaneity Repeated, habitual actions. J'allais volontiers chez grand-père car tous les soirs il me montrait ses vieilles photographies. I used to go willingly to my grandfather's because every evening he would show me his old photos.	Successive actions A succession of actions which build up the narrative. Elle prit l'aspirateur, le présenta à mon père, et dit: 'À toi maintenant!' She took the vacuum cleaner, handed it to my father and said: 'It's your turn now'.
Duration Actions which last, are drawn out in time. J'aimais ces journées d'automne où la nature prenait des couleurs étonnantes. I used to like those autumn days when nature took on astonishing colours.	Suddenness, exactitude A succession of sudden actions which build up the narrative. En début d'après-midi une explosion se produisit et tout le monde se mit à courir dans tous les sens. At the beginning of the afternoon there was an explosion and everyone began to run in all directions.
Background Evokes a 'background' action which continues in the past, serving as a framework for a foreground action which does not last. Je dormais profondément quand il entra en claquant la porte. I was fast asleep when he came in slamming the door.	Foreground Evokes a single action in the foreground situated within the background. Je dormais quand le chien aboya. I was asleep when the dog barked.
Unlimited A past action which is evolving, without time limits. Je profitais de la gentillesse de grand-mère pour avoir des bonbons que maman me refusait. I would take advantage of my grandmother's kindness to have sweets that mummy wouldn't give me.	Limited A past action with a beginning and an end, happening at a precise moment. Elle eut juste le temps d'aller acheter les billets quand il commença à pleuvoir. She had just enough time to go and buy the tickets when it began to rain.

9.8 The pluperfect tense

This tense is used to indicate an action which occurred before another action in the past. The English equivalent is 'I had (spoken, etc.)'.

9.8.1 Formation

avoir or être in the imperfect tense plus the past participle:

1st group: gagner

number and person		auxiliary	past participle	conjugated verb
singular	J'	avais	gagné	j'avais gagné
	Tu	avais	gagné	tu avais gagné
	Il / elle	avait	gagné	il / elle avait gagné
plural	Nous	avons	gagné	nous avons gagné
	Vous	aviez	gagné	vous aviez gagné
	Ils / elles	avaient	gagné	ils / elles avaient gagné

2nd group: finir

number and person		auxiliary	past participle	conjugated verb
singular	J'	avais	fini	j'avais fini
	Tu	avais	fini	tu avais fini
	Il / elle	avait	fini	il / elle avait fini
plural	Nous	avons	fini	nous avons fini
	Vous	aviez	fini	vous aviez fini
	Ils / elles	avaient	fini	ils / elles avaient fini

3rd group: descendre

number and person		auxiliary	past participle	conjugated verb
singular	J'	étais	descendu(e)	j'étais descendu(e)
	Tu	étais	descendu(e)	tu étais descendu(e)
	Il / elle	était	descendu(e)	il / elle était descendu(e)
plural	Nous	étions	descendu(e)(s)	nous étions descendu(e)(s)
	Vous	étiez	descendu(e)(s)	vous étiez descendu(e)(s)
	Ils / elles	étaient	descendu(e)s	ils / elles étaient descendu(e)s

Auxiliary verb avoir

number and person		auxiliary	past participle	conjugated verb
singular	J'	avais	eu	j'avais eu
	Tu	avais	eu	tu avais eu
	Il / elle	avait	eu	il / elle avait eu plural	Nous	avions	eu	nous avions eu
	Vous	aviez	eu	vous aviez eu
	Ils / elles	avaient	eu	ils / elles avaient eu

Auxiliary verb être

number and person		auxiliary	past participle	conjugated verb
singular	J'	avais	été	j'avais été
	Tu	avais	été	tu avais été
	Il / elle	avait	été	il / elle avait été plural	Nous	avions	été	nous avions été
	Vous	aviez	été	vous aviez été
	Ils / elles	avaient	été	ils / elles avaient été

KEY POINT

The pluperfect expresses an indeterminate past which took place before another event in the past:

Il a visité l'Ecosse cette année et il avait visité l'Irlande l'an dernier. He visited Scotland this year and he had visited Ireland the previous year.

Il ne pouvait pas marcher car il s'était blessé au genou. He could not walk because he had injured his knee.

9.8.2 Uses of the pluperfect

- Like the imperfect, the pluperfect is used for description:

Il avait plu. On avait plié les parasols et on avait rentré les tables et les chaises. It had rained. They had folded the umbrellas and taken in the tables and chairs.

- The pluperfect can refer to a present action that is expressed as if it was in the past:

Bonjour Monsieur le directeur, j'étais venu vous demander s'il était possible d'avoir une journée de congé. lit. Hello, Director, I had come to ask you if it would be possible to have a day's leave.

- Sequence of tenses:

- If the main verb is in a past tense, the verb of the subordinate clause can be in the pluperfect:

Il a avoué qu'il avait renversé le café sur la moquette. He admitted that he had spilt the coffee on the carpet.

Elle croyait que j'avais menti. She thought that I had lied.

- The pluperfect in conditional clauses:

When the subordinate clause introduced by si is in the pluperfect the main clause is in the conditional perfect:

Si j'avais connu le prix avant j'aurais réfléchi à deux fois. If I had know the price beforehand I'd have thought twice about it.

9.9 The past anterior

9.9.1 Formation

avoir or être in the simple past plus the past participle:

1st group: gagner

number and person		auxiliary	past participle	conjugated verb
singular	J'	eus	gagné	j'eus gagné
	Tu	eus	gagné	tu eus gagné
	Il / elle	eut	gagné	il / elle eut gagné
plural	Nous	eûmes	gagné	nous eûmes gagné
	Vous	eûtes	gagné	vous eûtes gagné
	Ils / elles	eurent	gagné	ils / elles eurent gagné

2nd group: finir

number and person		auxiliary	past participle	conjugated verb
singular	J'	eus	fini	j'eus fini
	Tu	eus	fini	tu eus fini
	Il / elle	eut	fini	il / elle eut fini
plural	Nous	eûmes	fini	nous eûmes fini
	Vous	eûtes	fini	vous eûtes fini
	Ils / elles	eurent	fini	ils / elles eurent fini

3rd group: descendre

number and person		auxiliary	past participle	conjugated verb
singular	Je	fus	descendu(e)	je fus descendu(e)
	Tu	fus	descendu(e)	tu fus descendu(e)
	Il / elle	fut	descendu(e)	il / elle fut descendu(e)
plural	Nous	fûmes	descendu(e)(s)	nous fûmes descendu(e)(s)
	Vous	fûtes	descendu(e)(s)	vous fûtes descendu(e)(s)
	Ils / elles	furent	descendu(e)s	ils / elles furent descendu(e)s

Auxiliary verb avoir

number and person		auxiliary	past participle	conjugated verb
singular	J'	eus	eu	j'eus eu
	Tu	eus	eu	tu eus eu
	Il / elle	eut	eu	il / elle eut eu plural	Nous	eûmes	eu	nous eûmes eu
	Vous	eûtes	eu	vous eûtes eu
	Ils / elles	eurent	eu	ils / elles eurent eu

Auxiliary verb être

number and person		auxiliary	past participle	conjugated verb
singular	J'	eus	été	j'eus été
	Tu	eus	été	tu eus été
	Il / elle	eut	été	il / elle eut été
plural	Nous	eûmes	été	nous eûmes été
	Vous	eûtes	été	vous eûtes été
	Ils / elles	eurent	été	ils / elles eurent été

KEY POINT

The past anterior, like the pluperfect, is a pre-past tense: it describes a single action happening before another past action which is usually in the simple past tense. This tense occurs only in formal French:

Dès qu'il se fut changé, il se servit un verre et s'installa devant la télévision.

As soon as he had got changed he poured himself a drink and sat in front of the television.

9.9.2 Use

Like the simple past with which it is generally associated, the past anterior is used less and less in modern French.

The past anterior is frequently used after time conjunctions like quand (when), dès que (as soon as), lorsque (when), après que (after), with a verb in the main clause in the simple past, but also, less frequently, in another past tense:

Après qu'il eut soigneusement fermé la porte, il se dirigea vers l'arrêt de bus.

Après qu'il eut soigneusement fermé la porte, il se dirigea vers l'arrêt de bus.

Dès que le public se fut installé, il prit la parole.

As soon as the audience was settled he spoke.

9.10 The future tense

We use the future tense to express future actions. In English we place the auxiliary verb 'will' or 'shall' before the verb to form the future, as in 'It will / It'll be hot today' and 'We will / We'll arrive at 7.30'. Future actions can also be expressed by the progressive form of 'to go' plus the infinitive of the verb, as in 'It's going to be hot today' and 'We are going to arrive at 7.30'.

9.10.1 Formation

The infinitive plus the endings of avoir in the present indicative, except for irregular verbs (see Verb Tables, pp. 393–417).

1st group: gagner

number/ person		infinitive	endings	conjugated verb
singular	Je	gagner	-ai	je gagnerai
	Tu	gagner	-as	tu gagneras
	Il / elle	gagner	-a	il / elle gagnera
plural	Nous	gagner	-ons	nous gagnerons
	Vous	gagner	-ez	vous gagnerez
	Ils / elles	gagner	-ont	ils / elles gagneront

2nd group: finir

number/ person		infinitive	endings	conjugated verb
singular	Je	finir	-ai	je finirai
	Tu	finir	-as	tu finiras
	Il / elle	finir	-a	il / elle finira plural	Nous	finir	-ons	nous finirons
	Vous	finir	-ez	vous finirez
	Ils / elles	finir	-ont	ils / elles finiront

3rd group: perdre

number/ person		infinitive	endings	conjugated verb
singular	Je	perdr	-ai	je perdrai
	Tu	perdr	-as	tu perdras
	Il / elle	perdr	-a	il / elle perdra plural	Nous	perdr	-ons	nous perdrons
	Vous	perdr	-ez	vous perdrez
	Ils / elles	perdr	-ont	ils / elles perdront

KEY POINT

The simple future describes an action which takes place after the moment that it is spoken about:

Il viendra demain.

He will come tomorrow.

9.10.2 Uses

The future tense:

- describes a general truth, outside of time, and is frequently seen in maxims:

Le menteur sera toujours démasqué.

Rira bien qui rira le dernier.

Qui vivra verra.

The liar will always be revealed.

He who laughs last laughs [lit. will laugh] loudest.

What will be will be.

- can be used to describe historical events. In a sequence of historical events the future can describe a past event which comes after another event:

Childéric I^{er}, chassé par son peuple, se refugia en Thuringe où il connut Basine qu'il épousa. De ce mariage naîtra Clovis en 466, premier roi de France.

Childeric I, pursued by his own people, took refuge in Thuringia where he met Basine, whom he married. From this union was born [lit. will be born], in 466, Clovis the first king of France.

- expresses politeness. The future can replace the present to avoid brusqueness and so soften the impact of the verb:

Maintenant je vous demanderais de vous taire et d'ouvrir vos livres à la page 24.

Now I shall ask you to be quiet and to open your books at page 24.

- can be used as an imperative, to express a command, a prayer or a wish:

Tenez! Vous rangerez ce livre dans la bibliothèque!

Right! You will put that book back in the library.

Vous voudrez bien me remplir ce document et me le signer, s'il vous plaît!

You will fill in this document and sign it for me, please!

- can replace the present in some exclamative phrases which express indignation or irony:

Comment! Ces gens m'insulteront et je ne dirai rien!

What! These people [lit. will] insult me and I don't [lit. won't] say anything!

Quel être prétentieux! Il connaîtra la philosophie plus que moi!

What a pretentious person! He knows [lit. will know] philosophy better than me!

- can express a probability, in familiar language, giving a plausible explanation to an action:

J'entends un bruit au grenier, ce sera un chat qui se sera égaré.

I can hear a noise in the loft; it will be a stray cat.

- can be expressed by the verb devoir followed by an infinitive:

Je dois partir pour le Canada samedi.

I'm to go to Canada on Saturday.

Notes

- Sequence of tenses

When a subordinate clause introduced by si is in the present indicative, the verb in the main clause is in the present, the future or the imperative:

Si tu apprends bien ton texte, tu pourras tenir le rôle dans la pièce.

If you learn the part well you will be able to play the role in the play.

● The immediate future

The immediate future is expressed by the verb aller in the present tense followed by the infinitive:

J'ai soif! Je vais me servir un jus de fruit. I'm thirsty. I'm going to get myself a fruit juice.

On va prendre le train dans à peine deux heures. We're going to catch the train in barely two hours.

● The future after conjunctions of time

In clauses introduced by a conjunction of time, like après que (after), aussitôt que / dès que (as soon as), quand / lorsque (when), when the meaning is a future one, the verb is in the future. Note the use of the present tense in English (see 13.3.3).

Example:

Dès qu'elle arrivera, donne-lui les billets. As soon as she arrives, give her the tickets.

9.11 The compound future

9.11.1 Formation

avoir or être in the simple future plus the past participle.

1st group: gagner

number and person		auxiliary	past participle	conjugated verb
singular	J'	aurai	gagné	j'aurai gagné
	Tu	auras	gagné	tu auras gagné

singular	Je	serai	descendu(e)	je serai descendu(e)
	Tu	seras	descendu(e)	tu seras descendu(e)
	Il / elle	sera	descendu(e)	il / elle sera descendu(e)
plural	Nous	serons	descendu(e)(s)	nous serons descendu(e)(s)
	Vous	serez	descendu(e)(s)	vous serez descendu(e)(s)
	Ils / elles	seront	descendu(e)s	ils / elles seront descendu(e)s

Auxiliary verb avoir

number and person		auxiliary	past participle	conjugated verb
singular	J'	aurai	eu	j'aurai eu
	Tu	auras	eu	tu auras eu
	Il / elle	aura	eu	il / elle aura eu plural	Nous	aurons	eu	nous aurons eu
	Vous	aurez	eu	vous aurez eu
	Ils / elles	auront	eu	ils / elles auront eu

Auxiliary verb être

singular	J'	aurai	été	j aurai été
	Tu	auras	été	tu auras été
	Il / elle	aura	été	il / elle aura été plural	Nous	aurons	été	nous aurons été
	Vous	aurez	été	vous aurez été
	Ils / elles	auront	été	ils / elles auront été

KEY POINT

The compound future describes a completed future action which comes before another future action or date:

Demain à 10 heures il aura pris connaissance de ses résultats.

Tomorrow at 10 o'clock he will have got to know his results.

Quand il aura passé tous ses examens, on parlera des vacances.

When he has taken all his exams, we'll talk about holidays.

9.11.2 Uses

The compound future:

- can express speculation or a supposition:

Elle aura pris froid en sortant de la piscine.

She'll have caught a cold getting out of the swimming pool.

C'est sans doute ses parents qui auront été trop sévères.

It's certainly her parents who will have been too strict.

- can express a judgement or assessment of a past event:

Finalement, l'année 2008 aura surtout été l'année de la crise.

In the end, 2008 will have been the year of the crisis.

- can be used to play down a past action, in a polite manner:

Ce n'est pas grave. Vous aurez oublié, c'est tout!

It's not serious. You'll have forgotten, that's all.

Note

The compound future after conjunctions of time

The compound future is used in clauses introduced by a conjunction of time, like après que (after), aussitôt que / dès que (as soon as), quand / lorsque (when). Note the use of the perfect tense in English (see 13.3.3):

Quand il aura fini ses études il pourra enfin voyager.

When he has finished his studies, he will be able to travel at last.

9.12 The conditional tense

The conditional tense (see 9.1 for the conditional as a mood in French), as its name suggests, is mainly used to describe events which would only take place if specific conditions were met. In the sentence ‘If she went to Paris she would get a better job’, the verb ‘would get’ is in the conditional tense. In this case the girl’s job prospects are conditional on the move to Paris. The conditional is also used when expressing oneself politely, as in ‘Would you like a drink?’, and for expressing the future as seen from the past, as in ‘He said he would leave’. In English we place the auxiliary verb ‘would’ or ‘should’ before the infinitive to form the conditional.

9.12.1 Formation

The conditional is formed from the infinitive of the verb plus the endings of the imperfect indicative, except for irregular verbs. The formation of the conditional is therefore similar to that of the future: Je couperais, il remplirait, vous tendriez ...

1st group: gagner

number and person		infinitive	endings	conjugated verb
singular	Je	gagner	-ais	je gagnerais
	Tu	gagner	-ais	tu gagnerais
	Il / elle	gagner	-ait	il / elle gagnerait
plural	Nous	gagner	-ions	nous gagnerions
	Vous	gagner	-iez	vous gagneriez
	Ils / elles	gagner	-aient	ils / elles gagneraient

2nd group: finir

number and person		infinitive	endings	conjugated verb
singular	Je	finir	-ais	je finirais
	Tu	finir	-ais	tu finirais
	Il / elle	finir	-ait	il / elle finirait
plural	Nous	finir	-ions	nous finirions
	Vous	finir	-iez	vous finiriez
	Ils / elles	finir	-aient	ils / elles finiraient

3rd group: perdre

number and person		infinitive	endings	conjugated verb
singular	Je	perdr	-ais	je perdrais
	Tu	perdr	-ais	tu perdrais
	Il / elle	perdr	-ait	il / elle perdrait
plural	Nous	perdr	-ions	nous perdrions
	Vous	perdr	-iez	vous perdriez
	Ils / elles	perdr	-aient	ils / elles perdraient

Auxiliary verb avoir

number and person		radical	endings	conjugated verb
singular	J'	aur	-ais	j'aurais
	Tu	aur	-ais	tu aurais
	Il / elle	aur	-ait	il / elle aurait
plural	Nous	aur	-ions	nous aurions
	Vous	aur	-iez	vous auriez
	Ils / elles	aur	-aient	ils / elles auraient

Auxiliary verb être

number and person		radical	endings	conjugated verb
singular	Je	ser	-ais	je serais
	Tu	ser	-ais	tu serais
	Il / elle	ser	-ait	il / elle serait
plural	Nous	ser	-ions	nous serions
	Vous	ser	-iez	vous seriez
	Ils / elles	ser	-aient	ils / elles seraient

KEY POINT

The conditional describes a future action from the perspective of the past:

Elle pensait sincèrement que ses poèmes la rendraient célèbre.

She sincerely thought that her poems would make her famous.

9.12.2 Uses

The conditional:

- is used in indirect speech when the main verb is in the past; in direct speech the future would be employed.

Direct speech	Indirect speech
Il pensa: « Ce sera plus simple de prendre le train. » He thought: 'It will be simpler to take the train.'	Il pensait que ce serait plus simple de prendre le train. He thought that it would be simpler to take the train.

- has a future sense when related to a verb in a past tense, i.e., it is a 'future in the past':

Le professeur montrait les exercices que les étudiants auraient à résoudre la semaine suivante.

The teacher showed the exercises that the students would have to work out the following week.

- expresses politeness, as in English:

Je voudrais vous parler un instant, auriez-vous l'obligeance de m'attendre après la réunion.

I'd like to speak to you for a moment; would you please wait for me after the meeting.

- expresses what would happen if a condition is met:

J'accepterais volontiers ce travail si j'étais mieux payé. I'd accept this work willingly if I was better paid.

- expresses an unsubstantiated statement (often in the media):

Les premières estimations montrent que l'opposition perdrait 200 sièges à l'issue de ce second tour. The first estimates indicate that the opposition would lose 200 seats at the end of the second round.

- is used in sentences where the conjunction joining two statements is omitted. Both clauses may be in the conditional:

Il présenterait ses excuses, je ne l'écouterais pas. He would give his apologies, I wouldn't listen to him.

In this sense it resembles the following type of structure:

Même s'il présentait ses excuses, je ne l'écouterais pas. Even if he gave his excuses I wouldn't listen to him.

9.12.3 Sequence of tenses

When a conditional clause introduced by si is in the past, the conditional can be used in the main clause:

S'il faisait beau j'irais à la plage. If it was fine I'd go to the beach.

9.13 The compound conditional

9.13.1 Formation

The auxiliary avoir or être in the conditional + the past participle.

1st group: gagner

number and person		auxiliary	past participle	conjugated verb
singular	J'	aurais	gagné	j'aurais gagné
	Tu	aurais	gagné	tu aurais gagné
	Il / elle	aurait	gagné	il / elle aurait gagné
plural	Nous	aurions	gagné	nous aurions gagné
	Vous	auriez	gagné	vous auriez gagné
	Ils / elles	auraient	gagné	ils / elles auraient gagné

2nd group: finir

number and person		auxiliary	past participle	conjugated verb
singular	J'	aurais	fini	j'aurais fini
	Tu	aurais	fini	tu aurais fini
	Il / elle	aurait	fini	il / elle aurait fini
plural	Nous	aurions	fini	nous aurions fini
	Vous	auriez	fini	vous auriez fini
	Ils / elles	auraient	fini	ils / elles auraient fini

3rd group: descendre

number and person		auxiliary	past participle	conjugated verb
singular	Je	serais	descendu(e)	je serais descendu(e)
	Tu	serais	descendu(e)	tu serais descendu(e)
	Il / elle	serait	descendu(e)	il / elle serait descendu(e)
plural	Nous	serions	descendu(e)(s)	nous serions descendu(e)(s)
	Vous	seriez	descendu(e)(s)	vous seriez descendu(e)(s)
	Ils / elles	seraient	descendu(e)s	ils / elles seraient descendu(e)s

Auxiliary verb avoir

number and person		auxiliary	past participle	conjugated verb
singular	J'	aurais	eu	j'aurais eu
	Tu	aurais	eu	tu aurais eu
	Il / elle	aurait	eu	il / elle aurait eu plural	Nous	aurions	eu	nous aurions eu
	Vous	auriez	eu	vous auriez eu
	Ils / elles	auraient	eu	ils / elles auraient eu

Auxiliary verb être

number and person		auxiliary	past participle	conjugated verb
singular	J'	aurais	été	j'aurais été
	Tu	aurais	été	tu aurais été
	Il / elle	aurait	été	il / elle aurait été plural	Nous	aurions	été	nous aurions été
	Vous	auriez	été	vous auriez été
	Ils / elles	auraient	été	ils / elles auraient été

KEY POINT

The compound conditional expresses a hypothetical situation, referring to an event which would have taken place:

J'aurais pu marcher avec eux mais je m'étais blessé le genou la veille.

I would have been able to walk with them but I had injured my knee the day before.

9.13.2 Use of the compound conditional

The compound conditional:

- describes past events which could not be fulfilled, unlike the conditional:
 - regret or remorse: J'aurais aimé être plus grand. I would have loved to be taller.
 - a reproach: Tu aurais dû y penser plus tôt! You should have thought about it sooner!
 - a condition: Si j'avais sauvegardé régulièrement mes documents je n'aurais pas perdu deux mois de recherche. If I had saved my documents regularly I wouldn't have lost two months of research.
 - a hypothesis: Si j'avais étudié correctement les mathématiques j'aurais pu travailler à la City. If I had studied maths properly I'd have been able to work in the City.
- expresses possibility or uncertainty:
 - in an unsubstantiated statement (often in the media) about a past fact: Les bombes auraient causé la mort de plus de 100 personnes. The bombs would have caused the deaths of 100 people.
- is used in indirect speech, when the main verb is in the past. In this case, in direct speech the compound future would be used.

Direct speech	Indirect speech
Il pensa: « j'aurai fini mon rapport avant la nuit. » He thought: 'I'll have finished my report before nightfall.'	Il pensait qu'il aurait fini son rapport avant la nuit. He thought that he would have finished his report before nightfall.

Notes

- The compound conditional in conditional clauses

In these clauses, the compound conditional combines with the pluperfect and describes a condition that has not been fulfilled:

Si j'avais su j'aurais suivi un cours d'informatique. If I'd known I would have followed a course on computing.

Si tu étais venu à l'heure tu aurais eu une place assise. If you'd come on time you would have had a seat.

- A second form of the compound conditional also exists but is rarely used (mostly in written French). It is used in practically the same way as the compound conditional described above. It is formed from the auxiliary avoir or être in the imperfect subjunctive plus the past participle: j'eusse gagné, fini, descendu, etc.

9.14 Summary of the sequence of tenses in conditional clauses

	subordinate clause	main clause	meaning	example
1	Si + present	simple future	certainty	S'il fait beau, j'irai me promener. If the weather's good I'll go for a walk.
2	Si + imperfect	conditional	present action impossible future action possible	S'il faisait beau, j'irais me promener. If the weather were good I'd go for a walk.
3	Si + pluperfect	compound conditional	past action impossible	S'il avait fait beau hier, je serais allé me promener. If the weather had been good yesterday, I'd have gone for a walk.

Indicative tenses in context

“Ils sont apparus, comme dans un rêve, au sommet de la dune, à demi cachés par la brume de sable que leurs pieds soulevaient. Lentement, ils sont descendus dans la vallée, en suivant la piste presque invisible.”

Cet extrait est tiré de Désert, de J.M.G Le Clézio, un livre qui combine deux histoires tragiques de l'Afrique du Nord. Le livre a obtenu le prix Renaudot en 1980. Mais dès son premier roman Le Clézio frappait fort puisqu'il obtenait déjà le prix Renaudot pour Le Procès verbal. Il était passé très près du prix Goncourt. Il n'avait alors que 23 ans. En effet, Le Clézio naquit en avril 1940, à Nice, d'un père britannique et d'une mère bretonne. En 2008 il obtiendra le prix Nobel de littérature.

Mais qu'aurait été la littérature française si ce livre remarquable que fut Désert n'avait vu le jour? Que serait le monde littéraire francophone aujourd'hui si Le Clézio n'avait fait tache d'huile sur nombre de jeunes auteurs? Car il s'agit bien là d'un livre universel qui a voulu faire la part belle aux cultures du monde. Un livre singulier qui marie classicisme et modernisme. Le Clézio s'était déjà écarté du formalisme du roman avec Le Procès verbal, mais avec Désert nous entrons dans la littérature des contrastes et de la tension créatrice. Désert est à la fois roman merveilleux et roman noir, à la fois poème et tragédie.

10. Vous (descendre) tous les cartons?

VERBS 3: THE IMPERATIVE, THE INFINITIVE, PARTICIPLES

10

10.1 The imperative

The imperative mood of the verb is used to express commands, warnings, advice, requests, etc. 'Come on!', 'Don't be foolish!', 'Light the touch paper and stand back', 'Let's see' are all examples of imperatives.

KEY POINTS

- In French the imperative is used in a similar way as in English, but the verb forms which express the imperative are more complex.
- Object pronouns are placed after the verb in affirmative imperatives, but before the verb in negative imperatives:

Donne-lui les bonbons!

Give him the sweets!

Ne lui donne pas les bonbons!

Don't give him the sweets!

10.1.1 Formation

- There are two forms of the imperative, present and past.
- The imperative is conjugated in three persons:

the second person singular: Regarde! Look! (informal)

the first person plural: Regardons! Let's look!

the second person plural: Regardez! Look! (formal singular or plural)

- There is no subject pronoun before the verb.

● The present imperative

The present imperative is formed from the radical of the present indicative, adding the following endings:

the second person singular: -e or -s

the first person plural: -ons

the second person plural: -ez

2nd pl.	Parlez!	Finissez!	Descendez!	Ayez!	Soyez!

Notes

- The -er group of verbs, aller, avoir and all verbs ending in a silent syllable (/ə/) in the second person singular of the present indicative (verbs like cueillir [to pick], offrir [to offer] and savoir [to know]) do not add s in the imperative singular: Cherche! (Look!), Aie! (Have!), Va! (Go!), Sache! (Know!), Offre! (Offer!), Cueille! (Pick!).
- When, however, these verbs are followed by the pronouns y or en they add s, and are linked to the pronoun by a hyphen.

Parles-en à ton père!

Talk to your father about it!

Vas-y!

Go on!

Cueilles-en plusieurs!

Pick several (of them)!

Accompagnes-y tes enfants!

Go there with your children!

- Verbs like s'en aller (to go away) become Va-t'en! (Go away!), Ne t'en va pas! (Don't go away!) in the informal imperative (see irregular verbs below).

● Position and order of pronouns with the imperative

In the affirmative:

- pronouns follow the verb and are linked to it by a hyphen;
- the direct object pronouns me, m', te, t', become the stressed pronouns moi, toi, except when moi and toi are followed by en or y; when this happens they revert to m' and t': m'en, t'en; m'y, t'y.

J'ai trouvé des macarons.

Ah! Donne-m'en quelques-uns.

Mets-t'y, mais fais attention.

I've found some macarons.

Ah! Give me some.

Go [lit. place yourself] there, but pay attention.

In the negative, object pronouns are placed before the verb, between ne and the verb, without a hyphen.

In pronominal verbs, te, t', nous, vous follow the same rules.

	Affirmative imperative	Negative imperative
Puis-je finir les frites? May I finish the chips?	Finissez-les! Finish them!	Ne les finissez pas! Don't finish them!
Devrai-je être à la gare aussi? Will I have to be at the station too?	Allez-y! Go there!	N'y allez pas! Don't go there!
Dois-je faire de la publicité sur cette affaire? Must I tell everybody about that business?	Parlez-en partout! Spread it everywhere!	N'en parlez à personne. Don't speak about it to anyone.
Dois-je t'attendre? Must I wait for you?	Attends-moi! Wait for me!	Ne m'attends pas! Don't wait for me!
Dois-je me lever? Do I have to get up?	Lève-toi! Get up!	Ne te lève pas. Don't get up.

- When the affirmative imperative is followed by two pronouns, the direct object is placed before the other pronoun. The pronouns are linked to the verb by hyphens.

In the negative, object pronouns are placed before the verb, in the same order but without a hyphen.

If the object is en, it will always be in second position.

	Affirmative imperative	Negative imperative
Dois-je lire l'histoire aux enfants? Must I read the story to the children?	Lisez-la-leur! Read it to them!	Ne la leur lisez pas! Don't read it to them!
Dois-je lire des histoires à cet enfant. Must I read stories to that child?	Lisez-lui-en! Read some to him!	Ne lui en lisez pas! Don't read any to him!
Dois-je m'en aller? Must I go away?	Allez-vous-en! Go away!	Ne vous en allez pas! Don't go away!

● The past imperative

Formation

Avoir or être in the present imperative plus the past participle of the verb:

Person	–er verbs parler	–ir verbs finir	–re verbs descendre	avoir	être
2nd. sing	aie parlé!	aie fini	sois descendu(e)!	aie eu	aie été
1st pl.	ayons parlé!	ayons fini	soyons descendu(e)(s)!	ayons eu	ayons été
2nd pl.	ayez parlé!	ayez fini	soyez descendu(e)(s)!	ayez eu	ayez été

Note

Pronominal verbs have no past imperative.

The past imperative is little used. It functions in the same way as the present imperative, but it expresses the prior nature of the action in relation to a date, fact or another future action:

Aie fini ton devoir avant d'aller au lit!

Have your homework finished before going to bed!

Soyez revenus avant 8 heures!

Be back before 8 o'clock!

● Some imperatives of irregular verbs:

	2nd person singular	1st person plural	2nd person plural
aller (to go)	va!	allons!	allez!
faire (to do, make)	fais!	faisons!	faites!

	2nd person singular	1st person plural	2nd person plural
savoir (to know)	sache!	sachons!	sachez!
venir (to come)	viens!	venons!	venez!
vouloir (to wish)	veuille!	n/a	veuillez!
Verbs of the s'en aller type
s'en aller (to go away)	va-t'en!	allons-nous-en!	allez-vous-en!
s'en faire (to worry)	fais-t'en!	faisons-nous-en!	faites-vous-en!
s'en remettre (à quelqu'un/quelque chose) (to leave it to someone/thing)	remets-t'en!	remettons-nous-en!	remettez-vous-en!
s'en sortir (to cope)	sors-t'en!	sortons-nous-en!	sortez-vous-en!

(See also Verb Tables on pp. 393–417.)

10.1.2 Uses

The imperative is used to express:

- an order

Sortez immédiatement de là!

Come out of there at once!

Veillez montrer vos passeports, s'il vous plaît!

Show your passports, please!

- a prohibition

Ne piétinez pas les plates-bandes!

Don't walk on the flower-beds!

- a piece of advice

N'oublie pas ton écharpe, il risque de faire froid.

Don't forget your scarf; it might get cold.

- a prayer

Laissez-moi, je vous prie, un peu plus de temps!

Let me have a little more time, I beg you!

- instructions

Sortez la carte SIM de votre ancien portable et insérez-la dans le nouvel appareil. Appuyez ensuite sur la touche dièse en bas, à droite.

Take out the SIM card from your old mobile and insert it into the new one. Then press the hash key, bottom right.

- a suggestion disguised as an order

Change de compagnie de téléphone, mon cher, cela te coûtera moins cher.

Change your phone company, dear; it will be cheaper for you.

- a polite formula

Veuillez agréer, Monsieur/Madame, l'expression Yours sincerely de mes sentiments les meilleurs ...

- a condition in statements like:

Travaillez et tu seras récompensé.
Aide-toi et le ciel t'aidera.

lit. Work and you will be rewarded.
God helps those who help themselves.

Note

A few verbs, such as devoir and pouvoir, do not have an imperative.

10.2 The infinitive

The infinitive is the form of the verb which is not inflected, and the one always given in the dictionary. In English the infinitive consists of two words, the first of which is always 'to' and the second of which is the verb, e.g. 'to smile', 'to remain'.

KEY POINTS

In French the infinitive form of the verb:

- consists of one word
- ends in either -er, -(o)ir or -re:
chanter (to sing), finir (to finish), vivre (to live)
- is invariable
- is impersonal
- can also function as a noun

10.2.1 The infinitive and the past infinitive

- The infinitive can express both present and past time:

Cela fait 2 heures qu'il cherche à te joindre. He's been trying to get hold of you for two hours.

- The past infinitive expresses a completed action:

Après avoir marché toute la nuit, il aspirait à un repos bien mérité. Having walked the whole night, he was looking forward to a well-earned rest.

- Unlike verb tenses, the infinitive:
 - has no inflexions;
 - does not have a subject except in particular circumstances.

10.2.2 Forms

● The infinitive

There are three groups. Note that group 3 verbs have three possible endings.

group	ending	examples
1 About 90% of all verbs	-er except aller (to go)	arriver (to arrive)
2	-ir (with -issant as the ending of the present participle) + maudire (to curse)	rajeunir (to make young) vieillir (to grow old) définir (to define)
3	-re, -oir, -ir (with -ant as the ending of the present participle)	devenir (to become) prévoir (to foresee) asseoir (to sit) conduire (to drive) faire (to do, make) éteindre (to switch off) inclure (to include) dissoudre (to dissolve)

● The past infinitive

Formation

The infinitive of avoir or être plus the past participle. The past participle follows the rules for the agreement of the past participle (see 10.6.4):

Pour l'avoir lavée très souvent sa voiture est comme neuve.

His car is like new because he's washed it so often.

group	auxiliary	past participle	conjugated verb
-er	avoir	gagné	avoir gagné
-ir (-iss-)	avoir	fini	avoir fini
-re	être	descendu	être descendu
avoir	avoir	eu	avoir eu
être	avoir	été	avoir été

The past infinitive, which expresses a completed action, can indicate a prior temporal relationship with any past period. It is often associated with the preposition après:

Après avoir cherché partout, il a enfin trouvé ses clés.

After having looked everywhere, he finally found his keys.

The compound past infinitive

If the idea of completion is to be insisted on, the verb can be put in the compound past infinitive. The auxiliary of the past infinitive is then itself put into the past, giving a double auxiliary:

Après avoir eu marché longtemps il atteignait enfin la ville.

After having walked for a long time he finally reached the village. [lit. After having had walked ...]

10.2.3 Uses of the infinitive

- In instructions, explanatory notices and recipes it can replace the imperative:

Voir page 26. Agiter le flacon avant de s'en servir. See page 26. Shake the bottle before use.

Couper les avocats en dés, ajouter quelques gouttes de citron et servir avec quelques feuilles de salade. Dice the avocados, add a few drops of lemon juice and serve with a few salad leaves.

- For 'polite commands' it replaces the imperative:

Ne pas fumer, s'il vous plaît.

Please do not smoke.

Ne pas se garer devant le portail!

Do not park in front of the gate.

- After modal verbs such as vouloir (to wish), pouvoir (to be able), devoir (to have to), savoir (to know):

J'ai su jouer au poker très jeune.

I knew how to play poker when I was very young.

Je voudrais pouvoir être un génie des mathématiques plus tard.

I would like to be able to be a mathematical genius when I grow up.

- After verbs such as aimer (to like), adorer (to love):

Elles adorent faire du sport.

They love playing sport.

- After prepositions, except en:

À vendre.

For sale.

Ils s'efforcent de faire le bien.

They try hard to do good.

- The infinitive of narration, or historical infinitive, is used to make a narrative more vivid and more rapid. It is always used in the present and almost always linked to a past event. The structure employed is: et + subject + the infinitive:

Le politicien prit le micro. Et les partisans d'applaudir et l'opposition de narguer.

The politician took the microphone. The supporters applauded and the opposition taunted him.

- The exclamative infinitive expresses a keenly felt sentiment, a surprise, a reaction:

Moi, traverser ce courant à la nage!

Me, swim across against that current!
(subjunctive equivalent: que je traverse ce courant!)

Me dire ça après ce que j'ai fait pour toi!

To say that to me after all I've done for you!
(present indicative meaning: You tell me that ...)

- In questions which do not have a subject the infinitive expresses uncertainty or a 'false' question:

Que penser de tout cela?

What should we think about all that?

Que lui conseiller?

What shall I advise him/her?

À quoi bon insister?

What's the point of insisting?

- In complex sentences, the infinitive is generally compulsory when the subject of the main clause and that of the infinitive are the same:

Elle cherche à se rapprocher du centre ville.

She is trying to move nearer to the town centre.

Dites-lui de fermer les portes et les fenêtres.

Tell him/her to shut the doors and windows.

- With verbs that have two objects such as dire (to say), demandar (to ask), offrir (to offer), souhaiter (to wish), followed by quelque chose à quelqu'un (something to somebody). The object of these verbs can be the subject of the infinitive verb in the subordinate clause. (This also occurs in English: in I told him to come early, 'him' is the subject of the infinitive 'to come' and the object of 'told'.)

J'ai dit aux membres du comité d'arriver plus tôt. I told the members of the committee to arrive earlier.

- In indirect questions:

Je lui ai dit où trouver la nappe.

I told him where to find the tablecloth.

- In subordinate clauses with main clauses containing:

- verbs of perception: voir (to see), regarder (to look at), entendre (to hear), écouter (to listen to), sentir (to feel), etc., the order of the infinitive and its subject is interchangeable:

Ils regardent impuissants monter les eaux / les eaux monter.

Powerless, they watched the waters rising.

J'entends un chat miauler / miauler un chat.

I hear a cat meowing.

- causative verbs of movement such as emmener (to take), envoyer (to send), conduire (to drive):

Elle envoya son fils faire les courses.

She sent her son to do the shopping.

- after faire and laisser:

Elle a fait construire une belle maison.

She's had a beautiful house built.

- In relative clauses introduced by où:

Il a oublié l'endroit où prendre le bus.

He's forgotten where to catch the bus.

10.2.4 The infinitive as a noun

Some infinitives exist independently as masculine nouns and are accompanied by a determiner.

infinitive as a verb	infinitive as a noun	example
devenir = to become	le devenir = future	Le devenir de l'Union européenne dépendra de sa capacité à résoudre la crise. The future of the European Union will depend on its capacity to resolve the crisis.
devoir = to have to	le devoir = duty / homework	Il n'a fait que son devoir. He only did his duty. Le professeur de français nous donne beaucoup de devoirs. The French teacher gives us a lot of homework.
manger et boire = to eat and drink	le boire et le manger = food and drink	Ce qui préoccupe l'être vivant c'est bien le boire et le manger. Food and drink is indeed what concerns living beings.
pouvoir = to be able to	le pouvoir = power	Pleins pouvoirs et démocratie sont incompatibles. Total power and democracy are incompatible.
rire = to laugh	le rire = laughter	Le rire est le propre de l'homme. Laughter is peculiar to mankind.
savoir = to know	le savoir = knowledge	Les hommes se transmettent leur savoir de génération en génération. Mankind transmits its knowledge from generation to generation.

10.2.5 Functions of the infinitive as a noun

Infinitives can have all the functions of a noun. Note that the English equivalent is frequently the present participle (see 10.4.1):

- Subject:

Escalader des parois abruptes est une activité grisante.

Scaling steep rock faces is an exhilarating activity.

- Direct object:

Elles aiment voyager.

They like travelling.

● Indirect object:

Je rêve de faire le tour du monde. I dream of travelling around the world.

● Second object:

Il les a laissés se débrouiller seuls. He let them get along by themselves.

● Noun complement:

Elle a eu le courage de résister. She had the courage to resist.

● Adjective complement:

Tu n'es pas gentil de la traiter de la sorte. It's not nice of you to treat her in that way.

● Pronoun complement:

Son seul défaut c'est celui de manquer d'humour. Her only fault is that she lacks a sense of humour.

● Adverbial complement

○ of purpose:

Elle a baissé le thermostat pour faire des économies. She's lowered the thermostat to save money.

○ of cause:

Il a perdu 3 points sur son permis de conduire pour avoir refusé une priorité. He's lost 3 points on his driving licence for having ignored a right of way.

○ of manner:

Elle passa devant sans même regarder. She went past without even looking.

○ of time:

Avant d'arriver, il savait déjà ce qui l'attendait. Before arriving he already knew what to expect.

● Apposition to a noun:

Je ne souhaite qu'une chose, trouver un grand appartement. I wish for only one thing, to find a big apartment.

10.2.6 Verbs followed by a preposition plus an infinitive

● Numerous verbs can be followed by a preposition:

penser à l'été to think of summer

There are often no logical rules for these structures and so it is necessary to learn which preposition goes with which verb. For example:

venir de (faire quelque chose)	to have just (done something)
s'occuper de	to take care of
avoir besoin de	to need

- Most French prepositions are followed by a verb in the infinitive:

sans rire!	seriously!
pour se changer	to change (clothes)
afin de comprendre	so as to understand

- Some prepositions cannot be followed by verbs, e.g. avec, sur (see 10.5).
- en may be followed by a verb ending in -ant, e.g. en marchant (while walking):

en venant	while coming
------------------	--------------

- après may be followed by the past infinitive:

après avoir fait les calculs	after making the calculations
après être allé à la mairie	after going to the town hall
après s'être baigné	after bathing

- Some verbs are followed directly by the infinitive:

- Verbs expressing desire, wishes, will, necessity

vouloir marcher	to want to walk
devoir travailler	to have to work
Il faut chercher ...	It is necessary to look for ...

- Verbs of feeling and opinion

aimer danser	to love to dance
préférer nager	to prefer to swim

- Verbs of movement

sortir chercher le pain	to go and fetch the bread
courir prendre le bus	to run to catch the bus

- Verbs of perception

entendre frapper	to hear (something) strike
voir arriver	to see (someone / thing) arrive

In French, as in English, many verbs are followed by a preposition + infinitive. The prepositions used after particular verbs are, however, not the same in one language as in another:

Elle a choisi de passer ses vacances à la montagne.

She chose to spend her holidays in the mountains.

Il a enfin réussi à réparer son vélo.

He finally succeeded in repairing his bike.

● Verbs followed by à and de + infinitive

The most common prepositions after French verbs are à and de. Listed below is a selection of commonly used verbs which require a preposition.

Note

In many cases the English equivalent of the French infinitive in these constructions ends in -ing.

They've finished sowing.

Elle se souvient d'avoir visité Venise quand elle était enfant.	She remembers having visited Venice when she was a child.
Il a essayé de changer le filtre à air.	He tried to change the air filter.
Je vous remercie de vous occuper aussi bien de mes enfants.	Thank you for looking after my children so well.
Mon père ne m'a pas permis de voyager seul.	My father has not allowed me to travel alone.

Note

Some verbs can be followed by à and de without any change of meaning; others change their meaning.

Without a change of meaning:

Il continue à travailler / il continue de travailler.	He continues to work / working.
--	---------------------------------

With a change of meaning:

Je tiens à cette bague, elle me vient de ma grand-mère.	That ring means a lot to me; it was my grandmother's.
Elle tient de sa mère.	She takes after her mother.

Other prepositions

Prepositions other than à or de are used to a lesser extent:

Il a fini par comprendre.	He has finally understood. [lit. finished by understanding]
Il a commencé par faire ce qu'on lui avait dit.	He began by doing what he had been told.
Il passé pour être le meilleur de sa catégorie.	He is considered [lit. passes for] the best in his group.

● Alternation of à and de

Certain verbs have a different structure according to whether they have a direct object or not and according to whether the subject of the infinitive is the same as that of the main clause.

Same subject: Il a demandé à rester un peu plus.	He asked to stay a little longer. (permission)
Different subject: Il lui a demandé de rester un peu plus.	He asked him to stay a little longer. (order)
Il m'a obligé à partir.	He obliged me to leave.
Je suis obligé de partir.	I am obliged to leave.

Il s'est décidé à changer de travail.

He decided (i.e., he took it on himself) to change his job.

Il a décidé de changer de travail.

He decided to change his job.

- With neutral or impersonal verbs, il est or c'est + adjective + infinitive (see 3.1.5), the preposition can be either à or de:

- When the subject is neutral, i.e., it refers to something previously mentioned, and the infinitive has a passive meaning, à is used:

Un problème comme celui-là, c'est toujours difficile à résoudre.

A problem like that is always difficult to resolve.

- When the subject is impersonal, i.e., not related to anything previously mentioned or understood, de is used:

Il est essentiel de connaître sa version des faits.

It is essential to know her version of the facts.

Il est honteux de mentir.

It is shameful to lie.

Similarly, the following neutral or impersonal expressions are followed by either à or de:

Il est difficile / C'est difficile (à / de ...)

It's difficult (to ...)

Il est facile / C'est facile (à / de ...)

It's easy (to ...)

Il est impossible / C'est impossible (à / de ...)

It's impossible (to ...)

Il est possible / C'est possible (à / de ...)

It's possible (to ...)

10.3 Participles

KEY POINTS

The participle is a verb which takes the form of an adjective.

- It functions as a verb, followed by the direct and indirect objects and by adverbial phrases,

and

- as a verbal adjective, having all the characteristics of an adjective, including agreement in number and gender.

There are three forms:

- present participle chantant singing
- past participle chanté sang
- compound past participle ayant chanté having sung

Present participle:

Verb plus direct object: Je l'ai vu cherchant partout ses lunettes. I saw him looking everywhere for his glasses.

Adjective: *des histoires amusantes amusing stories

Past participle:

Adjective: *une langue parlée a spoken language

Verb: Je lui ai parlé déjà. I've already spoken to her.

10.4 The present participle

The form of the verb ending in -ing in English (talking, drinking, etc.) is called the present participle. This form of the verb is frequently used and very versatile: it can act as part of a verb, 'you're dreaming', as an adjective, 'a sinking ship' or as a noun, 'swimming is good exercise'.

In French the part of the verb ending in -ant is the equivalent of the present participle. There are some similarities between English and French in the use of the present participle, but important differences also exist.

10.4.1 Formation

Replace the ending -ons or -ez of the present indicative by the ending -ant of the present participle:

infinitive	1st person plural present indicative	ending of the present participle	present participle
parler (to speak)	nous parlons	-ant	parlant
réagir (to react)	nous réagissons	-ant	réagissant
voir (to see)	nous voyons	-ant	voyant
dire (to say)	nous disons	-ant	disant

The auxiliary verbs être, avoir and savoir have an irregular present participle:

infinitive	1st person plural present indicative	ending of the present participle	present participle
être (to be)	nous sommes	-ant	étant
avoir (to have)	nous avons	-ant	ayant
savoir (to know)	nous savons	-ant	sachant

Notes

- The present participle is invariable:

Je l'ai vue sortant du bateau / Je les ai vues sortant du bateau.

I saw her coming off the boat / I saw them coming off the boat.

But in legal language, which has kept some archaic expressions, the present participle is variable: les ayants droit (legal claimants), toute(s) affaire(s) cessante(s) (forthwith).

- The English -ing form of the verb ('seeing', 'believing', etc.) often corresponds to an infinitive rather than a present participle:

Avant d'envoyer la lettre n'oublie pas de l'affranchir.

Before sending the letter don't forget to stick a stamp on it.

10.4.2 Meaning and uses

- As a verb, the present participle expresses an action which is simultaneous to that of the main verb.
 - When placed at the beginning of a sentence, the present participle is only possible if it is related to the subject of the main verb:

Prenant son courage à deux mains, il alla parler au directeur.

Taking his courage in both hands, he went to speak to the director. (the same person plucks up courage)

But you cannot say Prenant son courage à deux mains, je le vis aller parler au directeur*. *Taking his courage in both hands, I saw him go to speak to the director.

- The present participle always has an active meaning as a verb; it expresses the present, past or future, depending on the tense of the main verb:

Present: Il arrive tenant son journal à la main. He arrives holding his newspaper in his hand.

Past: Je le vis tenant son journal (qui tenait son journal). I saw him holding his newspaper (i.e., I saw him who was holding ...)

Future: Je le verrai encore demain tenant son journal à la main. I'll see him tomorrow holding his newspaper in his hand.

- It expresses a continuing action but one which is limited in its duration:

Il lit tranquillement, fumant une cigarette.

He's reading calmly (a continuing action), smoking a cigarette (an action of more limited duration).

- The present participle can replace a subordinate relative clause introduced by qui:

Seuls les étudiants qui ont la moyenne réussiront.

Only the students who have (achieved) the average mark will succeed.

Seuls les étudiants ayant la moyenne réussiront.

Only the students having the average mark will succeed.

- The present participle can replace a causal subordinate clause introduced by puisque (since), étant donné que (in view of the fact that), parce que (because), comme (as):

Étant donné que sa télévision est en panne il n'a pas pu voir le match. In view of the fact that his television isn't working, he couldn't watch the match.	Sa télévision étant en panne, il n'a pas pu voir le match. As his television was not working, he couldn't watch the match.
Il n'est pas allé à l'école parce qu'il était malade. He didn't go to school because he was ill.	Étant malade, il n'est pas allé à l'école. Being ill, he didn't go to school.

- It can be used with the semi-auxiliary verb aller to express the idea of progression or continuity:

Les statistiques montrent que le chômage va croissant.

The statistics show that unemployment goes on growing.

● As a verbal adjective

- It keeps the -ant ending of the present participle but with the occasional small change in spelling. The verbal adjective can therefore be spelled differently from the present participle used as a verb:

*Leurs ambitions différant (invariable present participle) *des nôtres, nous avons rédigé deux projets différents (adjective in agreement with plural noun).

Their ambitions differing from ours, we have drafted two different projects.

- It functions fully as an adjective and agrees in gender and number:

Ces tempêtes fréquentes sont décourageantes.
Il a d'importantes informations à nous communiquer.

These frequent storms are depressing.
He has some important information to tell us.

10.4.3 The present participle and the verbal adjective contrasted present participle	verbal adjective

As a verb <ul style="list-style-type: none">● It expresses an action and behaves like a verb.● Its form is invariable. Je les ai vu encourageant leurs équipes. I've seen them encouraging their teams.	As an adjective, formed from the present participle of a verb <ul style="list-style-type: none">● It agrees in gender and number with the noun it qualifies. J'aime ces attitudes encourageantes. I like these encouraging [i.e., positive] attitudes.

present participle	verbal adjective
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> It can be followed by an object complement. Je les ai vues encourageant leurs équipes favorites. I've seen them encouraging their favourite teams. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> It can function either as an attributive or predicative adjective (see 4, Key points): C'étaient des gens exigeants. They were demanding people. Ils étaient exigeants. They were demanding.
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> It can be modified by an adverb of manner, time, etc. (except ne) placed after it. Je les ai vues chantant joyeusement. I've seen them singing cheerfully. It can be replaced by a relative subordinate clause. Je les ai vues chantant (qui chantaient). I've seen them singing. It can be preceded by a reflexive pronoun. Il marchait, se dépêchant du mieux qu'il pouvait. They walked, hurrying as best they could. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> It can be modified by a preceding adverb (of degree or other) placed before it. Elles sont souvent perturbantes. They are often troubling. It can be replaced by another adjective. Elles sont excellentes (très bonnes). They are excellent (very good).

● Present participles and verbal adjectives with variations in spelling (see 4.13)

- Verbs ending in -ger form their present participle in -geant and their verbal adjective in -geant or -gent.
- Verbs ending in -guer form their present participle in -quant and their verbal adjective in -gant:

Le cyclisme est un sport fatigant surtout les muscles des mollets.

Cycling is a sport which tires the calf muscles especially.

Le cyclisme est un sport fatigant.

Cycling is a tiring sport.

- Verbs ending in -quer and convaincre form their present participle in -quant but some verbal adjectives end in -cant:

Les groupes communiquant les informations auront du retard.

The groups communicating the news will be delayed.

*les vases communicants

connected vessels

- Verbal adjectives ending in -ent

A number of verbal adjectives end in -ent instead of -ant. The present participle of these verbs, however, always ends in -ant:

Les pneus d'aujourd'hui sont incontestablement plus adhérents que jadis. Tyres today have undoubtably got a better grip than in the past.
Pour votre sécurité il vaut mieux choisir des pneus adhérant solidement à la route. For your safety it's best to choose tyres which grip the road well.

Examples of spelling differences

present participle	verbal adjective	present participle	verbal adjective
adhérant (becoming a member, gripping)	adhérent (binding)	expédiant (sending, dispatching)	expédient (expedient)

excellant (excelling in)	excellent (excellent, great)

10.4.4 The compound present participle

● Formation

être or avoir with the present participle plus the past participle of the verb:

Le prix du gaz ayant augmenté, ils réduisirent leur consommation. The price of gas having increased they reduced their consumption.

- It has roughly the same uses as the present participle.
- It expresses an action completed prior to another action:

Ayant écouté les informations, il alla se coucher.* Having listened to the news he went to bed.

10.4.5 Nouns and prepositions derived from the present participle as a noun	les tenants et les aboutissants (the ins and outs) un(e) assistant(e) (assistant) un(e) débutant(e) (beginner) un(e) participant(e) (participant) un(e) passant(e) (passer-by)

as a preposition	pendant le jour (during the day) suivant le cas (as is the case)

10.5 The gerund

10.5.1 Formation

en + the present participle of the verb. The gerund corresponds to ‘while (doing) ...’, ‘by (doing)’ in English. The subject of both verbs is the same (see 12.5.29):

Il s’est cogné la tête en se baissant. He hit his head while ducking.

10.5.2 Uses

The gerund expresses:

- Simultaneous or connected actions (‘at the moment when’):

Il a appris la nouvelle en écoutant la radio. He learned the news while listening to the radio.

Je me suis blessé(e) en descendant du train. I injured myself while getting off the train.

- Manner or means:

C’est en forgeant qu’on devient forgeron. Practice makes perfect.
En respectant les autres tu seras respecté.* By respecting others you will be respected.

- Time:

En lançant ses chaussures il vit le billet sous la table.* While lacing his shoes he saw the ticket under the table.

- Cause:

C’est ce qui arrive en voulant n’en faire qu’à sa tête! That’s what happens when you want your own way!

- Condition:

En arrivant en avance tu auras la meilleure place.* By arriving in advance you will get the best seat.

10.5.3 Tout + gerund

Tout + en + present participle is used to insist on:

- Two simultaneous actions:

Elle téléphonait à une amie tout en cherchant à se garer. She was telephoning a friend while looking for a parking place.

- Two opposing ideas:

Il essaie l'examen tout en sachant qu'il ne réussira pas. He is attempting the exam while knowing that he will not succeed.

10.5.4 The gerund in the negative

The gerund can be used negatively as follows:

- In the usual way, ne ... pas around the present participle:

En n'arrivant pas en avance, il court le risque d'avoir la plus mauvaise place. In failing to arrive in advance, he runs the risk of getting the worst seat.

- Sans + infinitive:

Il a traversé sans regarder. He crossed without looking.

10.5.5 Equivalents in French of the English form of the verb ending in -ing

The form of the verb ending in -ing in English is frequently translated by the infinitive or a noun, and not the present participle:

Il passe son temps à jouer aux jeux vidéo. He spends his time playing computer games.
Je n'ai aucune intention d'aller voir ce film. I've no intention of going to see that film.
L'aviron est le sport que j'aime mieux. Rowing is the sport I like best.

10.6 The past participle

The past participle

The past participle is a special form of the verb which can act as an adjective, part of a compound verb and a noun. The past participle in English is usually formed by adding -(e)d to the verb: look > looked, etc. but there are many irregular past participles: find > found, go > gone, make > made, etc.

The past participle is an adjective, as in the phrase 'a lost cause', where 'lost' is the past participle, describing the noun.

The same word acts as a verb in the sentence ‘We’ve lost the match’. Here the auxiliary verb ‘have’ combines with ‘lost’ to form the perfect tense.

A few nouns, such as ‘a drunk’ and ‘the damned’ are derived from past participles.

10.6.1 Formation

The past participle of regular verbs is formed by replacing the endings -er, -ir and -re of the infinitive by é, i and u respectively:

infinitive	radical	ending	past participle ending	past participle
travailler (to work)	travaill-	-er	-é	travaillé
bâtir (to build)	bât-	-ir	-i	bâti
rendre (to give back)	rend-	-re	-u	rendu

Most irregular verbs have an irregular past participle. There are no clear rules for their formation but irregular verbs can be grouped according to their endings.

10.6.2 Irregular past participles

● Past participle ending in -é

Verbs ending in -er do not have irregular past participles. The irregular verbs être and naître are the only verbs which do not belong to this group to have a past participle ending in é.

infinitive		past participle
être	to be	été	been
naître	to be born	né	born

● Past participle ending in -u

These verbs form the majority of verbs in the -re group, and many verbs ending in -(o)ir:

irregular verb	past participle
avoir	eu	had
boire	bu	drunk
connaître	connu	known
courir	couru	run
croire	cru	believed

irregular verb	past participle
paraître, apparaître	paru, apparu	seemed, appeared
tenir	tenu	held
apercevoir	aperçu	perceived
vouloir	voulu	wanted
savoir	su	known
pouvoir	pu	been able

● Past participle ending in -is

irregular verb	past participle
mettre, permettre, commettre	mis, permis, commis	put, allowed, committed
prendre, comprendre, surprendre	pris, compris, surpris	took, understood, surprised

● Past participle ending in -it

irregular verb	past participle
dire	dit	said, told
conduire	conduit	driven
écrire	écrit	written
instruire	instruit	taught

● Past participle ending in -ert

irregular verb	past participle
ouvrir	ouvert	open, opened
offrir	offert	offered
souffrir	souffert	suffered

● Other irregular verbs

irregular verb	past participle
suivre	suivi	followed
faire	fait	done, made
atteindre	atteint	reached
joindre	joint	joined

10.6.3 Nouns derived from past participles

As with the present participle, nouns are frequently derived from past participles:

produire (to produce)	un produit (product)
permettre (to permit)	un permis (permit)
faire (to do, make)	un fait (deed)
vivre (to live)	un vécu (personal experiences)
se tenir (to stand)	une tenue (clothes)
suivre (to follow)	un suivi (follow-up, monitoring)
devoir (to have to)	un dû (due)
découvrir (to discover)	un découvert (overdraft)
acquérir (to acquire)	un acquis (gain)

● Uses

- to form compound tenses with the auxiliaries avoir and être:

J'ai parlé devant un large public. I spoke to a large audience.

- to form the passive voice with the auxiliary être:

Ce livre est très apprécié par ses lecteurs. This book is much loved by its readers.

Note

- In the passive the past participle agrees in gender and number with the subject of the verb:

Ces livres sont très appréciés par leurs lecteurs. These books are much loved by their readers.

- The past participle can act as an adjective:

J'ai vu un homme assis qui observait des passants pressés. I saw a man sitting down, observing people who were hurrying past.

10.6.4 Agreement of the past participle

In compound tenses such as the compound past, the pluperfect, etc. agreement with the past participle follows certain rules.

- Used without an auxiliary verb, the past participle acts as an adjective and agrees in gender and number with the noun or pronoun it qualifies:

l'année passée	last year
le participe passé	the past participle
Dans notre société nous avons 3 voitures louées et une achetée.	In our company we have 3 hired cars and one bought car.

- When conjugated with être, the past participle agrees in number and gender with the subject of the sentence:

Le sort en est jeté.

The die is cast.

« Quand la bise fut venue, la cigale se trouva fort dépourvue » (La Fontaine).

When the North wind came, the cicada was without food [lit. deprived].

- When conjugated with avoir, the past participle does not agree with the subject but with the direct object if, and only if, the direct object is placed before the past participle:

Direct object after, no agreement: Nous avons écrit cette lettre ensemble. We wrote this letter together.

Direct object before, agreement: Cette lettre, nous l'avons écrite ensemble. This letter, we wrote it together.

Indirect object, no agreement: Nous leur avons parlé nous-mêmes. We have spoken to them ourselves.

- If the past participle is connected with several subjects or objects that are placed before it, agreement is made according to whether they are linked or not by:

- et or a comma: the elements are combined and the participle is in the plural:

Son père et sa mère furent récompensés par l'État.

Her father and mother were rewarded by the State.

- ou or ni: the elements can be combined or not. When they are, the past participle is in the plural. When they are not, the past participle agrees with the last element:

Ni le père ni la mère ne seront récompensés.

Neither the father nor the mother will be rewarded.

Le père ou la mère sera récompensée.

The father or the mother will be rewarded.

- With conjunctions of comparison like comme (as), autant que (as much as), ainsi que (as well as), etc. the past participle is in the plural if the elements are combined:

La voiture comme le train sont appréciés par les voyageurs.

The car as well as the train are liked by travellers.

C'est Marie autant que Pierre que j'ai appréciés.

It's Marie as well as Pierre that I liked.

- The past participle agrees with the first element if the elements are not closely linked:

La voiture, comme le train, est appréciée par les voyageurs.

The car, as well as the train, is liked by travellers.

C'est Marie plutôt que Pierre que j'ai appréciée.

It's Marie rather than Pierre that I liked.

Special cases

In certain cases the above general rules do not apply.

● Invariable expressions

- Ci-joint, ci-inclus (enclosed, attached) behave like adverbs when they are placed before the noun or pronoun, and so are invariable. They vary in gender and number when placed after the noun or pronoun:

Ci-joint les documents que vous avez sollicités. / The documents that you requested are enclosed. / The enclosed documents are the ones that you requested.
Les documents ci-joints sont ceux que vous avez sollicités.

Ci-inclus les lettres demandées / les lettres ci-incluses. Enclosed the letters requested / the enclosed letters.

Étant donné (given [that]), mis à part (excepting) and passé (after) may be either variable or invariable when they are placed before a noun:

Passé cette date ... / Passée cette date ... Once the date has passed ...

Étant donnés les faits ... / Étant donné les faits ... Given the facts ...

- Attendu (considering), compris (including), non-compris (excluding), y compris (including), entendu (agreed / heard), excepté (except), supposé (alleged), vu (given / considering) are considered as prepositions, and are therefore invariable, when placed before the noun or pronoun. When placed after the noun or pronoun they are variable:

Vu ses résultats, elle ne sera pas promue. Given her results, she won't be promoted.

Tout le monde l'a critiquée, excepté ses amies. / Everyone criticized her except her friends.
Tout le monde l'a critiquée, ses amies exceptées.

Entendu les témoins, il devrait être acquitté. / The witnesses having been heard, he should be acquitted.
Les témoins entendus, il devrait être acquitté.

- The participles cru (believed), dit (said), dû (owed), pensé (thought), permis (permitted), prévu (planned), pu (been able), su (known), voulu (wanted), etc., are invariable when used in a relative subordinate clause, with an infinitive or other clause understood as a direct object. The relative pronoun que is then the object of the verb that is understood and not the verb containing the past participle:

Elle a accompli toutes les tâches qu'elle avait prévu. She's carried out all the tasks that she had planned. ([prévu] de faire is understood).

Il a tenu toutes les promesses qu'il avait dit. He kept all the promises that he had made. ([qu'il avait dit] qu'il tiendrait is understood).

● Agreement of the past participle between que and que or que and qui (see 14.1)

- The past participle is invariable when it is preceded by the conjunction que and followed by the relative pronoun qui:

Les touristes que j'avais prévu qui arriveraient dimanche sont arrivés samedi.

The tourists that I had anticipated would arrive on Sunday arrived on Saturday.

- The past participle is invariable when it is preceded by the relative pronoun que and followed by the conjunction que:

Les fleurs qu'elle aurait voulu qu'on lui offre ...

The flowers that she would have wished to be given to her ...

Note

If the first relative pronoun que is the direct object complement of the participle, agreement is made in the normal way:

Les personnes que tu as prévenues que je viendrais ...

The people you forewarned that I would come ...

- Participles related to measures or estimates such as coûté (cost), valu (valued), mesuré (measured), marché (walked), couru (ran), pesé (weighed), vécu (lived), dormi (slept), régné (reigned), duré (lasted) are invariable when they are used intransitively with an adverbial phrase of measurement:

Les 10 ans qu'aura régné le roi. The ten years that the King will have reigned ... (Les 10 ans is an adverbial phrase of time, i.e., it answers the question: How long has the King reigned?)

Les 50 livres que ça m'a coûté. The £50 that that cost me. (Les 50 livres is an adverbial phrase of degree, i.e., it answers the question: How much did that cost me?)

Les 8 km que j'ai couru. The 8 km that I ran. (8 km is not the direct object but an adverbial phrase of degree, i.e., it answers the question: How many kilometres have I run?, and not What?)

But Les risques que j'ai courus. The risks that I have taken. (There is agreement because risques is the direct object and so courir is employed transitively.)

In the same way in: Les 90 ans qu'elle a vécu. (The 90 years that she has lived), Les 90 ans is an adverbial phrase, and so there is no agreement, but in La vie qu'elle a vécue (The life that she has lived), La vie is the direct object and so there is agreement.

● Laisser and faire followed by an infinitive

The past participles of faire and laisser followed by an infinitive are invariable. They are considered as semi-auxiliary verbs:

*La maison qu'elle a fait construire.
Il les ont laissés fuir.*

The house that she has had built.
He let them run away.

● The past participle followed by an infinitive

- The past participle conjugated with avoir and followed by the infinitive agrees with a direct object that precedes the verb, provided it is related to the participle. If the infinitive itself has a direct object the participle also agrees:

Ces gens, je les ai vus peindre ce mur.

I have seen those people painting that wall.

Je les ai entendus dire des mensonges.

I have heard them tell lies.

- If the direct object relates to the infinitive the past participle is invariable:

Je les ai prié d'arrêter.

I've begged them to stop.

- If the direct object carries out an action expressed by the infinitive, in an active meaning, the past participle agrees. If it 'receives' the action, in a passive meaning, the participle does not agree. In the latter case the sentence could continue by adding an agent, preceded by par:

Les gens que j'ai vus peindre.

The people I saw painting.

Les murs que j'ai vu peindre (par les gens).

The walls I saw being painted (by the people).

● The past participle of impersonal verbs

The past participle of impersonal verbs is invariable:

*La quantité d'eau qu'il a fallu

The amount of water that was necessary

● Agreement with en

When the object is en the past participle is usually invariable, but it can agree with en, according to the speaker's intention:

Des livres, j'en ai lus des dizaines cet été.

Books, I've read dozens of them this summer.

(The focus is on the numbers of books that have been read, therefore plural)

Des livres, j'en ai cherché partout.

Books, I've looked everywhere for them.

(The focus is on the idea of looking for books, therefore singular)

● Agreement with collective nouns

- When the antecedent of a relative pronoun is a collective noun, e.g. groupe (group), foule (crowd), les trois quarts des (three quarters of), la moitié des (half of), le tiers des (a third of), etc., followed by a complement that represents the parts of the collective entity (e.g. young folk, sheep, people, etc.) the past participle agrees either with the collective noun (singular) or with the things represented (plural), according to the intention of the speaker (see 1.1.3):

Un troupeau de moutons que le chien avait poussé vers la bergerie

A flock of sheep that the sheepdog had driven towards the sheepfold (the flock is driven towards the sheepfold)

*Un troupeau de moutons qu'on avait tondus

A flock of sheep that had been shorn (the sheep are shorn)

Similarly,

La moitié des élèves était restée.

Half the pupils had remained.

La moitié des élèves étaient restés.

Half the pupils had remained.

- When the collective noun is dizaine (about ten), douzaine (a dozen), centaine (about a hundred), une infinité de (an infinite number of), un grand nombre de (a great number of), la plupart de (most of), etc., agreement is with the complement:

Une douzaine d'individus que j'avais attendus sur le quai ... A dozen individuals that I had waited for on the platform ...

Une infinité de lettres que j'ai écrites ... An infinite number of letters that I have written ...

- With adverbs of quantity or degree like peu (few), trop (too much / many), combien (how much / many), the past participle agrees in general with the complement (see 6.3.2):

Peu d'élèves sont restés.

Few pupils have remained.

Trop de verres se sont cassés.

Too many glasses were broken.

● Agreement with the past participle of pronominal verbs (see 8.4)

All pronominal verbs are conjugated with the auxiliary verb être but not all participles agree in the same way.

- verbs that are essentially pronominal like s'enfuir (to run away), se repentir (to repent) etc., behave like verbs conjugated with être, and so the participle agrees with the subject of the verb:

Elles se sont enfuies.

They ran away.

- Verbs that are occasionally pronominal behave like verbs conjugated with avoir and the participle follows the rule for agreement for all verbs conjugated with avoir.
 - a If there is no direct object the participle agrees with the reflexive pronoun which refers to the subject:

Elle s'est baignée.

She bathed.

- b If the direct object is placed after the verb, there is no agreement:

Elle s'est lavé les mains.

She washed her hands.

- c If the direct object comes before the verb, the participle agrees:

La patte qu'il s'est cassée ...

The paw that it broke ...

● Agreement of past participles with double compound tenses

- Double compound tenses are conjugated with a double auxiliary. These tenses express actions already completed in relation to other actions, themselves carried out previously, for which compound tenses are used:

Quand j'ai enfin eu fini mon travail, j'ai couru voir mon copain. lit. When I have had finished my work, I ran to see my friend.

- In the double compound tenses agreement is, in general, only with the last past participle:

Ces injures que soi-disant j'aurais eu proférées. lit. These insults that I supposedly would have had uttered.

Agreement is, however, permitted with two participles:

Ces injures que soi-disant j'aurais eues proférées.

● Agreement of the past participle with on

- When on is the equivalent of nous in speech a following past participle with être is in the plural (see 3.1.3):

Bien sûr qu'on est pressés. Of course we're in a hurry!

Imperatives, infinitives and participles in context

En famille

Mère: Qu'avez-vous fait à l'école les enfants?

Pierre: On s'est ennuyés terriblement.

Mère: Allons! Arrête de dire des bêtises!

Pierre: Parce que s'ennuyer et le dire, c'est une bêtise?

Paul: Nous, on a ri au contraire. Avant d'entrer, quelqu'un avait fait une caricature très ressemblante du prof au tableau. Le prof est entré en regardant le tableau, et devinez ce qui s'est passé!

Mathieu: Il n'a pu que se casser la figure.

Paul: Excellente réponse, mon cher! En effet, le prof a trébuché sur un cartable qui trainait; il a voulu se retenir au bureau mais il était trop loin et il n'a pas pu l'atteindre.

Remarque bien! C'est un prof sympa d'habitude, mais pour avoir perturbé la classe, il nous a donné 30 problèmes de maths à résoudre. J'ai dit que je n'avais rien fait, mais je n'ai pas été entendu. Il n'a rien voulu savoir. C'est ce qui arrive quand on veut jouer au plus fin, a-t-il dit. J'ai donc dû faire les exercices en question.

Mère: Bon, les enfants, éteignez vos portables, rangez vos consoles et mettons-nous à table! Votre père va arriver d'un instant à l'autre.

Pierre: En attendant je vais me laver les mains.

Mère: Descends sans courir dans les escaliers! Et n'oublie pas d'éteindre la lumière!

Exercises

I The infinitive

Put the sentences into indirect speech:

Example: Je lui ai dit: « calme-toi! »

Je lui ai dit de se calmer.

1. Je lui ai dit: « dépêche-toi! »
2. On nous a dit: « laissez-tomber les sucreries! »
3. Ils nous ont recommandé: « faites vos courses après 18 heures! »
4. Le médecin nous a recommandé: « mangez des fruits et des légumes! »
5. Le médecin m'a conseillé: « pesez-vous régulièrement! »
6. Le médecin m'a conseillé: « prenez votre pouls tous les matins! »
7. Le médecin m'a dit: « ne maigrissez pas trop vite! »
8. Le médecin m'a répété: « ne vous faites pas de soucis! Reposez-vous! »
9. Mon mari m'a dit: « ne crois pas tout ce que disent les médecins! »
10. J'ai dit à mon mari: « occupe-toi de tes affaires! »

2 The imperative

Put the sentences into direct speech:

Example: Il nous a dit de nous dépêcher.

Il nous a dit: « dépêchez-vous! »

1. Le professeur nous a demandé de ne pas oublier les livres.
2. Il nous a conseillé de ne pas boire trop de café.
3. Le professeur nous a conseillé de bien réviser le cours.
4. Il nous a suggéré de laisser de côté les 3 premiers chapitres.
5. Il nous a précisé de bien penser à apporter une pièce d'identité.
6. Il a répété de ne pas commettre la même faute que l'an dernier.
7. Il a dit d'apporter un dictionnaire.
8. Il a dit d'éviter tout appareil électronique à l'examen.
9. Il a dit ne pas être surpris par le sujet d'examen.
10. Il a dit nous souhaiter bonne chance.

3 Put the verbs in brackets into either the infinitive, the past participle, the present participle, the imperative or the compound past:

1. (Couper) le circuit avant de (toucher) aux fils!
2. Je le (laisser parler) et je lui (répondre).
3. Le (laisser) sans (parler) 5 minutes c'est le (torturer).
4. C'est (irriter) qu'elle (se présenter) devant le directeur.
5. Mais (arrêter) donc de (se plaindre) et (se mettre) au travail!
6. En (vouloir) trop bien (faire) elle (se fracturer) la main.
7. Elle (n'aimer que) une chose, (se faire) (bronzer) sur la plage.
8. Ils (parti) (jouer) sur la plage après (se reposer) l'après-midi.
9. Elles me (laisser) (se débrouiller) tout seul.
10. Vous (ne pas avoir) la patience de (attendre).

4 Agreement of the past participle conjugated with avoir. Put the following sentences into the compound past tense:

1. Quelles séries télévisées regardez-vous ?
2. Quelle sorte de films préfères-tu ?
3. Quels ingrédients trouvez-vous dans ce magasin ?
4. Voici les fruits que je t'apporte.
5. Voici le stylo et la fleur que je t'offre pour ton anniversaire.
6. C'est le livre d'exercices que je te prête.
7. Voilà les revues et les magazines que je lis.
8. C'est la liste des films que j'aime.
9. Ce sont les événements dont je parle dans mon article.
10. C'est la personne à qui elle écrit souvent.

5 Present participle and verbal adjective.

Make the underlined words agree when necessary.

1. Les jeunes courant dans la forêt étaient nombreux.
2. Ce sont de bons pneus adhérent .
3. En tant que membres adhérant au club, ils ont droit aux réductions.
4. C'est une position fatigant pour les jambes.
5. Ils sont arrivés brûlant de fièvre.
6. Ils sont arrivés parcourant les allées par petits groupes.
7. Les jours précédant son mariage furent moins reposant que les jours le suivant .
8. Elles ont eu des débuts encourageant .
9. Ces derniers jours furent plus fatigant que les précédent .
10. Elles sont arrivées en chantant à tue-tête.

VERBS 4: THE SUBJUNCTIVE

The subjunctive is one of the moods of the verb. It is important to distinguish between moods and tenses, which are sometimes confused. In order to understand the subjunctive mood it is useful to compare it with two other moods, the indicative and the imperative. Each of these three moods corresponds to a distinctive attitude in the mind of the speaker (see 9.1).

Broadly speaking, the indicative is used when the speaker wishes to state a fact or a certainty:

I know that he is here.

The imperative is for commands:

Come here!

The subjunctive is for unreality, doubt or hypothesis:

I wish that Simon were here.

If I were you I'd apply for the job.

In the last two examples, which show two of the few surviving subjunctive uses in English, the speaker is clearly addressing an unreality (Simon isn't here; I am not you). In both cases the subjunctive form 'were', rather than 'was', is used. It is essential to understand that, unlike in English, the subjunctive is used extensively in French, and must be employed in certain circumstances.

KEY POINTS

The fundamental idea that underlies the subjunctive in French is that, in the mind of the speaker, the action of the verb is not a reality. It is therefore the mood of subjectivity. Note especially that:

- The subjunctive is used, for the most part, in subordinate clauses. The attitude of the subject of the main clause determines whether the verb in the subordinate clause is subjunctive or not.
- The subjunctive is normally used if the action in the subordinate clause is considered to be doubtful, unlikely, unreal, or if a personal feeling (such as a wish, fear or order) is expressed towards the action.
- For practical purposes it is useful to learn certain expressions and conjunctions after which the subjunctive has to be used.
- The subjunctive is not used in all tenses, and there are some differences between its use in writing and speaking.

- The following examples compare indicative and subjunctive uses:

Indicative	Subjunctive
Je sais qu'il sera là plus tôt la prochaine fois. I know he will be there earlier next time. (indicative because considered to be a fact by the speaker)	Je veux qu'il soit là plus tôt la prochaine fois. I want him to be there earlier next time. (subjunctive because the speaker wishes something to happen)
Les nuits je rêve que nous sommes amis. At night I dream that we are friends. (this actually happens)	Je doute que vous m'aimiez un jour. I doubt that you will ever love me. (the speaker is uncertain that something will happen)
Je cache les cadeaux parce qu'il vient. I'm hiding the presents because he's coming. (his coming is a reality)	Cache les cadeaux de peur qu'il ne vienne! Hide the presents in case he comes! (the speaker is afraid that something might happen)

- Tenses in which the subjunctive is used

There is a marked difference between the use of the subjunctive in speech and in writing:

- In written French the subjunctive is used in four tenses: the present, the past, the imperfect and the pluperfect.
- In spoken French, although officially three tenses may be used – the present, the past and double compound past – in fact it is rare for any tense other than the present and past to be heard.

The subjunctive has no future tense.

11.1 The present subjunctive

11.1.1 Formation

The endings of the present subjunctive are as follows for all groups of verbs, except for avoir and être:

je	-e	nous	-ions
tu	-es	vous	-iez
il / elle	-e	ils / elles	-ent

Note

In the first and second persons plural of the verb, the present indicative of -er verbs and subjunctive are differentiated by the insertion of -i- in the subjunctive form. This -i- is to be found in all tenses and all verbs of the subjunctive.

● Regular verbs

To form the present subjunctive it is essential to know the radical of the verb. For regular verbs:

- 1) take the third person plural of the present indicative;
- 2) remove the ending, leaving the radical;
- 3) conjugate the verb adding the subjunctive endings to the radical.

	Infinitive	3rd person plural of the present indicative	Radical	Examples of endings	Example of subjunctive
-er verbs	parl-er	parl-ent	parl-	-ions	que nous parlions
-ir verbs	fin-ir	finiss-ent	finiss-	-iez	que vous finissiez
-re verbs	craind-re	craign-ent	craign-	-es	que tu craignes

● Irregular verbs

Some irregular verbs, e.g. aller, savoir, tenir, have irregular radicals (see 9.2).

avoir and être form the present subjunctive as follows:

		être	avoir
que	je / j'	soi-s	ai-e que	tu	soi-s	ai-es

		être	avoir
qu'	il / elle	soi-t	ai-t que	nous	soy-ons	ay-ons que	vous	soy-ez	ay-ez
qu'	ils / elles	soi-ent	ai-ent

11.2 The compound past subjunctive

11.2.1 Formation

The compound past subjunctive is formed from the auxiliary verb avoir or être in the present subjunctive plus the past participle of the verb in question. The formation of the compound past subjunctive is the same for all verbs.

	Infinitive	Perfect indicative	Present subjunctive of avoir or être	Past participle of the verb	Compound past subjunctive
-er verbs	march-er	j'ai march-é	que j'ai-e	march-é	que j'aie marché
-ir verbs	atterr-ir	j'ai atterr-i	que j'ai-e	atterr-i	que j'aie atterri
-re verbs	attend-re	j'ai attend-u	que j'ai-e	attend- u	que j'aie attendu
verbs conjugated with être	venir	je suis ven-u / e	que je soi-s	ven-u / e	que je sois venu / e

11.3 The imperfect subjunctive

11.3.1 Formation

To conjugate the imperfect subjunctive it is important to know the past historic form. There are two steps:

- 1) take the second person singular of the simple past;
- 2) add the following endings to the radical:

-se, -ses, (vowel + circumflex) t, -sions, -siez, -sent

Note

For -er verbs, the third person singular invariably ends in a vowel with a circumflex accent plus t: il marcha – qu’il marchât. For all other verbs, the third person singular of the imperfect subjunctive is distinguished from the third person singular of the simple past only by the circumflex accent: il connut (he knew) – qu’il connût ; il vit (he saw) – qu’il vît.

	Infinitive	2nd person singular of the simple past indicative	Examples of endings	Example of subjunctive
-er verbs	par-er	parlas	-sions	que nous parlussions
-ir verbs	fin-ir	finis	-ît	qu’il finît
-re verbs	craind-re	craignis	-ses	que tu craignisses

Auxiliaries être and avoir

		être	avoir
que	je / j’	fus-se	eus-se
que	tu	fus-ses	eus-ses
qu’	il / elle	fût-t	eût-t
que	nous	fus-sions	eus-sions
que	vous	fus-siez	eus-siez
qu’	ils / elles	fus-sent	eus-sent

11.3.2 Uses

The imperfect subjunctive is used for actions that are simultaneous with or take place after the action of a main verb:

Depuis son doctorat, elle appréciait qu’on la considérât avec autant de respect (simultaneous)

After her doctorate she was pleased that she was considered with so much respect.

La prochaine fois, elle souhaiterait qu’on la considérât avec plus de respect. (after)

The next time she would wish to be considered with more respect.

11.4 The pluperfect subjunctive

11.4.1 Formation

The pluperfect subjunctive is a compound tense which is formed by the auxiliary avoir or être in the imperfect subjunctive followed by the past participle of the verb.

	Infinitive	Imperfect subjunctive of avoir or être	Past participle of the verb	Past subjunctive
-er verbs	march-er	que j'eusse	march-é	que j'eusse marché
-ir verbs	atterr-ir	qu'il eût	atterr-i	qu'il eût atterri
-re verbs	attend-re	que nous eussions	attend- u	que nous eussions attendu
verbs conjugated with être	venir	que je fusse	ven-u / e	que je fusse venu / e

Examples:

Pour réussir, il aurait fallu qu'il eût travaillé dès le début.	To succeed it would have been necessary for him to work from the beginning.
Pour avoir du beau temps, il fallait qu'elles fussent venues plus tôt.	To get good weather, it was necessary for them to have come earlier.

11.4.2 Uses

The pluperfect subjunctive is only found in very formal or literary discourse. It is used when the main clause is in the past and the action of the subordinate clause takes place before that of the main clause:

Elle souhaitait tellement qu'il eût vu des photos de son enfance.	She wished so much that he had seen the photos of her childhood.

11.5 The double compound past subjunctive

11.5.1 Formation

This tense is not used in the written language and scarcely used in the spoken language. The double compound form of verbs applies to almost all compound tenses. It is a compound tense whose auxiliary verb is itself a compound ('double compound').

In the subjunctive, the double compound form is derived from the past subjunctive and the pluperfect subjunctive.

The double compound form is obtained by adding the auxiliary avoir in a compound form, its own past participle being followed by the past participle of the verb. There are therefore two consecutive past participles.

Infinitive	Past subjunctive	Auxiliary avoir followed by its past participle	Double compound past subjunctive
travailler	que j'aie travaillé	... aie eu ...	que j'aie eu travaillé

Infinitive	Pluperfect subjunctive	Auxiliary avoir followed by its past participle	Double compound pluperfect subjunctive
travailler	que j'eusse travaillé	... eusse eu ...	que j'eusse eu travaillé

11.5.2 Uses

Double compound tenses are used mostly in the southern half of France.

These tenses are used to describe completed actions that take place prior to actions that have themselves taken place already before other actions. This is especially true of subordinate clauses of time:

Il fallait qu'il ait eu terminé son essai en moins d'une heure.

lit. He must have had finished his essay in less than half an hour.

Double compound tenses are also used as a form of insistence and they underline the fact that the action took place at a remote time in the past: Je l'ai eu appris (lit. I had had learned it) (what is understood is 'I did learn it a long time ago and I've now forgotten it'):

Il fallait que j'eusse eu fini à temps.

lit. It was necessary that I had had finished on time. (What is understood is: It was necessary to have finished on time, now it's too late.)

11.6 Examples of the five subjunctive tenses

Subjunctive tense	Examples
Present	Je pense qu'il quittera le pays avant qu'on finisse son procès. I think he'll leave the country before his trial finishes.
Past	S'il ne veut pas être jugé, il faut qu'il ait quitté le pays avant son procès. If he doesn't want to be judged he'll have to leave the country before his trial.
Imperfect	Pour éviter le procès, il fallait qu'il quittât le pays avant. To avoid the trial, it was necessary for him to leave the country beforehand.
Pluperfect	Il aurait fallu qu'il eût quitté le pays avant son arrestation. He would have had to leave the country before his arrest.
Double compound past	Il était hors du pays bien avant qu'on ait eu fini son procès. He was out of the country well before his trial had finished.

11.7 Uses of the subjunctive

11.7.1 The subjunctive in subordinate clauses dependent on certain verbs

- Wishes, expectation, orders, permission, prohibition, advice

Wishes, desires, expectation
vouloir / désirer / souhaiter to wish, want tenir à* to insist attendre to wait s'attendre à* to expect avoir envie que to want, feel like avoir besoin que to need	Je veux qu'il soit plus rapide la prochaine fois. I want him to be quicker next time. Il attend que nous nous décidions. He is waiting for us to make a decision. Elle s'attend à ce qu'ils finissent les travaux d'un moment à l'autre. She expects them to finish the work any time now. Cet enfant a besoin que vous le réconfortiez. That child needs you to comfort him.

VERBS 4: THE SUBJUNCTIVE

Orders, permission, prohibition
exiger to demand ordonner to order, command permettre to allow admettre to admit accepter / consentir à* to accept, agree to empêcher to prevent s'opposer à* / défendre / interdire to oppose refuser to refuse	J'exige que tu me dises ce qui s'est vraiment passé. I insist that you tell me what really happened. Ils consentent à ce que vous preniez la parole ... Mais ils s'opposent à ce que vous parliez longtemps. They agree that you should speak ... But they are against you speaking for a long time. Je n'accepte pas qu'on nous fasse travailler le dimanche. I don't agree that we should be made to work on Sundays.

Note

In the case of verbs and expressions followed by à, que is preceded by ce:

- consentir à ce qu'il l'accompagne. to agree that he accompanies them.
- s'attendre à ce qu'il l'accompagne. to expect that he accompanies them.

Recommendation, advice
conseiller to advise recommander to recommend suggérer to suggest déconseiller to advise against	Je suggère que vous changiez toutes les cartouches de votre imprimante. I suggest that you change all your printer cartridges. Les dentistes déconseillent que vous donniez trop de bonbons aux enfants. Dentists advise against giving too many sweets to children.

Note

The verb espérer (to hope, expect) is followed by the indicative when used in the affirmative:

J'espère qu'il tiendra sa promesse. I hope that he will keep his promise.

It can however be followed by the subjunctive when used in the negative:

Je n'ai jamais espéré qu'elle fût si brillante dans ses études. I never expected that she would be such a brilliant student.

- Feelings such as love, hate, anger, surprise; judgement

Love, hate, sadness, anger, distress
aimer to love détester to hate apprécier to like, appreciate être impatient que ... to be impatient that être content / heureux / fier que ... to be happy / content / proud that Cela fait plaisir que (I'm) pleased that être triste / désolé que ... to be sad / sorry that être furieux / fâché / mécontent / déçu que ... to be furious / angry / displeased / disappointed that trouver absurde que / avoir honte que to find (it) absurd that / to be ashamed that ne pas avoir le sentiment / l'impression que not to have the feeling / impression that	Je suis désolé que vous preniez les choses si mal. I am sorry that you take things so badly. Il est fâché que vous ayez échoué au concours. He's annoyed that you have failed the exam. Je suis impatient qu'on se mette à table. I'm eager to sit down to eat.

Surprise, astonishment
s'étonner to be surprised être étonné, surpris, choqué que ... to be astonished / surprised / shocked that	Je suis agréablement surpris que les musées soient gratuits au Royaume-Uni. I'm agreeably surprised that museum entry is free in the UK.

Appreciation, judgement
préférer to prefer il est préférable que it is preferable that déplore to deplore regretter to regret ne pas être sûr que not to be sure that trouver normal / anormal / juste que to find (it) normal / abnormal / just that	Je déplore que les trains soient si chers! I deplore the high cost of rail fares [lit. that trains are so expensive]. Elles préfèrent qu'on passe par l'autoroute. They prefer us to take the motorway. Je trouve anormal qu'il soit si nerveux. I find it unusual that he's so nervous.

- Doubt, fear

Doubt
douter to doubt	Je doute qu'ils soient de gauche. I doubt if they are left-wingers.

Fear*
avoir peur to be afraid craindre to fear redouter to dread trembler to be terrified	J'ai bien peur qu'il ne* soit encore bloqué dans les embouteillages. I'm afraid that he may still be held up by traffic jams.

*After verbs of fearing the verb in the subordinate clause is normally preceded by ne. In this case ne is redundant and the verb does not have a negative sense.

11.7.2 The subjunctive used after verbs which express a degree of doubt on the part of the speaker.

Verbs like croire (to believe), penser (to think), trouver (to find), être certain (to be certain), être sûr (to be sure), se souvenir (to remember) are followed by the indicative when expressing a fact in the affirmative. However, when these verbs are used in the negative or interrogative in the inverted form they can be followed either by the indicative or (more usually) by the subjunctive, to reflect the additional degree of doubt.

Affirmative	Negative	Interrogative with inversion of the subject
Je trouve qu'ils ont trop dépensé ce mois-ci. I think that they have spent too much this month.	Je ne trouve pas qu'ils ont trop dépensé ce mois-ci. (the speaker is sure of his facts) Je ne trouve pas qu'ils aient trop dépensé ce mois-ci. (the speaker lacks certainty) I don't think that they have spent too much this month.	Trouves-tu qu'ils ont trop dépensé ce mois-ci? Trouves-tu qu'ils aient trop dépensé ce mois-ci? Do you think that they have spent too much this month?
Il est certain qu'il a fait faillite. It's certain that he has gone bankrupt.	Il n'est pas certain qu'il a fait faillite. Il n'est pas certain qu'il ait fait faillite. It's not certain that he has gone bankrupt.	Est-il certain qu'il a fait faillite? Est-il certain qu'il ait fait faillite? Is it certain that he has gone bankrupt?
Je me souviens qu'elle a le teint mat. I remember that she has an olive complexion.	Je ne me souviens pas qu'elle a le teint mat. I don't remember that she has an olive complexion. (a comment on my memory) Je ne me souviens pas qu'elle ait le teint mat. I don't remember that she has a dark complexion. (the speaker has a doubt about the colour of her skin)	Se souvient-il qu'elle a le teint mat? Does he remember that she has an olive complexion? (a question about his memory) Te souviens-tu qu'elle ait le teint mat? Do you remember that she has a dark complexion? (the speaker queries the colour of her skin)

Affirmative	Negative	Interrogative with inversion of the subject
Je crois que le monde va mieux. I think the world is getting better.	Je ne crois pas que le monde va mieux. (the speaker contradicts an interlocutor and is sure of his view) Je ne crois pas que le monde aille mieux (the speaker is not very sure of his view) I don't believe the world is getting better.	Crois-tu que le monde va mieux? (the speaker is sure that it is not) Crois-tu que le monde aille mieux? (the speaker is unsure of his view) Do you believe the world is getting better?

The subjunctive is used in the same way after verbs of saying and thinking, such as dire (to say), affirmer (to assert), déclarer (to state), prétendre (to maintain), nier (to deny).

Affirmative	Negative	Interrogative form with inversion of the subject
Je dis que vous cherchez à m'intimider. I am saying that you are trying to intimidate me.	Je ne dis pas que vous cherchez à m'intimider. Je ne dis pas que vous cherchiez à m'intimider. I am not saying that you are trying to intimidate me.	Dis-tu que nous cherchons à t'intimider? (Is this your belief?) Dis-tu que nous cherchions à t'intimider? (Is this what you are saying?) Are you saying that we are trying to intimidate you?

11.7.3 The subjunctive after certain conjunctions

● Time

avant que + redundant ne before the verb jusqu'à ce que up to, until en attendant que while Note: après que , after, is followed by the indicative	Je dois partir avant qu'il (ne) soit trop tard. I must leave before it is too late.
--	---

● Purpose

afin que so that pour que so that de façon que in such a way as to de manière que in such a way as to de sorte que (expressing a purpose not a consequence) so that	Prête-lui un dictionnaire pour qu'il puisse traduire. Lend him a dictionary so that he can do the translation. Il prendra le bus de sorte qu'il vienne plus tôt (synonym of afin qu'il – purpose). He'll catch the bus so that he can arrive earlier.*
--	---

* Compare with:

Il prit le bus, de sorte qu'il est arrivé plus tôt (synonym of et ainsi il – consequence). He caught the bus, so he arrived earlier.

● Condition

à condition que on condition that à supposer que supposing that pourvu que provided that	J'accepte n'importe quel travail pourvu qu'il soit bien rémunéré. I accept whatever the work provided it is well paid.
---	--

● Concession

bien que although, though quoique although, though	Elle veut faire sa marche quotidienne bien qu'il pleuve. She wants to go on her daily walk although it's raining.
---	---

● Restriction

à moins que + redundant ne * unless	Je veux bien marcher avec vous, à moins qu'il ne pleuve. I'd like to walk with you, unless it rains.
--	--

● Fear

de peur que + redundant ne * for fear that de crainte que + redundant ne * for fear that	Ferme ta porte à clé de peur qu'il ne revienne. Lock the door in case (i.e., for fear that) he returns.
---	---

* After this conjunction the verb in the subordinate clause is normally preceded by ne. In this case ne is redundant and the verb does not have a negative sense.

11.7.4 The subjunctive after impersonal expressions beginning with il

These express necessity, judgement, sorrow, surprise, doubt, probability and possibility.

il faut que it's necessary that il est nécessaire que it's necessary that il est bon que it's good that il est utile que it's useful that il est juste que it's right that il est important que it's important that il est normal que it's normal that il est dommage que it's a pity that il est étonnant que it's surprising that il est temps que it's time that il vaut mieux que it's better that il importe que it's important that il est douteux que it's doubtful that il est peu probable que it's not likely that il est improbable que it's unlikely that il est possible que it's possible that il se peut que it may be that il n'est pas possible que it's not possible that il est impossible que it's impossible that	Il faut que vous rendiez la clé au concierge. You must give back the key to the porter. Il est juste qu'à travail égal les femmes aient le même salaire que les hommes. It is right that for the same work women have the same salary as men. Il est dommage qu'il soit si susceptible. It's a pity that he's so sensitive. Il est bon qu'il pleuve de temps en temps. It's no bad thing that it rains now and again. Il vaudrait mieux que nous déménagions au plus vite. It would be best for us to move (house) as quickly as possible. Il est temps qu'ils se mettent enfin au travail. It's time that they finally get down to work. Il est possible qu'elle soit membre du parti socialiste. It's possible that she's a member of the socialist party.

11.7.5 The subjunctive after the superlative and indefinite antecedents

- a superlative or a word preceded by a superlative

le seul only l'unique only, sole le premier first le dernier last le meilleur best	Elles sont les seules qui aient réussi* avec tant de facilité. They are the only ones to have succeeded so easily.
---	--

- 'indeterminate': the person or thing on which the subordinate clause depends is hypothetical or 'unreal'

personne nobody quelqu'un somebody quelque chose something peu de few, not much / many rien nothing	Il y a peu de gens qui aient réussi* avec autant de facilité. There are few people who have succeeded so easily. Il n'y a personne qui ait eu* autant de problèmes avec sa voiture. There's nobody who has had so many problems with his car.

*Note that the indicative may also be used in this construction.

- preceded by an indefinite adjective or article

un / une (...) a / an (...) tout any, all	Je voudrais une étudiante qui puisse résoudre cette équation. I'm looking for a student who can solve this equation. Y a-t-il une personne qui soit capable de m'expliquer ce mode d'emploi? Is there anyone who is able to explain these instructions to me?

11.7.6 The subjunctive in subordinate clauses which appear at the beginning of a sentence

Que ... that, whether	Que vous aimiez la bonne cuisine, cela est clair (but Il est clair que vous aimez la bonne cuisine). lit. That you like good cooking, that is clear.
------------------------------	---

que followed by the subjunctive may be placed before the verb in a main clause, as a replacement for the 'missing persons' of the imperative (English let me, let him, etc.).

The imperative in French is in 3 persons only (see 10.1): 2nd person singular: Entre dans la pièce! Go into the room! 1st person plural: Entrons dans la pièce! Let's go into the room! 2nd person plural and polite form: Entrez dans la pièce! Go into the room! The 1st person singular and 3rd persons singular and plural are therefore 'missing' and can be supplied by using this construction.	Que personne n'entre dans la pièce! Let no one enter the room! Que je sois mille fois puni, si je vous ai menti! May I be punished a thousand times over if I have lied to you!

The subjunctive in context

Le banquier, le philosophe et la crise

B: J'ai bien peur que les orientations actuelles ne soient pas les bonnes. Il faut se mobiliser pour une politique en faveur de l'économie réelle. Refusons que les banques s'affaiblissent.

Ph: Ne trouvez-vous pas normal que vous, les responsables de la crise, payiez les pots cassés?

B: Je ne peux pas vous laisser dire cela. S'il est vrai que la crise ait été causée par quelques banques américaines, que trop de prêts immobiliers aient été mal gérés, il est aussi vrai que les banques françaises ont mené une politique de crédit responsable.

Ph: Je m'étonne que vous disculpiez les banques avec autant de légèreté. Vous êtes bien le premier qui fassiez de telles affirmations à l'encontre du bon sens le plus élémentaire. N'est-il pas temps de voir la réalité en face? Il se peut que vous, banquiers français, ayiez généré moins de mauvais crédits, soit, je vous l'accorde. Mais, ne bénéficiez-vous pas de taux de refinancement avantageux de la BCE et des États? Et n'est-il pas vrai que vous prétiez à des taux excessifs qui mettent sur la paille des peuples entiers? Et n'éprouvez-vous point de honte que tant de maisons soient saisies par vos soins, que tant d'imprudents qui vous avaient fait confiance se trouvent maintenant à la rue?

B: Il est injuste que les banques soient unanimement attaquées quand elles sont elles-mêmes fragilisées. Il est nécessaire que nous ayions une économie dynamique pour que les banques puissent à nouveau prêter, et cette fois plus sainement. Il faut que les banques soient fortes afin que l'économie reparte.

J'ai bien peur que les orientations actuelles ne soient pas les bonnes	subjunctive after verb of fearing J'ai bien peur [11.7.1]
Refusons que les banques s'affaiblissent.	subjunctive after verb expressing prohibition Refusons [11.7.1]

| 7. Je ne sais pas | g que nos voisins allaient déménager? |
| 8. Nous regrettons | h où se trouvent mes clés. |

5 Three people are waiting for Claude at the airport arrivals gate. Each one has a different reason to be anxious:

Francine, his girlfriend, had a row with him over the phone and is frightened that he is going to split up with her.

Agnès, his mother, is annoyed with him because he hasn't been in touch for 3 weeks.

Georges, his younger brother, is preparing an apology for betting some money borrowed from Claude on a horse which lost.

Write two sentences order to express their feelings containing subjunctives that each one says to him / herself (or to each other!) as they wait.

12 PREPOSITIONS

Prepositions are invariable words which connect parts of a sentence, showing the relation between them. In English prepositions govern nouns, noun phrases or pronouns.

In 'After the picnic the children ran to the top of the hill shouting with delight', the words after, to, of and with are prepositions. They make prepositional phrases with the words that follow them.

'After the picnic' links the time this happened with the children's running up the hill.

'to the top' links the running with where they went.

'of the hill' links 'top' with the noun 'hill', clarifying exactly where on the hill they went.

'with delight' links with 'shouting', describing the manner in which they celebrated.

In French, prepositions have the same function as in English but there are some specific differences in the way they work.

KEY POINTS

- French prepositions may consist of one word:
à (at, to, in), de (of, from, with, in, by), en (in, on, at), sans (without), etc.
 or they may be phrases of more than one word:
à côté de (next to), au dessous de (below), près de (near to), etc.
- Prepositions may be followed by different elements of the sentence:
 - a noun: Le capot de la voiture the car bonnet
 - a pronoun: Je pense à eux. I think of them.
 - an infinitive: Il lui reste trois pages à écrire. He has three pages left to write.
 - an adverb of place or time: Il vaut mieux passer par derrière. It's best to go in by the back way.
 - a phrase: C'est pour encourager la recherche contre le sida. It's to encourage research into Aids.
- Prepositions in French are followed by the element they introduce and in general do not become detached from it, as often happens in English:

Je ne sais pas de quel garçon tu parles. I don't know which boy you're talking about.

- The form of the verb that is used after prepositions is the infinitive. In this respect French differs from English, where the gerund (a kind of verbal noun consisting of the infinitive + -ing) is frequently used for this construction:

Il l'a fait sans réfléchir.	He did it without thinking.
Pour réussir il faudra travailler plus.	To succeed it is necessary to work harder.
Avant d'éteindre ton ordinateur commence par fermer tous tes documents.	Before turning off your computer first of all close all your documents.

Exception

The preposition en + the gerund (the form of the French verb ending in -ant) is used for actions that take place simultaneously (see 10.5):

Il aime regarder la télévision en mangeant.	He likes watching the television while eating.
Il chante toujours en prenant sa douche.	He always sings when he's having a shower.

- In many cases a French preposition may be translated by the direct English equivalent, but with the most frequently-used prepositions the English translation is often unpredictable:

la fin de la leçon	the end of the lesson
---------------------------	-----------------------

but*d'une façon ou d'une autre ...un roman de Jean-Paul Sartreboire dans un verreêtre dans le trainvoir un film à la télévision*in one way or another ...a novel by Jean-Paul Sartreto drink from a glassto be on the trainto watch a film on the television*

It is therefore important to learn the particular uses of prepositions.

12.1 Coordination of prepositions

- If two prepositions introduce the same element, that element is not repeated:

Il a tondu la pelouse devant et derrière la maison.He cut the lawn in front of and behind the house.

- à, de and en

If à, de or en precede more than one element, they are usually repeated before each one:

Cet été il ira en Italie, en Croatie et en Grèce.This summer he will go to Italy, Croatia and Greece.Dans son cours il fait des allusions à la politique, à la religion et à la sociologie.In his lecture he refers to politics, religion and sociology.Son cours comprend des éléments de politique, de religion et de sociologie.His lecture contains elements of politics, religion and sociology.

- Special cases

In the following cases à, de and en are not repeated:

- set expressions:

condamné à des dommages et intérêtssentenced to pay damagesL'École nationale des ponts et chaussées[A civil engineering school, literally 'National School of Bridges and Roads']en son âme et consciencein all honesty

- when both elements refer to the same being or object:

Je m'adresse au voisin et ami que vous avez toujours été.I'm speaking to you as the neighbour and friend you have always been.

- when the elements are beings or ideas that are closely linked:

L'état des cerisiers, abricotiers et pommiers me préoccupe.The state of cherry, apricot and apple trees worries me.

- when the elements are numbers connected by ou:

Il est arrivé avec deux ou trois minutes de retard. He arrived two or three minutes late [lit. 'with ... of delay'].

- Other prepositions

All other prepositions can be repeated or not, depending on the speaker.

12.2 Verb + preposition constructions

Certain verbs are followed by a specific preposition, for example:

jouer à la belote	to play belote (a card game)
jouer du piano	to play the piano
penser à l'avenir	to think about the future
tenir à ses bijoux	to prize one's jewels
se souvenir de son enfance	to remember one's childhood

Many verbs are followed by a preposition and an infinitive. For example, commencer à (faire) (to begin [to do]), oublier de (faire) (to forget [to do]). (These constructions are covered fully in 10.2.6.)

12.3 Adjectives and adverbs + prepositions

Certain adjectives and adverbs are followed by a specific preposition:

bon en	good at (academic subject)
content de	pleased about / to / with
prêt à	ready to
ravi de	delighted to
beaucoup de (qqch)	much / many, a lot of (+ something)
trop de (qqch)	too much / many of (something)

But with an infinitive beaucoup and trop are followed by à:

beaucoup à (faire)	much / many, a lot of (+ to do)
trop à (faire)	too much / many (to do)
Il est bon en mathématiques mais pas en chimie.	He's good at maths but not at chemistry.
Elle est plutôt contente de ses résultats.	She's rather pleased about her results.
Il fait trop de fautes d'orthographe.	He makes too many spelling mistakes.
Elle a encore beaucoup à apprendre.	She has a lot to learn.

12.4 Differentiating between prepositions and adverbs

- A number of prepositions can also act as adverbs, e.g. après, avant, depuis, derrière, devant, entre, sans, selon. When these words function as adverbs they do not introduce a following noun, pronoun or noun phrase. The use of adverbs instead of prepositions is commonplace in familiar language (see Chapter 6):

Après la réunion je suis allé chez moi.

After the meeting I went home (après is a preposition governing « la réunion »).

Je suis allé chez moi après.

I went home afterwards. (après an adverb of time)

*Que penses-tu de la nouvelle réforme?
Je n'ai rien contre.*

What do you think of the new reform? I've nothing against it. (contre acts as an adverb)

Il a voté contre la réforme.

He voted against the reform. (contre acts as a preposition)

Penses-tu que c'est une bonne idée? C'est selon!

Do you think it's a good idea? It all depends! (selon acts as an adverb)

Selon moi, ils voteront avec les autres partis.

In my view [lit. according to me], they will vote with the other parties. (selon acts as a preposition)

- A number of prepositions are differentiated from adverbs by the addition of de:

autour

around (adverb) autour de

around (preposition)

près

near (adverb) près de

near (preposition)

en face

opposite (adverb)

en face de opposite (preposition)

Magali habite tout près.

Magali lives quite near.

Magali habite près de sa famille.

Magali lives quite near her family.

12.5 Prepositions and their uses

Certain common prepositions, especially à, de, dans, en and par, have a variety of equivalents in English and are best learnt in the context in which they are used. For example, the equivalent of dans is 'in' but the idea of 'in' can be translated by other prepositions according to the context.

○ dans

In the sense of 'living in a street' dans is used:

Mes parents habitent dans la rue Molière.*

My parents live in Molière Street.

○ à

In the sense of '(out) in the street' à is used:

Depuis qu'il est au chômage, il se retrouve à la rue.

Since he lost his job he's on the streets.

○ en plein

In the sense of 'in the middle of' en plein is used:

Ils se sont disputés en pleine rue.

They had an argument in (the middle of) the street.

* It is also possible to express this idea without a preposition at all: Mes parents habitent rue Molière.

The list of the most common prepositions which follows gives a range of equivalents and exemplifies their use.

12.5.1 à

Reminder (see 2.3):

à + le = au

à + les = aux

à is used to express:

- place, location: at, in, on à la dernière minute

at the last minute

au commissariat

at the police station

Ils attendent à la gare.

- noun complements

In the English equivalent the complement is frequently turned into an adjective and placed before the noun:

un croissant au beurre	a butter croissant
peinture à l'huile	oil painting
un sandwich au saucisson	a sausage sandwich une tarte aux pommes	an apple tart
du beurre à l'ail	garlic butter

- prices: at

des tomates à 3 euros le kilo	tomatoes at 3 euros a kilo
des interrupteurs à 5 euros pièce	switches at 5 euros each

- distance and speed:

13 CONJUNCTIONS

The word 'conjunction' means 'joining together'. Typical conjunctions are 'and', 'but' and 'because', and they have the function of connecting two words, phrases, clauses or sentences.

Conjunctions have an important role in communicating meaning. When they connect words, phrases or clauses, conjunctions create sentences of greater complexity. For example, a conjunction can be used to join the two statements 'He complained bitterly' and 'No one took any notice', turning them into a single, more complex one. Linking the sentences with the conjunction 'but' gives one meaning: 'He complained bitterly but no one took any notice'; connecting them with 'because' gives a quite different one: 'He complained bitterly because no one took any notice'.

KEY POINTS

French conjunctions work in a similar way to English ones. There are two types, coordinating and subordinating.

- Coordinating conjunctions, such as et (and), ou (or) and mais (but), are so-called because they make a simple link between two equivalent words or clauses; there is no relation of dependency between the two components that are linked:

Jean et Magalie se sont mariés.

Jean and Magalie got married.

C'est maintenant ou jamais.

It's now or never.

J'essaie de faire un peu de sport mais, hélas, je n'ai pas vraiment le temps.

I try to play a little sport but unfortunately I don't really have the time.

- Subordinating conjunctions, such as comme (as), parce que (because), and quand (when), introduce a subordinate clause which is dependent on (i.e., 'subordinate to') a main clause.

Main clause	Subordinate clause introduced by a conjunction
Il ne parlait pas beaucoup He didn't speak much	parce qu'il préférerait écouter. because he preferred to listen.
J'irai les voir I'll go and see them	quand j'aurai terminé mon travail. when I've finished my work.
Fais Do	comme il te plaît. as you like.

13.1 Coordinating conjunctions

Coordinating conjunctions are few in number but they are among the most used words in the language. The principal coordinating conjunctions are:

car	for, since, because
donc	so
et	and
mais	but
or	so, now, and yet
ou	or
ni	neither, nor, or
puis	then, next

Note

et, ou and ni can join words (including pronouns), phrases, clauses and sentences. The remaining coordinating conjunctions join two phrases, clauses and sentences, but not two words.

13.1.1 car

Car is used to link two clauses, and does not normally appear at the beginning of a sentence. It is used mostly in written French and has an explanatory sense:

Son frère est revenu, car elle l'a vu.	His brother has returned, since she's seen him.
Elle va échouer l'examen, car elle n'a pas fait assez de travail.	She'll fail the exam because she's not done enough work.
Il prend toujours ses congés en juillet car il tient à voir le Tour de France.	He always takes his holidays in July for he's keen to see the Tour de France.
Il est devenu un vrai expert en cinéma car il a lu de nombreux livres sur le sujet.	He's become a real expert on cinema because he's read lots of books about it.

13.1.2 donc

Donc has the function of linking two clauses or sentences, indicating a result. This conjunction is used typically in logical syllogisms, as in Descartes' famous statement « Je pense, donc je suis » (I think, therefore I am). The placing of donc is variable; it may be situated at the beginning of the clause or after the verb:

Je suis venu ici pour me détendre, donc je ne veux pas d'ordinateur.	I've come here to relax, so I don't want a computer.
Nous n'avons pas de financement pour le projet. Il s'agit donc d'en trouver.	We haven't enough finance for the project. So it's a question of finding it.

13.1.3 et

- Et can be placed between words, phrases and clauses and at the beginning of a sentence:

une photo en noir et blanc	a black and white photo
Nous avons pris la clé et nous sommes montés au sixième par l'ascenseur.	We took the key and we went up to the sixth floor in the lift.
Et toi? Qu'est-ce que tu en penses?	And you? What do you think about it?

- both ... and may be expressed by et ... et:

Et mon père et ma mère sont algériens.	Both my father and my mother are Algerian.
---	--

13.1.4 mais

Mais expresses a contrast or a limitation and may be placed at the beginning of a sentence:

Elle s'est couchée de bonne heure mais elle ne dormait pas.	She went to bed early but she couldn't sleep.
---	---

Il est bon en anglais mais médiocre en mathématiques.

Je voulais répondre mais je ne savais pas quoi dire.

Mais que vais-je faire ce soir? Aucune de mes amies ne veut sortir.*

He's good at English but weak in mathematics.

I wanted to answer but I didn't know what to say.

But what I am going to do tonight? None of my friends wants to go out.

13.1.5 ni

- Ni can link words, phrases or clauses and is almost always used in tandem with a second ni (see 7.7):

Quel livre préférez-vous? Ni l'un ni l'autre.

Which book do you prefer? Neither one nor the other.

- ne ... ni (... ni):

Je ne sais pas si elle vient, ni même si on l'a invitée.

I don't know if she's coming or even if she's been invited.

Vous ne pouvez pas m'empêcher de m'en aller, ni vous ni personne.

You can't stop me going, neither you nor anyone else.

Il n'a dit ni « oui » ni « non ».

He said neither 'yes' nor 'no'.

13.1.6 or

Or is normally followed by a comma and serves to link a statement with a previous one. This conjunction is normally placed at the beginning of the sentence or clause:

Il n'aimait pas sa vie d'oisif. Or, un jour, un ami de son père lui a proposé de travailler dans son restaurant.

He wasn't happy with his idle life. Now, one day, a friend of his father's offered him work in his restaurant.

Il disait ne pas aimer les femmes, or il avait une fille et une mère qu'il adorait.

He said he didn't like women and yet he had a daughter and a mother that he loved.

Tous les Italiens sont bavards; or Giacomo est italien, donc Giacomo devrait être bavard.

All Italians are talkative; now Giacomo is Italian, so he should be talkative.

13.1.7 ou

- Ou links words, phrases and clauses and can be placed at the beginning of a sentence. This conjunction states alternatives, which can express the same thing in other words or a genuine alternative choice:

Il travaillait dans une compagnie d'assurances ou quelque chose de ce genre.

He worked for an insurance company or something of the kind.

Vous pouvez aller au cinéma ou rester chez vous.

You can go to the cinema or stay at home.

- ou ... ou means either ... or:

Ou la jalousie ou l'égoïsme l'a fait réagir de cette manière.

Either jealousy or selfishness made him react that way.

13.1.8 puis

Puis is used for relating a sequence of events:

J'ai pris mon petit déjeuner, puis je suis allé voir ma copine. I had breakfast and then I went to see my girlfriend.

Ils ont dansé toute la nuit. Puis, épuisés, ils sont allés se coucher. They danced the whole night. Then, exhausted, they went to bed.

13.2 Subordinating conjunctions

Subordinating conjunctions connect a main clause with a subordinate clause. The conjunction employed may be:

- a single word, such as que (that), quand (when), si (if, whether) and comme (as)
- a phrase ending in que or si, such as parce que (because), avant que (before), bien que (although), à condition que (provided that), comme si (as if)

Subordinate clauses may express a variety of meanings, relating mainly to time, cause, consequence, aim, condition or concession. The subordinate clause may be in the indicative or the subjunctive: certain conjunctions, such as parce que, are always followed by the indicative; others, such as bien que, are followed by the subjunctive.

There are some important differences of tense between French and English, notably with conjunctions of time (quand, depuis que [since], etc.).

13.3 Subordinating conjunctions followed by the indicative

These conjunctions fall into several categories.

13.3.1 que

Que (that), introducing a noun clause, is the most common subordinating conjunction. Note that its equivalent in English is frequently omitted:

Tu ne m'avais pas dit que tu avais un frère. You hadn't told me (that) you'd got a brother.

Je crois que ça change tout. I think (that) that changes everything.

Note that que may also be followed by the subjunctive:

Je ne crois pas qu'elle vienne. I don't think she's coming.

13.3.2 Other conjunctions

A variety of conjunctions relating to cause, preference, exception, etc. are followed by the indicative. The most common of these are:

à mesure que	as
ainsi que	just as
alors que	while
autant que	as far as
comme	as
comme si	as if
parce que	because
plutôt que	rather than
puisque	since (= because)
sauf que	except that
sinon que	except that
tandis que	while, whereas
vu que	seeing that

À mesure qu'approchait l'heure elle devenait de plus en plus nerveuse.	As the hour approached she became more and more nervous.
Nous y allons le matin parce qu'il y aura moins de monde.	We'll go there in the morning because there will be fewer people.
Il n'y a rien d'extraordinaire à ce qu'ils se ressemblent puisqu'ils sont cousins.	It's not surprising that they look like alike since they are cousins.
Je préfère prendre le taxi plutôt que d'arriver en retard.	I prefer to take a taxi rather than arrive late.
Il a fait ses ablutions avant le repas, ainsi qu'il est de coutume dans ce pays.	He performed his ablutions before the meal, as is the custom in this country.
Il est passé sans me saluer, comme s'il ne m'avait pas vu.	He went by without greeting me as if he hadn't seen me.

13.3.3 Subordinating conjunctions of time

- The most common conjunctions relating to time are:

après que	after
aussitôt que	as soon as
dès que	as soon as
depuis que	since (of time)
maintenant que	now
lorsque	when
pendant que	while
quand	when

Quand le printemps arrive, le jardin s'éveille.
De quoi avez-vous parlé lorsque vous étiez seuls?

When spring arrives the garden wakes up.
What did you talk about when you were all on your own?

Pendant que tu voyageais en Chine j'étudiais pour mes examens.

While you were travelling in China I was studying for my exams.

Maintenant qu'elle connaît les règles, elle ne commettra plus la faute.

Now that she knows the rules she won't make the mistake any more.

Depuis qu'il a obtenu son diplôme, il semble plus confiant.

Since he got his degree he seems more confident.

● Time clauses with future and conditional tenses

When the verb in the main clause is in a future or conditional tense, the verb in the subordinate clause must also be in the future, compound future, conditional or compound conditional. Note that in English the verb in the subordinate clause would be in the present or a past tense (see also 9.10–9.13).

Quand la guerre sera terminée il sera possible de visiter le pays.

When the war is over it will be possible to visit the country.

On leur enverra un texto dès qu'elles arriveront.

We'll send them a text message as soon as they arrive.

Je viendrai aussitôt que j'aurai fini.

I'll come as soon as I've finished.

Je pense qu'elle quittera la maison dès qu'elle aura 18 ans.

I think she will leave home as soon as she is 18.

Lorsqu'il sera un peu plus riche, il fera des travaux dans la maison.

When he's a little better off he'll do some work in the house.

Pendant que lui sera tranquille en train de boire une bière, moi je serai chez le dentiste.

While he's calmly drinking a beer, I'll be at the dentist.

● depuis que clauses

After depuis que the tense is the same as in English if the action that is being described has been completed:

Depuis qu'elle est allée vivre en France, j'ai perdu contact avec elle.

Since she went to live in France, I've lost touch with her.

but if the action is / was continuing at the time the speaker is describing it, the English perfect tense is conveyed by the present tense in French and the English pluperfect tense is conveyed by the imperfect tense in French:

Depuis qu'elle vit en France je lui écris régulièrement.

Since she has been living in France I write to her regularly. [She's living there now and I'm writing letters to her.]

Depuis qu'elle vivait en France, je lui écrivais régulièrement.

Since she had been living in France I wrote to her regularly. [She was still living in France at the time when I was writing letters to her.]

Note

The same difference between English and French in the use of tenses occurs with Il y a and Cela fait or Ça fait (colloquial) referring to a period of time that is not yet completed:

Il y a / Ça fait deux ans que je travaille chez Renault.	I've been working for Renault for two years.
Il y avait deux ans que je travaillais chez Renault.	I had been working for Renault for two years.

13.3.4 Conditional conjunctions même si	even if

si	if

si can mean both 'if' and 'whether' in English.

- when si is part of a conditional sentence the English equivalent is always 'if'. In these sentences future or conditional tenses cannot be used in the si clause:

Si j'ai bien compris il a raté son examen.	If I've understood him correctly he's failed his exam.
Si la météo le permet, ils joueront la finale cet après-midi.	Weather permitting, they will play the final this afternoon.
Il ne viendra pas, même s'il a le temps.	He won't come even if he has the time.
J'aurais pu vous prêter mon portable si j'avais su que le vôtre ne marchait pas.	I could have lent you my laptop if I'd known that yours wasn't working.
Si j'avais du talent je me mettrais à peindre.	If I was talented I'd take up painting.
Si j'avais su j'aurais étudié l'informatique.	If I'd known I'd have studied computer science.

- When si is used in an indirect question its equivalent is 'if' or 'whether'. In these constructions any appropriate tense may be used in the si clause:

Je ne sais pas si vous avez rencontré mon ami, Charles.	I don't know if / whether you have met my friend Charles.
Je me demande s'il pleuvra ce soir.	I wonder if / whether it will rain this evening.
À l'époque je m'étais demandé si cela valait la peine de faire un doctorat.	At the time I had wondered if it was worth while doing a doctorate.

13.4 Subordinating conjunctions followed by the subjunctive à condition que	provided that à moins que	unless afin que	so that avant que de peur que

jusqu'à ce que bien que pour que pourvu que quoique sans que before for fear that until although so that provided that

without

L'orage a commencé avant qu'ils aient pu retourner chez eux.
Il entre dans la chambre sans que personne ne s'en rende compte.
Il est parti avant qu'elle n'ait eu le temps de répondre.
Bien qu'elle lui ait dit trois fois d'aller se coucher, l'enfant a refusé.*
J'accepterai n'importe quel emploi pourvu qu'il soit bien rémunéré.
Attends ici, jusqu'à ce que le réservoir soit plein!

The storm began before they were able to get back home.
He goes into the room without anybody realizing.
He went off before she had had a chance to reply.
Even though she told him to go to bed three times the child refused.
I'll accept any old job provided it's well paid.
Wait here until the tank is full!

(See also 11.7.)

13.5 Subordinating conjunctions followed by the indicative or subjunctive, depending on meaning

The following conjunctions can be followed either by the indicative or the subjunctive, depending on meaning:

de façon que
de manière que
de sorte que
si bien que

in such a way that, so that in such a way that, so that in such a way that, so that
in such a way that, so that

When these conjunctions describe an action that has taken place, i.e., there has been a result, the indicative is used; when the action intended or desired has not taken place, the subjunctive is used:

Le politicien a parlé de façon que tout le monde a pu le comprendre.
Le politicien parle de façon que tout le monde puisse le comprendre.
La star s'est placée de façon que tout le monde a pu la prendre en photo.

The politician spoke in such a way that everyone was able to understand him.
The politician speaks in such a way that every one can understand him.
The star positioned herself so that everyone was able to take her photo.

La star s'est placée de façon que tout le monde puisse la voir.

Puis la crise est arrivée, de sorte que les prix des maisons sont devenus de nouveau abordables.

Il a préféré retirer son argent de la banque, de sorte qu'il puisse investir dans la pierre.

The star has positioned herself so that everyone can see her.

Then the crisis came, so house prices became affordable again.

He preferred to withdraw his money from the bank so that he can invest in property.

Quand le 3 avril 2007 la société Alstom décida de faire connaître au monde les capacités de son nouveau train AGV (pour Automotrice à Grande Vitesse) et qu'elle annonça le chiffre record de 574,8 km/h, ce fut l'ébahissement général... bien que ce chiffre ne représentât pas le record absolu en la matière, puisque le Shinkansen japonais avait atteint, lui, la vitesse époustouflante de 581 km/h en 2003. Mais la prouesse résidait dans le fait que l'AGV avait accompli sa performance sur des rails classiques et avec un pantographe et des caténaires. Alors que le Shinkansen, voulant éviter les frictions, avait opté pour le système maglev à sustentation magnétique.

Qu'on ne s'y trompe pas! Tandis que la performance japonaise est excellente et qu'elle est promise à un meilleur avenir encore, la performance française est remarquable à plus d'un titre.

D'abord, *pour qu'*un pantographe puisse résister dans de telles conditions, *sans qu'*il soit sectionné par un câble de caténaire défilant à près de 600 km/h, il a fallu inventer un matériau exceptionnel. Puis, quoique la voie soient solidement assise sur le ballast, il a fallu penser à la violence des chocs des roues contre les rails. Là encore, je ne crois pas que l'invention d'un métal particulièrement résistant ait été chose facile. Et puis, même si un train n'est pas un avion, à une telle vitesse, le nez de l'AGV ne peut que piquer vers le haut, *à moins qu'*une aérodynamique appropriée ne soit trouvée.

Each of the following sentences contains a relative clause:

The man who answered the phone was very rude.

The bird (that) you saw yesterday was a golden eagle.

Her house, which was built in the eighteenth century, is being restored.

Relative clauses are clauses introduced by words like who, that and which. These words are relative pronouns. They have two important functions:

- As pronouns, they refer back to a previous element in the sentence. In the above sentences the noun that is referred to ('man', 'bird', 'house') stands immediately before the relative pronoun, and is called the antecedent.
- They link two clauses together. The clause which is introduced by the relative pronoun is called a subordinate clause.

Relative pronouns have two functions in French:

- The books I've read.

que	is the relative pronoun which stands in the place of olives and which therefore agrees in gender and number.
	is also the direct object of ai achetées and is placed before the past participle achetées .
olives	the antecedent, is a feminine plural noun.
achetées	is a past participle related to que , feminine plural, and agreeing with it.

Note

In old expressions, proverbs and sayings, the antecedent is understood:

Qui cherche trouve! He who seeks shall find!

14.2 The invariable relatives, qui, que, quoi, dont, où

These relatives may be combined with the demonstrative ce:

Je sais ce qui compte. I know what counts.
Je sais ce que je dis. I know what I'm saying.
Je sais ce à quoi vous faites allusion. I know what you're referring to.

In French, as in English, the relative pronouns take on a different form according to their function in the sentence:

function	pronoun	antecedent	example
subject	qui	person or thing	Le médecin qui vous a examiné. The doctor who has examined you.
direct object	que, qu'	person or thing	L'ordonnance que vous avez reçue. The prescription you have received.
indirect object	quoi	thing	Voilà ce à quoi vous tenez tant! That's the thing you're most fond of!
noun complement	dont	person or thing	L'ordonnance dont il est question. The prescription we're talking about.
adverbial expression	où	thing	La pharmacie où je vais. The chemist's I'm going to.

Note

Care should be taken not to confuse the relative pronouns qui, que, quoi, où with the interrogative pronouns qui? que? quoi? où?

Relative: Quel est cet inconnu qui approche? Who is that stranger who's approaching?

Interrogative: Qui va là? Who goes there?

14.3 Qui (who, which, that)

- Qui is a subject pronoun, unless it is preceded by a preposition:

Voilà le technicien qui a réparé l'aspirateur.

There is the engineer who repaired the vacuum cleaner.

L'homme qui est venu est notre voisin.

The man who came is our neighbour.

Le chien qui était dans le jardin appartenait à notre voisin.

The dog which / that was in the garden belonged to our neighbour.

- Qui can stand for people, animals or things:

C'est l'enfant qui a éteint la bougie.

It's the child who put out the candle.

C'est la bougie qui s'est éteinte.

It's the candle that blew out.

- Qui may be preceded by a preposition.

If the antecedent is an animal or a thing it must be replaced by the relative pronoun lequel (see 14.8):

L'ami à qui j'ai écrit.

The friend I wrote to.

Le chat auquel j'ai donné du lait.

The cat I gave some milk to.

- ce qui (which, what) is a combination of the demonstrative ce + qui:

On a décidé d'aller à la Martinique, ce qui est fantastique!

We've decided to go to Martinique, which is fantastic!

14.4 Que / qu' (who[m], which, that, what) que is a direct object pronoun, which is elided to qu' before a vowel and silent h. It can refer to people or things:

Il a des moyens que je n'ai pas.

He has means that / which I haven't got.

Elle a des amis que j'apprécie.

She has friends that I like.

Les arbres qu'on a plantés sont des arbres fruitiers.

The trees that have been planted are fruit trees.

- ce que (which, what) a combination of the demonstrative ce + que,

- introduces an idea (what):

Ce que je sais, c'est qu'il travaille à Lyon.*

What I know is that he works in Lyons.

- stands for a previous clause (which):

Il travaille à Lyon, ce que je sais depuis longtemps.

He works in Lyons, which I have known for a long time.

● celui / celle / ceux / celles que

The demonstrative pronouns celui, celle, ceux and celles are used to introduce relative clauses (see 3.9.1):

Celle que tu as rencontrée hier n'est pas ma sœur. The person you met yesterday is not my sister.

Ceux que j'ai corrigés, taisez-vous, s'il vous plaît! Those I've corrected be quiet, please!

14.5 Quoi (which, what)

Quoi can only refer to things.

Quoi is always preceded by a preposition when referring to an indirect object or an adverbial:

Prenez un papier sur quoi écrire. Take a piece of paper to write on. [lit. on which to write]

Its antecedent can be a determiner, an adverb like rien or pronouns such as ce, quelque chose:

Il lui faudrait quelque chose à quoi se raccrocher. He would need something to cling on to.

Demandez-lui ce à quoi il pensait quand il a pris une telle décision. Ask him what he was thinking about when he took such a decision.

Quoi can introduce an infinitive clause with avoir (to have), acheter (to buy), chercher (to look for), trouver (to find), and after voici and voilà:

Je voulais acheter de quoi faire un gâteau, mais je n'avais pas de quoi payer. I wanted to buy something to bake a cake with, but I didn't have any money to pay for it.

Note

Care should be taken not to confuse quoi que (whatever), the pronoun, with quoique (although), the conjunction. In the spoken language this difference can only be understood from the context:

Quoi que je fasse ... Whatever I do ...

Quoique je me sois entraîné, je suis arrivé dans les derniers. Although I trained, I was among the last to finish.

14.6 Dont (whose, of / about whom, of which)

Dont is used for a complement introduced by the preposition de. It can be the complement to a noun, adjective or indirect object.

- Noun complement: La montagne dont je vois le sommet ... The mountain, whose summit I can see ... (le sommet de la montagne)
- Adjective complement: Le sport, dont il est fervent, lui fait beaucoup de bien. Sport, which he is very keen on, does him a lot of good. (fervent de sport)
- Indirect object complement: Le grimpeur dont j'ai parlé ... The climber I spoke about ... (parler du / au sujet du / à propos du grimpeur)

Dont can be used for people or things:

L'homme dont on voit le chapeau ...	The man whose hat can be seen ...
La forêt dont on a coupé les arbres ...	The forest whose trees have been cut ...
Le dentiste dont je vous ai parlé ...	The dentist (who[m]) I told you about ...

If dont is separated from its antecedent by a preposition, it must be replaced by duquel, de laquelle, desquels, desquelles (see 14.8):

L'ami, à la mère duquel j'ai téléphoné, sera là ce soir.	The friend whose mother I phoned will be there this evening. (You cannot say here * dont à la mère.)
--	--

14.7 Où (where, in / to which, when) où as a relative pronoun can only be used for things. It expresses:

- an adverbial of place:

La ville où j'habite ...	The town where I live ...
--	---------------------------

- an adverbial of time, unlike in English, where 'when' is used:

À l'époque où elle travaillait comme infirmière ...	At the time when she worked as a nurse ...
---	--

- où can be preceded by a preposition, e.g. d', par, vers, jusqu':

Le pays d'où il vient ...	The country he comes from ...
Voilà le sentier par où ils sont passés ...	There's the path they went along ...

- où can have an adverb of place as its antecedent:

Là où ils vont.	lit. There where they are going.
-------------------------------	----------------------------------

I 4.8 Lequel ([that] which, who[m])

lequel as a relative pronoun:

- agrees in gender and number with its antecedent;
- can have a person or a thing as its antecedent;
- combines with the prepositions à and de.

	masculine		feminine
	singular	plural	singular	plural
without a preposition	lequel	lesquels	laquelle	lesquelles
à	auquel	auxquels	à laquelle	auxquelles
de	duquel	desquels	de laquelle	desquelles

La personne à laquelle je pense ...

The person I'm thinking of ...

Les personnes auxquelles je pense ...

The people I'm thinking of ...

● Lequel, laquelle, lesquels, lesquelles

- This pronoun is generally preceded by prepositions such as avec, dans, pour, par, à l'intérieur de, à propos de, au milieu de, au sujet de, au-dessous de, au-dessus de, chez, d'après, en face de, entre, parmi, près de, sans, selon:

La piscine dans laquelle nous nous sommes baignés ...

The swimming pool in which we bathed ...

Le concept à propos duquel il y eut débat ...

The concept about which there was a debate ...

- If the antecedent is a person, lequel can be replaced by qui:

Les amis chez lesquels nous avons passé l'été ...

The friends with whom we spent the summer ...

Les amis chez qui nous avons passé l'été ...

The friends with whom we spent the summer ...

- Lequel can be used as a subject (who in English), but this usage is mainly literary and (especially) administrative, to avoid ambiguities with the antecedent:

La police a interrogé deux suspects, lesquels ont déclaré avoir un alibi.

The police interviewed two suspects, who stated that they had alibis.

- Lequel must replace qui:
after the prepositions parmi and entre:

Ce pays compte cinq millions d'habitants parmi lesquels 400 000 suédophones.

This country has 5 million inhabitants, of whom 400,000 are Swedish-speaking.

after all prepositions if the antecedent is not a person:

Le village auquel je pense ...

The village I'm thinking of ...

La femme à qui je pense ...

The woman I'm thinking of ...

● Duquel, de laquelle, desquels, desquelles (of / from which, whose)

- This pronoun replaces dont when it is separated from its antecedent by a preposition:

C'est le professeur dans la classe duquel on a trouvé des graffiti.

It's the teacher in whose classroom graffiti were found.

14.9 Restrictive and non-restrictive relative clauses

The sentences:

Les élèves, qui ont bien travaillé, ont eu d'excellentes notes. (1)

The pupils, who have worked well, have had excellent marks.

Les élèves qui ont bien travaillé ont eu d'excellentes notes. (2)

The pupils who have worked well have had excellent marks.

differ only by the presence of two commas, yet their meaning is quite different: the number of pupils being given excellent marks is not the same in each case. In sentence (1) all the pupils have worked well and been given excellent marks. In sentence (2) only those pupils who have have worked well have been given excellent marks.

Sentence (1) is non-restrictive.

Sentence (2) is restrictive.

Non-restrictive clauses give extra information about the antecedent, which is inserted in the sentence. This information can be removed without the meaning of the rest of the sentence being affected. The two commas correspond to a pause when speaking.

Restrictive clauses are essential to the meaning of the sentence and cannot therefore be removed without loss of meaning.

Relative pronouns in context

Que coûtent les guerres?

L'Europe est le continent où les conflits furent incessants. Ce qui a poussé les nations à tant de barbarie? La conquête de nouveaux territoires qui seuls garantissaient puissance et prestige! Nous avons lu sur les affrontements entre Espagnols et Français, lesquels se ruinaient régulièrement pour s'arracher des bribes de territoires. On nous a tout dit sur ce que tel général avait développé de stratégie, ce à quoi il avait dû faire face, l'idéal pour lequel il s'était battu, et les mille raisons pour lesquelles il n'aurait pas dû perdre.

Mais ce dont on n'entend jamais parler, là où le bât blesse* en quelque sorte, c'est le prix qu'ont coûté ces campagnes militaires. Deux pays se mettent soudain à titiller l'histoire: ce à propos de quoi on se chamaille est surprenant, car c'est un litige vieux de 400 ans dont il est question.

Notre histoire débute au XVI^e siècle. À une époque où l'Espagne était au sommet de sa gloire. Philippe II, en guerre contre la France, dût emprunter de l'argent. C'est vers la Pologne qu'il se tourne, de laquelle il reçoit 430 000 ducats en or.

Il pensait que la suprématie dont jouissait son pays sur le plan diplomatique lui permettait quelques prérogatives dont celle notamment de ne pas rembourser sa dette.

Voilà de quoi irriter aujourd'hui un jeune député polonais, dont personne n'avait entendu parler auparavant. Ce dernier adresse une réclamation par laquelle il exige un remboursement immédiat.

Aujourd'hui les temps sont durs et notre député a fait des calculs. Ce serait de près de 57 millions d'euros que serait redevable l'Espagne, sans compter les intérêts qui pourraient s'élever à des centaines de millions.

QUESTIONS AND EXCLAMATIONS

15.1 Questions

Introduction

Direct questions are of two kinds: those that ask for information, in which case a question word like What?, When? or Why? introduces the question, as in: What are you doing this evening?, and those that expect the answer 'yes' or 'no', as in Are you going out this evening?. Questions may also be indirect: Ask her what she's doing this evening.

KEY POINTS

- In French, yes / no questions can be formulated in one of three ways:

Are you going out this evening? can be rendered by:

- turning a statement into question, adding a question mark:

Tu sors ce soir. > Tu sors ce soir?

- inverting the verb and the subject pronoun:

Sors-tu ce soir?

- placing Est-ce que before the statement, adding a question mark:

Est-ce que tu sors ce soir?

- A formula may be used, in the spoken language especially, for certain question words, for example:

- questions beginning with Who? may be introduced by Qui est-ce qui? or Qui est-ce que?

Qui est-ce qui le dit?

Who says so?

Qui est-ce qu'elle a vu hier?

Who did she see yesterday?

- questions beginning with What? may be introduced by Qu'est-ce qui? and Qu'est-ce que?

Qu'est-ce qui se passe?

What's going on?

Qu'est-ce que tu as acheté?

What did you buy?

15.1.1 Direct questions: yes / no answers

- Questions expressed by intonation

When a statement is turned into a question, the speaker employs a rising intonation at the end of the sentence:

Tu reviens demain?

Are you coming back tomorrow?

Tu me prêtes ton magazine?

Will you lend me your magazine?

This way of formulating questions is mainly used in the spoken language.

- Inversion of the subject pronoun and the verb

When the subject is a pronoun, a question is created by inverting the verb and the pronoun and joining them by a hyphen:

Voulez-vous m'accompagner au commissariat?

Will you go with me to the police station?

Avez-vous toujours votre belle voiture?

Have you still got your beautiful car?

With the first person, inversion of this kind is not usual except for a few verbs, such as pouvoir and avoir:

Puis-je vous donner la clé?

Can I give you the key?

Ai-je bien compris vos propos?

Have I understood your comments properly?

- Where necessary, -t- is inserted between the verb and the pronoun to avoid a clash of two vowels:

A-t-elle dit ce qu'elle va faire?

Has she said what she's going to do?

Chanta-t-il sans orchestre ou avec orchestre?

Did he sing with or without an orchestra?

- When the subject of the sentence is a noun, inversion can still take place, but the noun is placed at the beginning of the question and 'duplicated' by a subject pronoun after the verb:

Claude, as-tu apporté les disques?

Have you brought the disks, Claude?

Marie et Michel, viendront-ils cet été?

Will Marie and Michel come this summer?

● Est-ce que?

Est-ce que is placed at the beginning of the statement and a question mark added:

Est-ce que tu as apporté les disques, Claude?

Have you brought the disks, Claude?

Est-ce que toutes les portes ont été fermées?

Have all the doors been shut?

15.1.2 Question tags: n'est-ce pas? non?

- Question tags in English, like 'isn't it', 'don't they', 'aren't you', 'didn't it' may be rendered in French by n'est-ce pas?:

Ils sont allés faire des courses, n'est-ce pas?

They've gone shopping, haven't they?

C'est vous qui avez laissé les lumières allumées,
n'est-ce pas?

It's you who left the lights on, isn't it?

- In spoken French the tag non? is also used very frequently:

Tu as fermé les fenêtres, non?

You've closed the windows, haven't you?

On s'est déjà rencontrés, non?

We've met before, haven't we?

15.1.3 Direct questions

Note

A number of question words, or interrogative pronouns, such as que, qui, lequel and où are also relative pronouns, and should not be confused with the latter (see 14.2).

● Using question words

- Question words can be placed at the beginning or at the end of a question. If they are at the beginning, the verb and subject pronoun are inverted:

Où est-il allé?

Where has he gone?

Combien de fois as-tu vu ce film?

How many times have you seen that film?

Lequel des deux est Bertrand?

Which of the two is Bertrand?

If the question word is at the end of the word there is no inversion:

Il est allé où?

Where has he gone?

Vous avez vu ce film combien de fois?

How many times have you seen that film?

Mais ce dessin, ça ressemble à quoi?

What kind of drawing is that?

The latter construction is colloquial, and the speaker employs a rising intonation at the end of the question.

- If there is a noun subject it is placed after the question word and 'duplicated' by a subject pronoun after the verb:

Où Marianne est-elle allée?

Where has Marianne gone?

Comment tes amis ont-ils voyagé, en train ou en voiture?

How did your friends travel, by train or by car?

Pourquoi ton frère ne vient-il plus à la gymnastique?

Why doesn't your brother come to gymnastics any more?

- Question words are frequently followed by est-ce que, without inversion:

Où est-ce qu'il est allé?

Where has he gone?

Quand est-ce que tu vas quitter l'université?

When are you going to leave university?

Pourquoi est-ce qu'elle est venue ce matin?

Why did she come this morning?

Comment est-ce que tu t'appelles?

What is your name?

Depuis combien de temps est-ce que tu étudies?

How long have you studied for?

● Combien? How much? How many?

Combien may be used alone or followed by a complement:

Ça t'a coûté combien?

How much did that cost you?

Combien de gens y a-t-il dans le stade?

How many people are there in the stadium?

Cela prend combien de jours pour traverser la Sibérie en train?

How many days does it take to cross Siberia by train?

Dans cette pièce vous vivez à combien?

How many of you live in this room?

● Comment? How? What?

Comment vas-tu?

How are you?

Comment trouvez-vous la ville?

How do you find / What do you think of the town?

Comment est ton nouveau portable?

What is your new mobile like?

Comment est-ce que ça marche?

How does it work?

● Lequel / laquelle / lesquels / lesquelles? Which (ones[s])?

- lequel, etc. is used when referring to a choice between options. It agrees in number and gender with the thing referred to:

Lesquels de ces chocolats préférez-vous, les blancs ou les noirs?

Which of these chocolates do you prefer, the white or the dark ones?

– Regarde cette voiture!

'Look at that car!'

– Laquelle?

'Which one?'

- In combination with à, lequel, etc. become: auquel, à laquelle, auxquels, auxquelles

Auquel des tes collègues as-tu donné les billets?

Which of your colleagues did you give the tickets to?

- In combination with de, lequel, etc. become: duquel, de laquelle, desquels, desquelles

De laquelle de ces villes es-tu originaire?

Which of these towns do you come from?

● Où? Where?

Où est la piscine?

Where is the swimming pool?

Où est-ce qu'on peut trouver des magasins de chaussures?

Where can we find shoe shops?

Où Marie va-t-elle avec sa copine?

Where is Marie going with her friend?

● Pourquoi? Why?

Pourquoi n'est-elle pas revenue?

Why hasn't she come back?

Pourquoi ne veut-il pas nous accompagner?

Why doesn't he want to come with us?

Pourquoi est-ce qu'ils ont pris le train?

Why did they take the train?

● Quand? When?

Quand reviendrez-vous?

When will you come back?

Quand l'avion arrivera-t-il à Paris?

When will the plane get to Paris?

Quand est-ce que nous pourrons nous promener?

When can we go for a walk?

● Que? and Qu'est-ce qui / que? What?

Qu'est-ce qui? is used when referring to things, as subject.

Que or Qu'est-ce que? are alternatives when referring to things, as object.

- Que What?

- a Que? cannot be used as a subject pronoun. Qu'est-ce qui? has to be used.

What comes afterwards? Qu'est-ce qui vient après? and not Que vient après?

- b Que? may be used as an object pronoun, and is placed at the beginning of a sentence. Que? is elided to Qu'? before a vowel or silent 'h':

Que voulez-vous dire?	What do you mean?
Que fait-il?	What's he doing?
Qu' ont dit tes voisins?	What did your neighbours say?

- c Colloquially, at the end of a sentence and before a preposition que? becomes quoi?

Ils parlent de quoi?	What are they talking about?
Il fait quoi?	What's he doing?

- d Que? may be used before an infinitive to ask a question:

Que faire?	What shall we do?
Que dire?	What's to be said?
Que penser de tout ce gaspillage?	What should we think about all this waste?

- Qu'est-ce qui? What?

Qu'est-ce qui? is the only possibility for What? as subject of a sentence:

Qu'est-ce qui s'est passé?	What happened?
Qu'est-ce qui a changé notre société ainsi?	What has changed our society in this way?

- Qu'est-ce que? What?

Qu'est-ce que? is an alternative to que as object of a sentence:

Qu'est-ce que tu as dit?	What did you say?
Qu'est-ce que vous cachez dans vos poches?	What are you hiding in your pockets?
Qu'est-ce qu' ils attendent?	What are they waiting for?

- Quel / quelle / quels / quelles? What? Which?

Quel / quelle / quels / quelles, etc. are adjectives that agree with the noun they qualify in number and gender:

À quelle heure tu reviendras?	What time will you come back?
Quelle région de France préférez-vous?	Which region of France do you prefer?
Dans quel pays êtes-vous né?	In which country were you born?
Quelles sont les erreurs à ne pas commettre dans ton pays?	What are the mistakes that should be avoided in your country?

- Qui? and Qui est-ce qui / que? Who? Whom?

Qui? and Qui est-ce qui? are alternatives, when referring to people, as subject.

Qui? or Qui est-ce que? are alternatives, when referring to people, as object.

- Qui? Who? Whom?

QUESTIONS AND EXCLAMATIONS

15.1.5 Indirect questions

KEY POINTS

Indirect questions are questions reported as having been asked, after verbs like demander (to ask), savoir (to know), dire (to say). Such questions are introduced by a question word or si (if / whether):

Il m'a demandé pourquoi je voulais émigrer. He asked me why I wanted to emigrate.

The direct question asked in the above example would be:

Pourquoi vous voulez émigrer? Why do you want to emigrate?

- There is no inversion of the subject pronoun and verb in indirect questions:

Il ne m'a pas dit quand il viendra.

He hasn't told me when he's coming.

Elle m'a demandé quel temps il faisait.

She asked me what the weather was like.

Il m'a expliqué comment cela fonctionnait.

He explained to me how that worked.

Elle demande qui viendra la chercher à la gare.

She's asking who will come to get her at the station.

- si (if, whether) is used when a direct yes / no question becomes an indirect one:

Je me demande s'il fait attention.

I wonder if he's paying attention.

Ils ne savent pas si leur fils se trouve en France ou en Belgique.

They don't know whether their son is in France or Belgium.

- ce que and ce qui

In indirect questions, the equivalents of what? (qu'est-ce qui? [subject] and que? / qu'est-ce que? [object]) are ce qui and ce que respectively:

Je ne sais pas ce qui vous gêne.

I don't know what's bothering you.

Il ne comprend pas ce que vous avez dit.

He doesn't understand what you said.

Je ne vois pas ce qui vous chagrine.

I can't see what's worrying you.

Elle veut savoir ce que vous faites dans ce jardin.

She wants to know what you are doing in this garden.

15.2 Exclamations

We use exclamations to express a whole range of emotions: surprise, joy, disgust, horror, relief, shock, etc.

KEY POINTS

- Exclamatory expressions in French are frequently introduced by words like quel(le)!, quoi! and comment!

Quel dommage!

What a pity!

- The subjunctive is used occasionally for exclamations, in set expressions:

Vive le président!

Long live the President!

15.2.1 Exclamatory words

- Comme! (how)

Comme il se vante!

How he boasts!

Comme le temps est clément aujourd'hui!

How mild the weather is today!

- Que! (how)

Qu'elle est belle, la France!

How beautiful France is!

Qu'il est haut, ce gratte-ciel!

How high that skyscraper is!

- Quel / quelle / quels / quelles! (how, what)

Quel / quelle / quels / quelles! agree in number and gender with the noun they qualify:

Quel froid!

How cold it is!

Quelle horreur!

How awful!

- Qu'est-ce que ...!

Qu'est-ce qu'il fait chaud!

How hot it is!

- Quoi! Comment!

These two words are often used on their own to express disbelief:

Quoi! Nous avons perdu!

What! We've lost!

Comment! Ça, c'est incroyable!

What! That's unbelievable!

Comment! Vous arrivez d'Asie et vous ne me dites rien!

What! You've come back from Asia and you're not saying anything to me!

15.2.2 The subjunctive used in exclamations

Que! followed by the subjunctive has an exclamatory force:

Que Dieu vous bénisse!

May God bless you!

Que ta vie soit pleine de bonheur!

May your life be full of happiness!

15.2.3 Interjections

As in all languages, interjections are used to express emotion. Here are some common ones:

Aïe!

Hein!

Zut!

Allez!

Mon Dieu!

Ouch!

What!

Damn!

Come on!

My goodness!

Questions and exclamations in context

La mère et l'enfant

A- Maman! C'est quoi que tu regardes?

B- Quel langage! Veux-tu bien parler correctement?

A- Que- re-gar-des-tu, ma-man, ché-rie?

B- Ah! Mais c'est mieux ainsi, n'est-ce pas?

A- Oui, mais je me demande si on ne va pas se moquer de moi à l'école.
Qu'est-ce que tu regardes?

B- Ce que je regarde? Tu vois bien? Ce sont de vieilles photos de grand-père. Tiens!
Qui est ce jeune homme avec une belle moustache?

A- Je ne sais pas. Est-ce que je suis censé le connaître?

B- C'est justement mon grand-père. Ton arrière-grand-père

A- Mais c'est lequel de tes grand-pères? De quand date cette photo? Quel âge avait-il?

B- Tu ne devines pas son âge? Qu'est-ce que tu vois derrière?

A- Ouaou! Que d'eau! Comment font les gens pour marcher dans cette eau?

B- Ce sont les inondations de 1938. Ton grand-père avait donc...?

A- Attends! Il avait.... Il avait... 20 ans?

B- Presque. Il avait 18 ans

A- Où il est mort ton grand-père?

B- Où est-il mort grand-père! Pas « Où il est mort »? Combien de fois faudra-t-il que je te le répète?

A- Comment il est mort, grand-père?

B- Il est mort à la guerre. Que Dieu ait son âme! Aux côtés des Anglais à El-Alamein.

A- C'est là-bas qu'il a été tué? Mais il n'était pas avec les Anglais?

B- Mais si!

A- Et ça fait combien de temps?

B- Attends!... Quel jour sommes-nous? Qu'est-ce que tu as fait du calendrier?...
C'était en 1942... Cela va faire...

A- Mais est-ce que tu étais née?

B- Non! Quelle question!

APPENDIX: PUNCTUATION, ACCENTS AND THE FRENCH PHONETIC ALPHABET

1 There are 10 main punctuation marks in French:

punctuation mark	name		space (in print)
			before	after
.	le point	full stop, period, dot	no	yes
,	la virgule	comma	no	yes
:	le / les deux points	colon	yes	yes
;	le point-virgule	semicolon	yes	yes
!	le point d'exclamation	exclamation mark	yes	yes
?	le point d'interrogation	question mark	yes	yes
...	les points de suspension	ellipsis (three dots)	no	n/a
— –	le tiret long le tiret moyen	em-dash (long and medium)	yes yes	yes yes
-	le trait d'union (or tiret court)	hyphen	no	no
« »	les guillemets (m)	quotation marks	yes (closing one)	yes (opening one)

2 To the above can be added the following related punctuation marks:

()	les parenthèses (f)	brackets	yes (closing one)	yes (opening one)
[]	les crochets (droits) (m)	(square) brackets	no (closing one)	no (opening one)
'	l'apostrophe (f)	apostrophe	no	no
*	l'astérisque (f)	asterisk	no (depending on position)	no (depending on position)

Other punctuation marks

/	la barre oblique, le slash	forward slash	yes	yes
\	la barre oblique inverse, l'anti slash	backslash	yes	yes
@	l'arobase (f)	'at' sign	no	no
{ }	les accolades (f)	curly brackets	yes (closing one)	yes (opening one)

- Punctuation marks which consist of several elements such as le point-virgule (;), les deux points (:), les guillemets (« »), le point d'exclamation (!), le point d'interrogation (?), le signe de pourcentage (the percentage sign: %) and les tirets (-), les devises (currencies: £, €), are all preceded and followed by a space in French. However, the rule is less strict for le point-virgule, for which the first space may be omitted. In English there is no space before these punctuation marks but there is one after them.

French: Il dit: « Si nous allions à New York cet été? »

English: He says: 'How about going to New York this summer?'

Some of these signs are used in sciences, especially mathematics and physics.

Although punctuation in French and English is very similar, some differences in their use and their written form exist. We have listed below those punctuation marks which have significant differences.

Full stop (.)

- The full stop is placed after an abbreviation whose last letter is not the same as that of the word.

Monsieur: M.

But, Madame: Mme (without a full stop)

- With figures

- In decimals, French uses a comma where English employs a full stop.
- For the figure mille and components of larger figures with mille, French uses a space or a full stop where English uses a comma as in the example below.

	French	English
Decimals	108,7 (cent huit virgule sept)	108.7 (a hundred and eight point seven)
Components of a larger figure than a thousand with mille	126.322.985 (the full stop is not pronounced) 126 322 985	126,322,985

- Shortened forms of measurements do not have a full stop, even if the abbreviation does not end in the last letter of the word:

36 km

100 m

30 min

Comma (,)

The comma is used when listing words or clauses of the same nature and function (see also full stop above). The last term of the list is linked to the rest by the conjunctions et or ou. One of these conjunctions is compulsory in French whereas in English a comma is possible instead of and:

Deux tranches de pain, un bol de céréales, un pot de confiture et du beurre.

Two slices of bread, a bowl of cereal, a pot of jam, and bread.

Question mark (?)

The two differences from English are:

- the use of the double question mark
- the use of the question mark and exclamation mark together, for emphasis or irony intention:

Comment? La langue chinoise ne serait pas difficile?!

What? The Chinese language is not difficult?

Exclamation mark (!)

- The use of the double or triple exclamation mark, or of the question mark and exclamation mark together, to intensify the emotion:

Vous êtes complètement fou!!!

You're completely crazy!

C'est un Italien et il n'aime pas les pâtes?!

He's Italian and he doesn't like pasta!

Quotation marks (« ... »)

- Quotation marks take the form of chevrons:

« Approchez, SVP! ».

'Come close, please!'

- They are used to mark the beginning and end of dialogue.

They are used for all quotations or speechmarks:

« Et ainsi ne pouvant faire que ce qui est juste fût fort, on a fait que ce qui est fort fût juste. » (Blaise Pascal, Les Pensées, Raison des effets n° 137) ‘And so, not being able to ensure that what is just was strong, we ensured that what is strong was just.’

Il répète souvent « n'est-ce pas ? », c'est agaçant ! He often says ‘n'est-ce pas ?’, it's annoying!

- They frame a word or an expression that the speaker recognizes is not his own:

Je serais donc « idiot » et je ne comprendrais « rien à rien » d'après lui ! So I'm an ‘idiot’ and I'd understand ‘nothing about anything’, according to him!

- They frame foreign words or expressions:

Il a une attitude très « british ». He has a very ‘British’ attitude.

- English inverted commas: “...” may be used for a quotation within another quotation:

« Mesdames et Messieurs, lorsque Descartes dut expliquer que “Cogito, ergo sum” ne signifiait pas simplement que ... » ‘Ladies and Gentlemen, when Descartes had to explain that “Cogito, ergo sum” did not just mean that ...’

- Unlike in English, quotations marks in French include short phrases, e.g. dit-il (said he), suggéra Monsieur Untel ... (Mr So-and-so suggested ...)

For longer phrases it is preferable to interrupt the quotation marks and to begin again:

« Je n'ai pas trouvé les ingrédients », dit mon ami, la mine déconfite et le regard coupable, « j'ai fait pourtant plusieurs magasins ». ‘I haven't found the ingredients’, said my friend, crestfallen and with a guilty look. ‘Yet I've tried several shops’.

The em-dash (long) (—)

The em-dash is used in a dialogue to indicate a change of speaker:

« — Bonjour Mikaela ! dit Rose. Comment vas-tu ? — Ah, bonjour Tante ! Excellent ! S'écria Mikaela, joviale, je viens d'emménager à Paris. — Génial ! Dans quel quartier ? — Près de la Tour Eiffel, répond-elle. Mais ... — Quelle chance ! ».	‘Hello Mikaela!’ Rose says. ‘How are you?’ ‘Oh, hello Auntie! I'm very well’, shouted Mikaela jovially. ‘I've just moved to Paris.’ ‘Fantastic! Whereabouts in Paris?’ ‘Near the Eiffel Tower,’ she replies. ‘But—’ ‘How lucky you are!’
--	--

- The em-dash in French is never used to indicate that speech has tailed off. Only ellipsis may be used. In English, on the other hand, either ellipsis or the em-dash may be used.

The en-dash (medium) (–)

The en-dash (tiret d'incise) may be used instead of brackets to add an explanation, a commentary, etc.:

Le TGV – mon train préféré – fut inauguré en 1986.

The TGV – my favourite train – was inaugurated in 1986.

The hyphen (-)

- The hyphen is used to mark:
 - a link between one or more words
 - compound words like un porte-avions (aircraft carrier)
 - connections between grammatical terms: allez-vous-en! (Go away!) Qu'y a-t-il dans la soupe? (What's in the soup?)
 - words which are broken when they are too long for the line
 - isolating one part of a word, such as a verb ending: the ending -ais of the verb.

The apostrophe (')

The apostrophe is used to replace a vowel that is elided in order to avoid contact with another vowel:

Si + il → S'il

Que + il → Qu'il

Care must be taken with Qui followed by a vowel, which is not elided: Qui il

The asterisk

Three asterisks indicate a surname which is reduced to an initial:

Mme de T ne pourra pas assister au repas de ce soir. Mme de T. will not be able to attend the meal this evening.

The forward slash

The forward slash is used:

- in fractions: $\frac{3}{4}$, $\frac{5}{8}$
- for measuring speed, etc. 100 km/h ('kilometres per hour' understood)
- occasionally to replace a hyphen: Le TGV Paris/Lyon
- to indicate an alternative word or expression: et / ou

Accents

There are four accents in French, which are placed on vowels, and one cedilla, which is placed under the letter c: ç.

The acute and grave accents

- The acute accent can only be placed on e to indicate the closed sound /e/: été.
- The grave accent is placed on e to indicate the open sound /ɛ/: crème

Note: the following are pronounced /ɛ/ and have a grave accent è:

- e followed by silent e: collège, Irène, chèrement

Exception

médecin, médecine; the prefixes dé- and pré-; initial é-

- e followed by a final s when it is not a plural: près (compare with des prés), congrès, abcès
- A grave accent is placed on a and u (à, ù) to differentiate between two homographs:
 - à (at) vs a (has); là (there) vs la (the or her); où (where) vs ou (or)

Notes

- Ça is written without an accent, except in the expression ça et là (here and there).
- Deçà, delà, au-delà, voilà are written with an accent; only cela is written without an accent.
- ù with an accent is only found in the word où.
- a grave accent on a vowel other than e does not change the pronunciation: ou is pronounced the same as où, and a as à.

The circumflex accent

The circumflex accent:

- is found on the vowels a, e, i, o, u (â, ê, î, ô, û).
- indicates an s (or, unusually, another letter) that has been lost:

forêt (forest), hôpital (hospital), coût (cost)

- Note that the third person singular of the imperfect subjunctive, the first two persons plural of the simple past and the first two persons plural of the past subjunctive always have a circumflex accent: qu'elle parlât; nous fîmes, vous fîtes.

- differentiates two homographs:

du (de + le) vs dû (past participle of devoir); crû ('grown', from croître) vs cru ('believed', from croire)

The circumflex accent does not change the pronunciation: un mur (wall) / mûr (ripe), sur (on, south) / sûr (sure), un atome (atom) / un diplômé (diploma).

Note

The Rectifications de l'orthographe de 1990 recommend the removal of the circumflex accent on u and i (apart from the subjunctive forms mentioned above): e.g. couter (to cost), paraître (to appear), il paraît, connaître (to know) (see Rectifications orthographiques below)

The diaeresis

The diaeresis is found on the vowels e, i, u (ë, ï, ü). It indicates two consecutive vowels that must be pronounced separately: Noël (Christmas), naïf (innocent), aiguë (acute) (or aigüe – see Rectifications orthographiques below).

The cedilla (ç)

The cedilla is placed beneath a c followed by a, o, u, to indicate that it must be pronounced /s/ (c followed by e, i, æ is always pronounced /s/):

Il commença la leçon.

Il est déçu.

coeliça

He began the lesson.

He's disappointed.

coeliac

Use of the acute and grave accents

- When an accent is added to the letter e a change in pronunciation follows: compare un modelé (contours), un modèle (model).

The general rule is as follows:

The vowel e pronounced /e/ or /ɛ/ only uses an acute or grave accent if it is at the end of an open syllable. An e pronounced /e/ which is at the end of a word always uses an acute accent:

un côté (side), un pré (meadow), amusé (amused), parlé (spoken), le café (coffee)

If a syllable ends in a consonant (a closed syllable), the letter e never uses an accent:

un pro-jet, per-dre, fo-res-tier

Open syllable	Closed syllable	Mixture of open and closed syllables
clé (key)	jet (jet)	é-ti-quet-te (etiquette)
dé-cé-dé (deceased)	ef-fet (effect)	é-lec-tri-ci-té (electricity)
dé-mé-ri-té (proved unworthy)	er-got (sprocket)	des-hé-ri-té (disinherited)

- The e of the feminine and / or the s of the plural do not influence the rules of accentuation, and so every open syllable in the plural will keep its accent before either of these letters: une clé (key), des clés; chanté, chantés, chantée, chantées (sung). By analogy, masculine words ending in -ée act similarly e.g. le musée (museum).
- When e is followed by two consonants or a double consonant, it never uses an accent because the syllable is always closed:
un ef-fet (effect), bel-li-gé-rant (belligerent), bes-tial (brutish)
- When e is followed by -x it never uses an accent since x counts as two consonants, /gz/ or /ks/:
exécuter (to carry out), exister (to exist), exact (exact)
- When e is followed by a consonant + r or l (-cr, -gr, -cl, -gl, -tr, etc.), it always uses an accent because the syllable break is made before these consonants, not between them: é-gli-se (church), é-cri-tu-re (handwriting).
- But if r- or l- precedes the consonant (-rb-, lg, -rt, etc.) it will not use an accent; the syllable break is made between r- or l- and the consonant, and so the syllable will be closed: her-be (grass), el-lip-se (ellipse), er-go-no-mie (ergonomics), etc.

Summary of the new orthographic rules of 1990 (Rectifications orthographiques)

In 1990 the Académie française issued new, simplified, rules for spelling. These new rules are not mandatory but their use is recommended.

- 1 Compound numbers are systematically linked by hyphens:
vingt-et-un, deux-cent-dix-huit (formerly: vingt et un, deux cents dix-huit), vingt-et-unième.
- 2 In compound nouns composed of verb + noun (garde-boue, pèse-lettre), or preposition + noun (après-midi, sans-abri), the second element can no longer have a plural 's' when singular (e.g. un porte-avions) and can no longer have the singular form when plural (e.g. des après-midi).
un porte-avion, des porte-avions; un compte-goutte, des compte-gouttes; un après-midi, des après-midis

- 3 The grave accent is used rather than the acute accent on a certain number of words (in order to regularize their spelling), in the future and conditional of verbs which are conjugated like céder:

évènement, règlementaire, il cèdera, ils règleraient (previously événement, réglementaire, il cédera, ils régleraient).

- 4 The circumflex accent disappears on i and u because it cannot be justified phonetically:

cout; entraîner, nous entraînons; il paraît (previously coût, entraîner, entraînons, paraît)

But it is kept on:

- verb endings of the simple past and the subjunctive:

qu'elle fût, qu'il finît, nous reçûmes, vous prîtes

- the five cases of masculine singular adjectives which run the risk of ambiguity with homophones:

dû, mûr and sûr, jeûne(s) and the forms of croître which might otherwise be confused with forms of croire (je croîs, tu croîs, etc.)

- 5 Verbs ending in -eler or -eter are conjugated like peler or acheter. Derivatives of these verbs follow suit:

j'amoncèle, amoncèlement, tu époussèteras (previously j'amoncelle, amoncellement)

Exceptions

appeler, jeter and their derivatives, including interpeler.

- 6 Words borrowed from foreign languages form their plural in the same way as French words and use accents according to the rules which apply to French words:

des matchs, des révolvers (previously des matches, des revolvers)

- 7 A certain number of words which previously consisted of two words linked by a hyphen become one word. This is applied in particular to compound words beginning with contr(e)- and entr(e)-, with extra-, infra-, intra-, ultra-, with hydro-, socio-, agro-, onomatopaeic words and words of foreign origin: Contrepouvoir, entretemps, tictac, weekend, portemonnaie (previously Contre-pouvoir, entre-temps, tic-tac, week-end, porte-monnaie).

- 8 Words ending in -olle and verbs ending in -otter and their derivatives are written with only one consonant respectively:

corole, friser (corolle, frisotter)

Exceptions

colle, folle, molle and words of the same family as a noun ending in -otte (e.g. botter, from botte).

- 9 The diaeresis is moved to the letter u in -güe- and -güi- (previously -guë- and -gui-), and is added to u in a few words ending in -geure, like the verb arguer:

aigüe, ambigüe; ambigüité; argüer (previously: aiguë, ambiguë, ambigüité, arguer)

- 10 The past participle of laisser, like that of faire, is invariable when followed by an infinitive:

Je les ai laissé partir (previously Je les ai laissés partir).

Elle s'est laissé prendre par la police (previously Elle s'est laissée prendre par la police).

A number of anomalies have been removed:

- asseoir, sursoir, etc. (formerly asseoir, surseoir, etc.)
- boursouffler, boursoufflure (boursoufler, boursouflure)
- charriot (chariot)
- combattif, combattivité (combatif, etc.)
- dissout, dissoute (dissous, dissoute)
- imbécilité (imbécillité)
- interpeler (interpeller)
- lunetier (lunettier)
- ognon (oignon)
- persifflage (persiflage)
- relai (relais)
- saccharine (saccharine)

Accents are placed on a few words where they had previously been omitted, or whose pronunciation has changed: e.g. papèterie (papeterie).

Words which were formerly written -illier, where the i which follows the consonant is not sounded, are written -iller: joailler (joaillier), serpillère (serpillière).

Exception

the names of trees and bushes, e.g. groseiller (redcurrant bush).

Finally, where there is a clash in usage, priority is given to:

- the most gallicized form (leadeur, not leader)
- the form without a circumflex accent (allo, not allô)
- the regular plural form

VERB TABLES

All French verbs belong to one of three groups, whose endings are -er (group 1), -ir (group 2) and either -re, -oir or -ir (group 3). Note that verbs with -ir endings may be found in groups 2 (e.g. finir) and 3 (e.g. sortir) and that one -er verb, aller, belongs to group 3.

Regular verbs are those that follow a predictable model in all forms of the verb. Irregular verbs exhibit changes which are not predictable; the forms of irregular verbs should be learned.

Each verb consists of two parts, a radical (or stem) which imparts the meaning of the verb and an ending, which is variable according to person, tense and mood. For example, in the infinitive of the verb of the group 1 chanter, the radical is chant- and the ending -er (see 9.2.1). Regular verbs have one radical only, which is invariable; irregular verbs may have several radicals, which can be seen in the different forms taken by the verb.

Je crains que Claude ne soit très en colère et j'ai bien peur qu'il aille jusqu'à la séparation.

Claude, je regrette qu'on se soit disputé! Je ne voudrais pas qu'on se sépare.

Je suis fâchée qu'il n'ait pas téléphoné ni écrit une seule fois depuis 3 semaines.

Claude, avant que tu ne partes tu avais promis d'écrire!

Pourvu que Claude ne vérifie pas son compte en banque tout de suite, il va certainement exiger que je rembourse la somme.

Claude, il est temps que je t'explique! Je suis vraiment désolé que le cheval ait perdu la course. J'aurais voulu que tu gagnes beaucoup d'argent pour que tu puisses te payer cette guitare.

French Grammar and Usage

3rd Edition

By Roger Hawkins and Richard Towell

Long trusted as the most comprehensive, up-to-date and user-friendly grammar available, French Grammar and Usage provides students and teachers with a complete guide to French as it is written and spoken today. It includes clear and concise descriptions of all the main grammatical phenomena of French, and their use, illustrated by numerous examples taken from contemporary French, and distinguishes the most common forms of usage, both formal and informal. This combination of reference grammar and manual of current usage will prove invaluable to students and teachers of French from intermediate through to advanced level. Praised for its clear lay-out and lucid explanations, the new edition includes updated examples, enhanced cross-referencing and expanded explanations of notoriously difficult points of grammar.
